Billy Sunday Preaches.
A Republican Program.
Two Fifties, Five Twenties.
London Says We Gamble.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

BILLY SUNDAY, starting a revival in New York, at the Calvary Baptist Church, rebuked a lady with "lip stick red enough to flag a freight train, that might make a man die of painter's colic, if he kissed her."

Mr. Sunday says that Moody, a great evangelist of other days, "shook the devil until his teeth rattled like castanets."

The Rev. Sunday believes in a real devil, with real teeth that can really rattle. He says God enjoys fun, otherwise he would not have made "the monkey, donkey, parrot, and some of you fellows." And also:

HUNDREDS WERE turned away from the Billy Sunday revival. Five hundred listened in the basement of the church and sang with enthusiasm "Will There Be Any Stars in My Crown?"

Billy Sunday knows how to interest people; even hell, a most unpleasant subject, becomes interesting when he describes it.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, publishing in all of his newspapers a suggestion that the Republican party should continue to function as an opposition party, for even the greatest and best of men need opposition to warn them against mistakes, offers "as a patriotic program for the Republican party," the following, which will appeal to many Americans:

"Individual liberty.
"National independence and political isolation.
"Invincible national defense.
"Protection for American products and producers.
"Exclusion of defaulters from American markets.
"Selective immigration.
"Universal education.
"Law enforcement, vigorous and impartial.
"Simplification of government.
"Elimination of bureaucracy.
"Economy in administration.
"Reduction of taxation.
"No tax evasion.
"No tax discrimination.
"No class distinction.
"Equal rights, equal privileges, equal opportunities, equal obligations for every citizen."

THE AMERICAN Federation of Labor is cheerful, its membership has increased enormously, it reports six million four hundred thousand idle put back to work.

Workingmen are better organized, four and one-half working hours have been cut from the week's work. But there is a dreadful BUT.

If we should have inflation of currency, says the American Federation, that would be terrible. "Fiat money" would destroy everything.

WHAT KIND of money does the American Federation think it is getting in wages now? Does the federation imagine that it is being paid in gold at thirty-four dollars an ounce?

It is being paid in good, sound paper money which says on the one hundred dollar bill:

"The United States of America will pay to the bearer on demand one hundred dollars."

For the sake of information, an American citizen took a one hundred dollar bill to a Federal Reserve Bank and said:

"Here it is, pay me. What do I get?"

The bank said blandly:

Asked the man:

"No. Nothing else."

YOU ARE on a fiat money basis, and an inflation basis now, dear Federation of Labor.

It doesn't matter in the least whether the government inflates, as it should do, by simply paying out green money drawing no interest, or inflates by printing billions of dollars of bonds on yellow paper; insisting on wasting every year hundreds of millions in interest.

The government should print nice new money, take up bonds outstanding, save a billion dollars interest a year, and not be frightened by the "inflation" cry.

THE LONDON TIMES says the United States reconstruction financial plan is "a gamble which the majority of Americans appear ready to undertake with equanimity, even confidence." The Times should know that everything depends on what you possess and are.

If a small peanut vendor borrowed one hundred thousand dollars he would be ruined. If Mr. Rockefeller borrowed fifty millions tha' would be a small bookkeeping incident.

This is the Rockefeller country. A country with a net income, in prosperous days, of ninety thousand million dollars, issuing currency or bonds for ten, twenty or thirty thousand million dollars, is conservative and runs no risk.

If we could contribute ten thousand million dollars to help our dear European friends cut each other's throats, getting swindled out of our money in the process, we can afford twice that amount to build up the United States and help us forget our foolishness in the big war.

IT WILL interest publishers to know that the RFC, one government-lending agency, will lend money "to deserving newspapers."

John A. Park, publisher of the Raleigh Times, will be president of the "Publishers Financial Corporation," D. H. Ramsey, of

KIDNAP TALE GIRL'S HOAX, POLICE SAY

Boy Friend Faces Quiz About Four-Day Romance

The fantastic story of being kidnaped and held captive for four days in Turtle Creek turned out to be the fabrication of a romantic girl's mind today, police say.

Frances Weibley, 16 - year - old Schenley High School sophomore, admitted, Police Capt. John Schnurr said, that she "just made it up" and Schnurr ordered the arrest of her boy friend with whom she spent the four days her parents were frantically searching for her.

Returning to her home, 707 Cherokee street, yesterday afternoon, Francis told with dramatic gestures how she had been forced into an automobile by a man with a gun. She said she was taken by them an and a woman companion to a house in Turtle Creek where she was bound to a bed and fed only a glass of watet. She said:

"I guess they put a sleeping powder in it because I slept until Friday night. The woman insisted I was Alice—the last name I couldn't catch—and hen on Sunday night the woman untied my hands and feet and told me to get out."

To Capt. Schnurr today Frances is said to have admitted she was telling falsehoods and said she spent the time since last Wednesday in company with her boy friend at his home.

The young man lives alone in a six-room house in the Oakland district, according to police. His parents are dead. Capt. Schnurr ordered him brought in for questioning.

Insull May Find Refuge in Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—An opportunity for Samuel Insull, former American utilities operator, to seek refuge in Turkey if expelled from Greece, was left open today as Parliament adjourned without ratifying an extradition treaty with the United States. The body will not reconvene until March 1.

Insull has been ordered by the Greek government to leave Athens January 31.

SAN JOSE, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Will Rogers was suggested here as a possible candidate for Governor of California at the next election.

The name of the ctor and humorist was advanced at a district Jackson Day dinner here last night by Dr. Frederick Vinning Fisher, of Washington, NRA field representative.

Drinking Revealed

MRS. ADOLPH SPRECKELS, JR.

Mrs. Spreckels, today awaiting a New York's judge's ruling on whether she or her former husband, Playboy Jack DeRuyter is to have the custody of their two children. He told the court of how she drank a lot of whisky—but, in defense, that he could "hold my liquor."

M'NAIR TO URGE PAY CUTS

Mayor William N. McNair said today he would ask Council to cut the pay of skilled workmen employed by the city to $6 or $8 a day.

Pointing out that city plumbers and painters are paid $12 a day, McNair said:

"The average working man is getting $2 a day. Is that fair? The present standard of city wages is out of proportion to the average wage being paid. I am going to Council and tell them to cut wages from $12 down to $6 or $8. Then the property owner can do more building for less money and it will better conditions."

The Mayor said he would take budget recommendations prepared by himself and Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, budget adviser, to Council in three or four days.

As for his wage cut proposal, he said:

"Of course, I will be stormed with telegrams and letters from all over the country condemning me. But why should I care about labor unions if it benefits the average person?"

DELINQUENT TAXES LAID TO POLITICS

Favoritism to Blame For Unpaid Millions, Garland Asserts

Political favoritism was blamed for Pittsburgh's 14 million dollars in delinquent taxes by Council President Robert Garland today in an address before the Real Estate Board in the Keystone Athletic Club. He said:

"Pittsburgh has been very lax in collecting delinquent taxes. Because of political affiliations many property owners had no pressure exerted on them to pay delinquent taxes.

"When your city is run by racketeers and ward chairmen, as it has been in the past, you have inequitable assessments.

"With an honest man as Mayor, we are going to have a new era that will take us away from politically written assessments."

Regarding the reopening of the budget, Garland said:

"If the Mayor wants to cut appropriations in the budget I'll go along with anything that's in reason. We can balance the budget all right. There is nothing to that. But in so doing we might put men out of jobs.

"The question is whether that is the proper thing to do at this time or whether we should wait till good times to balance the budget."

As to politics in Council, he asserted:

"I have told Council to throw partisan politics out of the window. In fact, three of the Democratic bloc are Republicans, and I think that the Republican bloc thus far has given McNair more support than the Democrats."

Million in Treasury, City Pays Held Up

Police and firemen will have to wait for their pay due for the last half of December despite the fact that more than a million dollars in 1934 tax collections have been paid to the Treasurer's office.

This was revealed when it was announced that more funds were used by the departments last year than had been provided in the appropriation. The shortage will have to be rectified through action by City Council.

ROBBER SHOT IN GUN FIGHT DOWNTOWN

Bullets of Policeman Halt Flight After Holdup in Cafe

A well-dressed youth was shot and wounded seriously in a running pistol battle with police early today as he fled after holding up two employes and a customer of the New Strand Restaurant, at 524 Wylie avenue, in the shadows of the Courthouse.

VICTIMS GIVE ALARM

The pursuit started when James Karatjas, 36, the restaurant chef, ran to Sixth and Wylie avenues, where Patrolman Michael Nowicki was reporting. Karatjas yelled to the policeman:

"Shoot that man—he just held us up."

The robber fled toward Fifth avenue. At Fifth and Sixth avenues he stopped and fired one shot at Nowicki. Nowicki fired twice at the youth as he turned the corner.

When Nowicki reached the street intersection the robber was running toward an automobile parked at the curb, its motor running. Nowicki fired two more shots and the youth dropped as the auto, said to have contained two other men, sped away.

REFUSES TO GIVE NAME

The wounded man was taken to Mercy Hospital, where it was said he had been shot at least once, and probably twice, in the back. The wound, hospital attaches said, was too large for one bullet and they believe Nowicki's last two shots may have entered the same spot. The youth's condition is serious.

A search of his clothing revealed $21.97 in silver, 21 $1 bills and four $5 bills.

His revolver was found in Fifth avenue a short distance from where he was felled.

Congress Must Guard Against Dictatorship by 'Purchase,' Warns Richard W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD,
Noted Author, and United States Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administrations.

WITH THE liquor revenue legislation passed by the House and a storm of protest against some welching nations who won't even try to pay their debts, Congress faces its first real work week.

It must be highly amusing to those who want to create the "revolution," to see how blind Congress is and how inarticulate as to what is going on in the way of tying our whole national, financial and economic, and hence social life, up into bundles and shipping all these packages into the lap of government.

What Congress may be watching is the attempt to cause the revolution by legislation, either legislation directly aimed, or legislation which, purporting to be constitutional, checks all the clothing of our legislative branch of government,—with that old hat girl, the executive.

WHAT CONGRESS is not watching — and contact with buzzing Senators and chippering representatives discloses it—is that there is no adequate realization that centralized power may be gained by wholly different means.

It may be BOUGHT by an administration and BOUGHT with the money of the taxpayers of this and coming generations.

THERE IS SUCH A THING AS REVOLUTION BY PURCHASE.

THERE IS SUCH A THING AS REVOLUTION BY MORTGAGE AND FORECLOSURE.

There is such a thing as the dictatorship—perhaps not of a man, but of a huge central bureaucracy—being obtained not by legislation, not by force, not by guns, but by using the resources of the citizens to buy a part of our national business or for loans enough to control it.

And when a government starts to do this and everyone is blind to it, it does not cost so much either!

Ten billion dollars will go a long way in the hands of a privileged government to buy some of the United States and mortgage the rest by loans.

STATE SOCIALISM can be achieved in no cheaper way.

And of course whatever one thinks about it, the more you tie national finance, industry and social life into single bundles, the easier it is for Communism, using a little force sometimes as in Russia, to steal the whole business.

Examples?

Finance. The government using no powers, except those of appropriations for loans to banks and the purchase of preferred stock in banks for the purchase of gold and silver, may tie a string to every move it makes. It may loan with a string, to control the policy of the financial institutions; it may buy preferred stock of banks through the RFC and then tell the banks where they get off. It may put such a brake upon the refunding of our national credit that it may have full control if not operation of the issuing of new credit in the form of securities.

Then industry?

With the NRA code system, there are few limits to the centralized governmental power to put its bureaucrats—sometimes neither mature nor wise—into industrial management.

THE TENDENCY will be stronger all the time to make loans to industry. They will have the string of power tied to them—be sure of that.

Nor can one gainsay the plain implication of the vast expenditure of federal funds for local, state and municipal improvements. Who will deny that it puts the smaller units of our governmental fabric in the pawn of obligation to the central power of this new revolution?

When farm loans and home loans, to the extent of four billions of dollars, put hundreds of thousands of our citizens in the place of being beholden to this central power, the picture is fairly complete.

Are we certain then that this revolution, even if it is conducted without more transfer from legislative to executive power by acts of Congress, does not depend primarily upon voting appropriations from taxpayers' pockets to a central power so that the latter may purchase—not regulate by legislation—control of the United States?

No need to take a position as to whether this is wise or necessary.

But this Congress faces the need to know what is going on, the results of what it has done and is doing and will do.

Are we to have revolution by centralized buying of control?

Are we to have it by national power to loan and foreclose?

HOOVER AIDE HELD LAW VIOLATOR

Illegal Contracts Laid To Brown, Head Of Postoffice

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Testimony that Walter F. Brown, Postmaster General in the Hoover administration, awarded some 5,000 miles of air mail contracts without competitive bidding and that masses of his correspondence were burned just before he left office was presented today to Senate investigators.

The Senate's investigation of air mail contracts under the last administration opened with James Maher, Postoffice Department stenographer, telling of burning Brown's correspondence, both personal and official, just before the Hoover administration ended last March.

He said he burned volumes of the corresondence under the personal instructions of Kenneth MacPherson, Brown's secretary. There were indications Brown will be called to testify.

CONGRESS DEFIED

A few minutes later, Paul Henderson, who was second assistant postmaster general under the Coolidge administration, and later official of several airlines, testified that Brown had set up more than 5,000 miles of airmail line extensions without competitive bidding after Congress had specifically refused to give him that authority.

In a steady voice, he detailed how the contracts were awarded under a provision of the law permitting the Postmaster General to extend and consolidate mail lines, but said he did not foresee that the extensions would be longer in some cases than the original lines.

Evidence presented to the committee quickly reverberated through official Washington and

CWA TEACHERS NOT PAID HERE

More than 125 school teachers, conducting classes in the county through the Allegheny County Emergency Educational Board, have been payless since December 1.

Dr. Ben G. Graham, superintendent of city schools, declared he has been waiting for weeks for the checks to come, and that he was advised by authorities in Harrisburg that as soon as the Civil Works Administration in Washington deposits the money in the state treasury the checks will be sent out.

The checks should arrive bimonthly.

The educational project under the CWA started in November, and the teachers were paid for that month. But December's was not forthcoming.

It was believed the tremendous task of clearing checks for the millions who work under the CWA has been the cause of delay. Dr. Graham said today he had no notice as to when the checks will come through.

Bonus Applications Go to Vets Feb. 1

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—Application blanks for the $50,000,000 soliders' bonus probably will be started on their way to Pennsylvania ex-service men about the first of next month, Adjt. Gen. David J. Davis said today.

The Adjutant General, sole administrator of the bonus under the acts passed by the Legislature in the last special session, after the people voted a constitutional amendment for the bond issue, plans to recommend that the bonds be floated in at least five issues of no more than $10,000,000 each.

The first checks will be paid out as soon as the state floats the first part of the bond issue, expected soon after March 1.

Gen. Davis has nearly completed all the preliminary arrangements setting up an administrative force to divide the bonus money.

Branch headquarters are to be set up in about 50 communities in the state where veterans will be able to obtain information regarding procedure for filing applications.

Distribution of the application forms will be made through various veteran organizations in the state as well as from the local administration offices.

Vallee Opens Fight on Fay's Suit With Mystery Threat of Expose

Crooner Says Wife's Own Voice Is His Defense

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—Answering the startling charges of Fay Webb's suit for separate maintenance with the assertion that he would fight the matter through in California courts, Rudy Vallee, famous crooner, today laid the battle lines for a sizzling court tilt with his estranged dark-eyed wife. He declared:

"I'll not ask for a change of venue as I might, but I'll fight this out in California, confident that I can get just as square a deal here as I could in New York."

Hymen Bushel, Vallee's lawyer, in a recent series of court battles in New York with his wife, is en route here by airplane.

Charging intimacy with Alice Faye, film actress, and two "Jane Does," Mrs. Vallee, the daughter of the Santa Monica (Cal.) chief of police, brought to a climax the New York court actions by the suit here for separate maintenance.

Miss Faye, in answer to the charges, said:

"Ridiculous!

DAVIS HEARS BORAH ASSAIL 'INTERNATIONAL SPY'

OPEN DEALING DEMANDED BY SENATOR

Ambassador-at-Large Disclaims Role Of Snooper

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Speaking before the council on foreign relations here, in the presence of Norman H. Davis, American ambassador-at-large, Senator William E. Borah last night called for the elimination from American diplomacy of "a strange figure known as the 'unofficial observer,' a kind of international spy."

Davis, frequently termed this country's "unofficial observer" in published accounts of his activities abroad, was asked his sentiment toward the Senator's denunciation of such emissaries. He replied:

"I don't think we've had any since Franklin D. Roosevelt came in. I most certainly don't consider myself one. I agree perfectly with Senator on that point."

URGES OLD POLICIES

Senator Borah voiced his opinion of the "unofficial observer" in an address appealing for an immediate return to the traditional foreign policy of Washington and Jefferson.

Declaring such representatives "go about over the continents listening in on other people's business," he continued:

"I say 'other people's business' because had it been our business we should have been there in the person of a duly appointed and authorized agent of the government, assuming full responsibility with all particulars."

He was greeted with enthusiastic applause when he said:

"We should be rid once and for all of this un-American and humiliating policy. Wherever we go or wherever we disclose an [illegible] let's go as full participants and assume full responsibility."

Ambassador Davis, who presided and introduced Senator Borah, and John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, were the other chief speakers at the dinner.

Senator Borah coupled his denunciation of the growth of a "shambling, equivocal" foreign policy in this country with an attack on those who say popular government has failed.

URGES OPEN DEALING

The Senator not only condemned the "un-American and humiliating policy" that has been sponsored by internationalists, but gave full explanation of the path he believes the United States should follow. He said:

"I believe in the foreign policy which offers peace to all nations, trade and commerce with all nations, honest friendship with all nations, political commitments, express or implied, with none.

"I believe in the policy which not only in fact respects the rights and sovereignties of other states and nations without distinction of great or small, and particularly upon this continent, but which would also refrain from words or acts that would seem to challenge those rights.

"Under the shelter and the inspiration of such a foreign policy I would foster and strengthen that brand of Americanism which believes in the worth, efficiency and grandeur of constitutional democracy, in the vigilant preservation of the personal liberty and the individual privileges of the citizen, realizing that our institutions and the whole vast scheme of democratic government depend upon our ability to harmonize the rapacious economic force of the modern world with the political freedom and economic rights of the individual."

NEED NOT FEAR ATTACK

In his defense of constitutional democracy, Borah stressed that all faiths, political principles and forms of government must sometimes undergo attacks.

But despite such attacks, he said, the defenders of democracy need not be dismayed. Declaring the nation's highest service to mankind and the peace of the world will be in transmitting democratic principles unimpaired to succeeding generations, he observed:

"This is our supreme duty. I believe that the foreign policy of Washington and Jefferson and Lincoln will best enable us to meet and discharge that duty."

TAX PUBLICITY AGAIN URGED

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Demand for publicity of income tax returns provoked heated discussion before the House Ways and Means Committee which reopened tax hearings today.

Representative Patman (Dem.), of Texas, declared that a law permitting inspection of tax returns would save the government billions of dollars.

When he said that J. P. Morman, Charles E. Mitchell and Albert H. Wiggin would not have escaped taxes if there had been publicity, Representative Treadway (Rep.), of Massachusetts, said:

"When the Morgan case came before us our experts told us that Mr. Morgan was entirely within the law. We have drafted amendments which we hope will stop the loopholes."

Patman retorted that Congress was "three years late in discovering the law was wrong."

Treadway pointed out that Congress has given the President authority to make public income tax returns. He said:

"If you are advocating a system where every curiosity seeker can pry into tax returns, I am against it."

DAVIS BROTHER FACES U. S. QUIZ

By EARL L. SHAUB

Universal Service.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 9.—Federal investigation of Tennessee's political and banking affairs, with their power trust connections, loomed today as a result of the two arrests of Paul M. Davis, banker brother of Norman H. Davis, America's ambassador-at-large.

Wayne Williams, special assistant Attorney General, was reported to be returning here this week to look into the situation for the Department of Justice.

Davis first was arrested on charges of conspiracy to defraud the state of $22,800 to be used in the election of Gov. Hill McAlister, and his second arrest was based on charges of making an alleged $500,000 false entry on the books of his banks "to deceive stockholders and creditors."

Since one of the banks, the American National, is a national bank, the case has been laid before the Department of Justice, the Comptroller of the Currency and the Senate Banking Committee.

U. S. CONTINUES PAY CUTS

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—President Roosevelt today signed an executive order continuing the federal pay cut of 15 per cent until June 30, 1934.

On June 30, as already directed under the President's budget message to Congress, a 5 per cent restoration of the pay cut will be made.

The President's action was taken after a thorough study of two reports on living costs compiled by the Labor Department.

A White House statement issued simultaneously with the executive order revealed that the first set of reports based on the cost of living for families of wage earners and low-salaried workers in 32 American cities produced an average living cost figure for the last half of 1933 of 21.1 below the average of a similar base period extending from December, 1927, through June, 1928. In this set of findings the decline in living cost in the District of Columbia for similar families was 17.9 per cent.

The second set of figures submitted by the Labor Department resulted from a special study of the living cost of government employes here and showed a decline of 14.6 per cent.

40 NATIONS VIE FOR RUM TRADE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Bids for a better place in America's liquor market today were on file from more than 40 of the 54 nations maintaining diplomatic representatives here and the struggle for import licenses gave signs of continuing merrily.

Although the Federal Alcohol Control Commission a month ago fixed a tentative total of 5,595,137 gallons, this already has been far exceeded. Canada alone has been granted permits for about 7,000,000 gallons of rye and bourbon whisky.

One of the diplomatic liquor battles was settled late yesterday—the principals: Great Britain and the United States. The final outcome was an agreement whereby this country's quota of pork products to England will be raised by $1,000,000, while Great Britain's liquor quota of 607,000 gallons was doubled.

Interest centered today upon the amount of German wines that will be allowed in exchange for increased taking of American agricultural surpluses.

State Stores Fund Boosted to $84,670

HARRISBURG, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—With the receipt of the first substantial returns from liquor sales, the state stores fund in the State Treasury was boosted by $26,163 to $84,670, it was announced today by the State Liquor Control Board.

VINSON URGES BIG NAVY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Chairman Vinson, of the House Naval Committee, today introduced a bill to authorize the President to undertake construction of new and replacement ships necessary to bring the fleet up to treaty strength. He said:

"Japan has already provided for the full naval strength which is permitted under treaties, and Great Britain seems practically certain to do so."

"The United States, however, is shockingly and dangerously deficient in modern ships and will remain so even after all the vessels now building are completed.

"Unless these ships are provided, the Navy will be insufficient to discharge its responsibilities if a major emergency should arise. We must not gamble with the national safety."

VOTES PLEDGED TO ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Reassured by a fresh pledge of support from House Democrats, President Roosevelt today devoted most of his time to preparing special messages to Congress proposing immediate consideration of the St. Lawrence waterways pact and a federal guarantee of the principal of the $2,000,000,000 farm credit bonds.

The new pledge was given to Mr. Roosevelt by a special committee of the Democratic steering committee.

Sterilization of 2 Ordered in Germany

DESSAU, Germany, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—A court today ordered the sterilization of Friedrich Koitzsch, 55, and Paul Riegel, 50, following their conviction of statuatory offenses. Both received three to five year prison terms.

MILK BLOCKADE BROKEN BY AIR

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Regular shipments of milk into Chicago by airplane were started today as the fourth day of the city's milk blockade brought an acute shortage.

The first shipment, 1,000 quarts, was consigned to the Wagner Dairy Company. Officials announced additional consignments would arrive hourly. The Wagner company is one of the largest independent dealers in the city.

Federal Judge John P. Barnes today granted a temporary injunction restraining officers and members of the Pure Milk Association, organization of farmers, from interfering with milk shipments by the Economy Dairy Company, an independent concern.

CANNON DECREE HINTS REFORM

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—New attempts to enact drastic federal legislation to prevent corruption of presidential primaries and elections was considered by Senate progressives today as a result of the Supreme Court's decision in the Cannon case.

The Senate group holds that a new milestone was passed when the court ruled that Bishop James Cannon, Jr., and his aide, Miss Ada Burroughs, must stand trial on charges of violating the Corrupt Practices Act in failing to report contributions made to influence election of presidential electors.

The high court ruled that presidential electors, heretofore regarded as officers of the states, were exercising federal functions at the time.

A close study of the opinion was planned by the Senate advocates of revision of the corrupt practices law, believing it furnishes ground for extension of the law to cover presidential primaries.

SENATE PLANS TO CUT TAX ON BREWERIES

House Debates Bill For Sale of Liquor In Capital

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The formal report of the Senate Finance Committee on the House liquor tax bill was made public today, showing the $1,000 license tax on brewers imposed by the beer act of last March had been reduced by the committee to $100, the rate carried in prior laws.

The committee left unchanged other House levies including the $2 a gallon tax on distilled spirits, $5 a barrel on beer and rates ranging from 10 to 80 cents a gallon on wines.

In proposing the lowering of the brewers' fee, the report filed by Chairman Harrison said:

"The committee felt the field of occupational and license taxes in respect to manufacturers and dealers in alcoholic liquors should be left to the states."

Under the proposed amendment brewers producing less than 500 barrels a day would pay only a $50 tax.

Meanwhile, dispute over whether the liquor control bill for the nation's capital would restore saloons embroiled the House.

Blanton (Dem.), of Texas, retorted:

"I am not in favor of filling the nation's capital with liquor saloons from one side to the other. In my opinion, this bill is a disgrace. But there is no way on earth to stop it."

G. O. P. ATTACK ENDS TRUCE ON RECOVERY

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The political truce that has prevailed throughout most of the New Deal was definitely ended today.

From now on, there is to be normal warfare between the two parties in Congress.

All doubt on this score was dispelled today when, on top of yesterday's spectacular attack on administration policies in the Senate, the Republican National Committee came out with a stern admonition to the Republicans in Congress to protest and oppose the extension of the Roosevelt recovery program.

CHARGE BROKEN PLEDGES

After citing the enormous program of federal expenditures during the past six months, and charging President Roosevelt with breaking his promise to balance the budget, the national committee gave this advice to Republicans in the Senate and House:

"The most constructive thing which Republicans in both branches of Congres can do is to oppose the administration program of unlimited expenditures, unparalleled deficits and the creation of the largest public debt (over $1,100,000,000 in the history of the United States.

"That means the closest scrutiny of all appropriation bills and opposition to all items, of whatever character, which are not absolutely necessary, and which are an invitation to the further squandering of public funds."

No clearer declaration of war against what Mr. Roosevelt proposed last week in the budget message could hardly have been devised.

In that message, the President proposed to extend the recovery program by asking approximately $1,800,000,000 for continuation of public works, and extension of the various other arms of the recovery program.

OPPOSITION LOOMS

If the Republicans in Congress follow the advice of their national committee they must oppose these administrative moves. How many of them will do so remain to be determined, but it is certain that part of them will at least.

While few of the Senate Republicans joined with Senator Arthur Robinson, of Indiana, in his severe lambasting of the Roosevelt record, it was significant that two of them laid the groundwork for future attack.

Senator Vandenberg of Michigan sponsored a resolution requesting full information concerning the collection and distribution of the processing taxes under the NRA.

Senator Carey, of Wyoming, fathered a resolution asking similarly complete information concerning the cost of the corn-hog program and the reason for the drop in prices in October and November.

The theory is that newspapers are as much entitled to government financial aid as any other enterprise. That may be sound, although many will think it sounds like subsidizing the press.

The government should know that it takes some experience to know what newspapers "in the red" are sure to turn "into the black" and repay loans.

UNLESS CAREFULLY watched, this generous thought of the government might encourage intelligent speculators to buy up moribund newspapers and try to build them up with government money.

If successful, well and good; if not, the government will find itself in the newspaper business. And the government is assured by one who has been in the business for some time that it would not enjoy the job.

THE LIFE of the gangster is not pleasant.

Mr. French, twenty-five years old, of Chicago, was suspected of "squealing" about other gentlemen in a hi-jacking enterprise. They took him on a "one way ride," threw him out, called him "a rat." One knocked him down, the other shot him twice.

French staggered to the river bank, fell in purposely, "played dead" in the shallow water, heard one man, Cusack, say:

"Hell, he's dead; let's get going."

The other man, McCarty, who, according to French, did the slugging while Cusack did the shooting, stepped on the gas.

McCarty was formerly business agent of the Trucking Drivers' Association and Cusack is a suspended policeman. That adds interest.

PHILA. TAXICAB STRIKE ENDS

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Philadelphia's turbulent strike of taxicab chauffeurs ended with the return of 400 drivers to work today.

The Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company, operator of the city's three largest cab services, under the terms of an agreement reached last night will put to work 100 additional strikers weekly until all have been re-employed except those suspected of violence during the walkout.

The strike began Thanksgiving Day and assumed serious proportions just before Christmas, with six other motor transportation unions calling a sympathy walkout. The latter movement was short-lived, however.

Taxi men charged a "lockout" because they were refused permission to wear union buttons on their uniforms. Later they submitted a series of demands and the agreement between the transit company and union represents a compromise. In it the P. R. T. promises to recognize any representatives named by the drivers and to reduce working hours from 60 to 54 if the employes so choose.

COURT SUPPORT OF NRA SEEN

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Belief that the Supreme Court will sustain constitutionality of the National Recovery Act was freely expressed by congressional lawyers today following the 5 to 4 decision in the Minnesota mortgage moratorium case.

The language used by Chief Justice Hughes in delivering the majority opinion was accepted as a history-making statement of the court's new attitude on constitutional interpretation.

In the minority were Justices Sutherland, McReynolds, Vandevanter and Butler.

In the Minnesota case the court held a mortgage sale extension was valid although assailed as an impairment of contract forbidden by the Constitution.

Railroad Employes Ask Wage Boost

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—An increase of 10 per cent in pay for Brotherhood railroad employes of the Mobile and Ohio was urged today by an emergency board named by President Roosevelt to investigate a wage dispute.

The employes received a 10 per cent cut in pay under the so-called Chicago wage agreement in 1932 and later most of them took a second 10 per cent deduction.

POWER OF NRA DEPENDS UPON WEIR SUIT

Justice Department Ready to Launch Court Test

By JOHN P. COWAN

Sun-Telegraph Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Reports of Department of Justice investigators in the Weirton Steel labor dispute were submitted to Attorney General Homer S. Cummings today and action in the courts is momentarily expected.

Accompanying the reports is a summary of the evidence by J. Lawrence Fly, special assistant to the Attorney General, together with recommendations by attorneys of the department.

Fly has spent more than three weeks upon the case and the most eminent lawyers on the staff of the Attorney General have been consulted in the preparation of the report. No secret has been made of the fact that the government expects any move in the Weirton matter as a test of the authority of the National Recovery Administration to enforce the regulations governing collective bargaining between employers and employes in the entire iron and steel industry.

The greatest secrecy has guarded the movements of the department. NRA officials, particularly Senator Robert F. Wagner, chairman of the National Labor Board, have been impatient of delay in bringing action, but the attorney general and his assistants refused to be hurried. They have declared it a matter of such importance that the power of the NRA will survive or perish on the outcome of this case.

Labor Board Delays Captive Mine Ruling

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—There was no indication today as to when the decision of the National Labor Board on the labor contract dispute between captive mine owners of Pennsylvania and the elected representatives of their employes would be handed down.

The Labor Board was not in session and officials said collective consideration of the controversy had not been begun since yesterday's closed hearing at which mine owners challenged the right of the board to force them to sign a contract with the United Mine Workers of America.

John L. Lewis, international president of the union, and Philip Murray, vice president, have been elected to represent the employes at a majority of the captive mines, but the owners assert they will contract with them only as individuals.

W. D. Evans, counsel for the Vesta and Shannopin coal companies of Pittsburgh, told the board the agreement reached between the captive mine owners and President Roosevelt last October "in no way provides for a contract with the United Mine Workers."

W. P. Belden, of the Republic Steel Corporation of Russellton, and B. G. Bostwick, representing the Weirton Coal Company, of Weirton, W. Va., expressed the same views.

Last week counsel for the H. C. Frick Coke Company, of Pittsburgh, took a similar stand but Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, said it was his recollection that captive mine owners bound themselves by the President's agreement to contract with whomever their employes elected.

Martin Ryan Faces Sentence in Fayette

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Martin Ryan, one of the leaders in Fayette County soft coal strikes, may be sentenced this week on charges of attacking a watcher at the Redstone polling place in the November election.

Convicted some weeks ago, his appeal was dismissed yesterday by Judge D. W. Henderson with the concurrence of Judges Thomas H. Hudson and S. John Morrow. The conviction carries a maximum sentence of three years.

Ford's N. J. Strike To Be Ended Tonight

EDGEWATER, N. J., Jan. 9.—(Universal.)—The 12 weeks' strike of workers at the Ford Motor Company's plant here will be declared at an end tonight at a meeting of the strikers, it was announced by J. Glenn Anderson, their counsel. Anderson said:

"The statement credited to Recovery Administrator Johnson that the strikers had failed to support the charges made against the Ford plant management has been denied, but nothing has been accomplished."

Borah Indorses Hearst Program for G.O.P.

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Senator William E. Borah expressed his agreement last night with what he called a "splendid program," the program suggested yesterday by William Randolph Hearst as the patriotic duty of the Republican party.

The Republican veteran from Idaho, who came to New York to speak at a dinner of the Council on Foreign Relations at the Ritz Carlton, declared:

"I agree with William Randolph Hearst that the Republican party has an important duty to perform and I furthermore agree with most of the propositions as laid down by Mr Hearst.

"My attitude toward this administration is the same as it always has been. I support it when I agree with them, and I oppose them when I do not.

"I never have been much of a partisan, and now there is no partisanship in my system. I think Mr. Hearst has laid out a splendid program, generally speaking, and I particularly agree with him when he earnestly urges a limitation and curtailment of federal waste and the elimination of all bureaucracy possible."

Hunt Widens for Three Jewelry Store Bandits

Search for the three bandits who robbed the window of the William J. Kappel Company jewelry store, 109 Sixth street, of gems reported to be valued at $20,000 after holding at bay two officials of the store last night, spread throughout Western Pennsylvania today.

The bandit car, a small coupe bearing Ohio license plates, stopped in front of the store. Two of its occupants stepped out while the third, a revolver in hand, remained at the wheel.

One faced the door from the outside while his accomplice shattered the plate glass of a window in which jewelry valued at $60,000, according to store officials, was on display. At the sound of the crash R. P. Ripper, manager of the store, and William J. Kappel, Jr., an official, ran to investigate. As they opened the door, the bandit on guard pointed a revolver and commanded:

"Stand back or I'll shoot!"

The robber looting the window picked up a tray containing diamond rings and scooped up several others in boxes.

The two jumped in the automobile and the car sped over the Sixth Street Bridge to the North Side.

PARIS IN UPROAR AS STAVISKY EXECUTION RUMOR SPREADS

SWINDLER SLAIN TO SEAL LIPS, PAPERS SAY

Police Army Mobilizes To Protect French Cabinet, Deputies

PARIS, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Huge forces of mounted and foot police were rushed to the Place Bourbon today to surround the Chamber of Deputies and guard it against a mob demonstration resulting from reports that police had killed Serge Stavisky, alleged swindler, to keep him from talking.

Newspapers in opposition to the government attacked the truth of the police report that Stavisky had shot himself in order to avoid arrest.

The Royalist newspaper, Action Francaise, asked the public to stage the demonstration as a protest against the Stavisky scandal.

All streets leading to the chamber were bloc'ed off by massed patrol wagons.

The Socialist newspaper Populaire and the Communist Humanite were other newspapers attacking the police version.

Stavisky's death in a hospital at Chamonix early today complicated the investigation of the scandal growing out of the collapse of the Bayonne Municipal Pawnshop and the resulting loss to investors of approximately $40,000,000.

Authorities believe that he was perhaps the only person who could have told all of the secrets of the far-reaching affair.

Stavisky was fatally wounded yesterday at the time police surrounded a lonely villa at the foot of the French Alps in which he was hiding.

FINDS NEIGHBOR HANGED IN HOME

Entering the house of a neighbor today to borrow a piece of thread, John Louzy, of 416 East Lacock street, found the place deserted, and, spying a vague form behind a door, called:

"Come on out. I see you."

Getting no answer, Louzy swung back the door and came upon the body of his friend, John Dragarich, 48, hanging by a strip of braid from a spike hammered in the wall.

He called police and the body was taken to the Morgue.

Louzy said his friend, who was an unemployed tailor, had threatened to commit suicide several times, but had apparently changed his mind after a recent happy celebration of the Russian Christmas.

IN LOVE, BROKE, SEEKS JAIL

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Charles Listner, 27, stepped up to Policeman James Capperelli last night and announced he was a holdup man who wanted to surrender.

He confessed several robberies, but the police failed to find reports on them. Finally, Listner blurted out:

"The whole thing's a lie. I didn't commit any crimes. I'm in love with a girl—a wonderful girl—I'm engaged to marry her February 3 and I haven't any money."

Listner said he was a Northwestern University graduate and unemployed, but had told the girl he had a high-salaried job.

Sergt. Nealon asked:

"Why did you tell the story of being a robber?"

Listner replied:

"I didn't have the nerve to tell her the truth about myself. I thought if I could be put in jail as a confessed criminal the matter would take care of itself."

The police telephoned the girl, Miss Ethel Enk, 24. Job or no job, the police said, she maintained her faith in Listner and would marry him.

$800,000 Refused For McCormick Gems

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Two necklaces that cost the late Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick approximately $2,000,000 were still the property of her estate today, after Probate Judge John F. O'Connell refused an $800,000 offer for their purchase.

The offer was submitted yesterday by the Chicago Title and Trust Company, trustee of the estate, on behalf of an unnamed broker, said to represent a New York jewelry firm.

Angry Gulls Drive Sea Monster To Cover

VICTORIA, B. C., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Three men said yesterday they had seen a sea monster sent slithering away from a point 400 yards off Gonzales Point by a flock of angry gulls.

They said it was a serpentine friend of Amy Cadaborosaurus, the gigantic what-not which has kept the British Columbia coastal area interested in snake stories for several weeks.

Del Marsh, pharmacist; his brother, Earl, railroad accountant, and J. W. Chilton, student, said the monster was pecked into flight after it seized one of the flock of 20 seagulls.

INFANT NAMED LIVING BUDDHA

International News Service.

PEIPING, Jan. 9.—Reincarnation of the "Living Buddha," the Dalai Lama of Tibet, was celebrated in Tibetan circles here today.

Tibetan religious leaders were advised that the mantle of temporal and spiritual sovereignty of the Dalai Lama who recently died had been transferred to the shoulders of a baby born in a suburb of Lhasa, the capital of Tibet, at the approximate time of the ruler's death.

While the child was not identified in the reports, he will be venerated as the fourteenth of the "Living Buddhas."

A strange and ancient ritual is used to decide upon the successor to Dalai Lama. The names of all Tibetan babies born at the time of the ruler's death are collected and inscribed upon iron rods, which are thrown into a sacred pool and then regathered.

The oracles at the various shrines of Tibet are then consulted by the high priests, and as a result of their deliberations, one infant is chosen as the spiritual successor.

RUSSIAN ENVOY AT WHITE HOUSE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Alexander A. Troyanovsky, the first Soviet ambassador to the United States, formally presented his credentials yesterday to President Roosevelt at the White House.

The new envoy expressed to the President the thought that "cooperation and friendship of the United States and the Soviet Union must inevitably be of great historical significance and of direct far-reaching moment in the cause of world peace."

The President replied:

"The foundation has now been laid for the development of genuinely friendly relations and close co-operation between the governments of the United States of America and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics."

Troyanovsky was escorted to the White House in the President's automobile.

The President received the new ambassador and his staff in the blue room with hand shakes all around, and then the ambassador and the President each read a formal address of greeting and welcome.

MISSING CO-ED FOUND IN OHIO

The disappearance of Viola Sayles, 19, drama student at Carnegie Tech, a week ago, had been cleared up today.

A letter from her in Cleveland revealed that she found employment there to enable her to earn her tuition at the University of Chicago, which she desired to attend.

Her mother, Mrs. Bertram Sayles, 6937 Rosewood street, said her daughter was expected home in a few days to discuss her college plans.

SOCIETY DOCTOR SLAIN, WOMAN ARRESTED

Waylaid Before Office; 'Had a Reason,' Suspect Says

READING, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Pursuing the socially prominent physician to the door of his office, a woman patient last night shot and killed Dr. Paul R. Hess.

The woman, Miss Frances Sepse, 30, then waited quietly until a policeman arrived and handed her pistol to him.

Witnesses said Miss Sepse stood behind a telephone pole while Dr. Hess drove to the curb outside his home. As he stopped she is alleged to have fired a bullet through the rear window of his automobile. It shattered the windshield.

Dr. Hess made a dash for the office, the witnesses said, with Miss Sepse in pursuit, firing as she ran.

He crumpled while struggling to open the door.

Police said Miss Sepse told them the doctor had been treating her during the last year for a glandular disorder.

She fired five shots at the physician, police say, two of which struck him. The fatal bullet lodged in his chest, near the heart, and he died in a hospital about 20 minutes after the shooting.

Patrolman Harak, who heard the shots and hurried to the scene, quoted Miss Sepse as saying as she proffered the weapon:

"Here, take it. I had a reason for it."

KIDNAPED, SAY GIRL 'TOOLS'

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—With two pretty, smartly dressed girls, who claimed they were kidnaped from Johnstown, Pa., and forced to act as "tools," and six others in custody, federal agents moved rapidly today to seize the heads of a counterfeiting ring said to have flooded New York with spurious $10 and $20 notes.

The girls, Irene Julia Daroczy and Helen Margaret Callie, were arrested by Agent H. W. Rodney in a secret roundup of alleged members of the gang and held in $3,000 bail pending grand jury action.

According to the girls, they were "snatched" in the Pennsylvania city by a gang which brought them to New York and after schooling them in the nuances of polite social conduct, sent them out to the swankier hotels, night clubs and restaurants to "shove" the spurious currency.

The girls refused to divulge the identity of their alleged kidnapers or to tell agents the location of the counterfeiting plant.

Bethlehem Miners Offer to End Strike

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Striking miners today await the action of Bethlehem Mines Corporation officials to the announcement of their spokesmen that they are ready to resume work.

Some 1,700 men have been on strike at three mines in the Johnstown district, demanding a new election of collective bargaining representatives. The return to work move is an outgrowth of a week-end conference in Pittsburgh.

'MAYOR' JOE COOK, AN APPLE-MUNCHER AT HIS MUNCHING

Balancing Broom, Not Budget, Real Trick, Actor Says

In one hand Joe Cook was clutching an apple, which he was munching, and in the other hand he was holding an apple which was awaiting its turn to be munched, and in his head he was fermenting any number of ideas as to how Mayor McNair should run the city of Pittsburgh.

Joe Cook, too, is a mayor. He is a chief executive in the insane story of "Hold Your Horses," the musical in town this week. A man of few words, which he uses time and again, he offered this advice to His Honor the Mayor:

"My plan of eliminating the slums will go down—or up—in history. I would simply move the elegant section of Point Breeze to the Hill district and then the swells walking up and down would become disgusted with the view and improve the property. And in the winter this would give the kiddies of the poor a chance to throw snowballs at the high hats.

"Now as to schnitz and knepp, that sounds like a swell drink. One hooker of schnitz, a dash of knepp, a few apple seeds and how are you?

"Two of those and I'll balance your budget for you, although budget balancing is child's play for me. Try balancing brooms first. Anybody who can balance a broom will find budget balancing child's play—but the kiddie will have to be a bit of a genius.

"I'm surprised the Mayor is having trouble with his cabinet. This problem is simple. If I were the Mayor here I'd be the cabinet myself. Then I'd hold conferences with myself all the time. Think of the apples I'd save."

MISS MACKAILL, HUSBAND PART

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—The romantic marriage of Dorothy Mackaill, blonde screen actress, and goodlooking Neil Miller, nonprofessional, has ended in a separation, with a divorce to follow.

Neither Dorothy nor Neil were willing to give any reason for this unexpected severing of their domestic ties other than to mention that very noncommittal and popular divorce word:

"Incompatibility."

Miss Mackaill is out of town visiting friends, while her husband is preparing to vacate their apartment and move elsewhere. Friends of both had hoped that the disagreement was only temporary and that there might be a reconcilliation. But Miss Mackaill declares this separation is final.

Dorothy and Neil were married in Arizona in 1931. It was Dorothy's second marriage, she having been the wife of Lothar Mendez, German director, for a brief period.

MANVILLE HINTS 20 MORE WIVES

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Tommy Manville, Jr., heir to the asbestos fortune, said he and his fourth wife, Marcelle Edwards, former show girl had parted.

They were married less than three months ago at which time Manville, well known along Broadway, termed her his "dream girl," but added two months later that "dreams sometimes crash." Yesterday he said:

"It's a permanent separation. We've been on the verge of a split-up several times in the last month. I'm going to choose another kind of wife. I've been married four times and might be married 20 times more."

His former wives were Florence Hubert, Lois McCain and Avonne Taylor.

HEIRESS-BRIDE MAY LEAVE HER PRINCE BEHIND

By RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 9.—With or without her Georgian prince, Alexis Mdivani, the lovely young and blonde Princess Mdivani, nee Barbara Hutton, the American $40,000,000 "five-and-ten"heiress, will sail from San Francisco Thursday for the Orient aboard the Japanese N. Y. K. liner, Tatsuta Maru.

At least that was the statement issued today in the name of the princess by Mme. Nancy Allard, her secretary and former tutor.

Mme. Allard said:

"The princess positively will be on the Tatsuta Maru when it sails from here. She has her plans all made and her cabins engaged and she has no intention of changing either. She believes the prince will arrive in San Francisco in time to sail with her, but whether he does or not she will be aboard."

A suggestion that the princess' determination to go with or without the prince indicates a bit of a rift in their marital harmony brought a snappy "nothing of the kind" from Mme. Allard.

The same answer greeted the same suggestion in reference to the failure of the prince to call the princess from Portland, Ore., where he stayed at a hotel yesterday resting between his plane hop, via Salt Lake City, from Reno and his departure by automobile last night for Chehalis, Wash., en route to Seattle.

The prince's brothers, David and Serge, are facing oil fraud charges in Los Angeles and, according to Mme. Allard, Alexis dropped off the $120,000 Hutton private car at Reno when he heard that a process server from the Los Angeles District Attorney's office awaited him a few hours farther on at Sacramento, Cal.

FORD TO HONOR M'GUFFEY

WASHINGTON, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Henry Ford is interested in perpetuating the memory of the birthplace of William Holmes McGuffey, author of the famous McGuffey readers of public school memory.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry V. Blayney, the latter a second cousin of McGuffey's, disclosed last night that Ford visited the old Holmes homestead in West Finley Township, 16 miles west of Washington, last Friday, and now has an option on the place. The Blayneys own, and live on, the farm. The automobile king has many manuscripts and first editions of the McGuffey readers.

The house in which the author was born is now crumbling in ruins, but most of its timbers remain intact and the place could easily be reconstructed in its original form, observers say.

MANIAC HUNTED NEAR ERIE

International News Service.

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 9.—An automobile believed occupied by Neal G. Bowman, escaped Ohio insane convict, today was the object of a search by Pennsylvania and New York State authorities.

The automobile was reported speeding throught Erie today, headed eastward. Efforts to trace the car were unsuccessful.

A general alarm to all state police barracks was transmitted through the teletype circuit.

Bowman, in his mad flight through Ohio, kidnaped Sheriff H. L. Partee, of Vinton County, but later released the officer. Police of four states—Ohio, Pennsylvania, West Virginia and New York—have been enlisted in the search for the fugitive.

O'Neill Braves Religious Theme in New Play

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Braving what many managers have considered the dangers of a religious theme, Eugen O'Neill brought the soul struggles of a 1934 "Everyman" to Broadway last night in "Days Without End," produced by the Theater Guild at Henry Miller's Theater.

To depict the troublings of a Puritan conscience which scarcely had recovered from impact with the depression as well as having been rooted out of all his other faiths except love for a woman, O'Neill utilized the mask again as a dramatic property and built up one character out of two actors.

That is, to show both sides of John Loving, the inner and the outer man, the playwright endowed Earle Larimore with the aspects of the person everybody knew. Back of him he placed Stanley Ridges in a mask as the strange being who argued out every question with his hero, who was seeking the Holy Grail of faith.

Loving as a youth lost his belief in God and became entirely creedless. His only belief became a denial of all beliefs.

However, in the end Loving returned to the church under the guidance of his uncle, a priest, and the devil within him was felled.

Selana Royale (Mrs. Larimore), Robert Loraine and Ilka Chase had other roles. The play is the second by O'Neill now running on Broadway, the other being "Ah, Wilderness!" with George M. Cohan.

TRIAL FAN MOB EAGER TO HEAR DR. WYNEKOOP

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The city's strangest legion—the trial fans—were ready today for what bids to become the most startling court case here in a decade.

If past performances are a criterion, they will storm the Criminal Courts Building with next Thursday's dawn to see the aged and enigmatic Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop go before the bar to answer a charge of murder in the strange death of her winsome daughter-in-law, Rheta.

It was this legion that stopped traffic in State street whenever "Scarface" Al Capone made one of his ceremonial surrenders; and sat in awe as scientists for the state and for William D. Shepard attempted to piece together the evidence in the bizarre case of "murder of typhus germ injection" of which he was accused.

O'BRIEN CASE

They sighed when comely Genevieve O'Brien was sent to prison for complicity in the slaying of her husband; and raced from court to court in an attempt to keep up with the merry-go-round Watkins-Bamberger baby mixup.

It was the same crowd that rioted at "Poor Joe" Pollak's grave, cheered his young widow's subsequent acquittal in his demise and then repaired to a burlesque house to hear her specially-arranged song number. W. W. O'Brien, her attorney, today recalled:

"The Dorothy Pollak trial was marked by several disorderly outbursts. The feminine contingent got entirely out of hand when the verdict was announced, cheering wildly. On orders of the judge, they were ejected after much confusion. About 20,000 persons, mostly women, attempted to crash the trial daily, and extra police details were required to maintain order."

LEOPOLD-LOEB 'RIOT'

The most turbulent scene occurred in 1924, early on the morning Clarence Darrow made his memorable plea for the lives of Nathan Leopold and Richard Loeb in the murder of little Bobby Franks. The courtroom could accommodate 300 persons; 5,000 fought to get in. A stampede was precipitated, injuring many.

AIR MAIL FILES' BURNING TOLD

brought from William W. Howes, assistant postmaster general, a statement that it was illegal to burn government records. He said he did not know the circumstances of the case in question, however.

SECRET MEETINGS

Thomas H. McKee, former employe of the Wedell-Williams Air Service Corporation, told of efforts to get an air mail contract for that company's lines between New Orleans and Fort Worth and Houston.

He recounted vain efforts to negotiate with postal officials for a contract.

McKee testified that after he had been in Washington for some time he was "tipped off" to "clandestine meetings" of air mail contractors at the Postoffice Department.

He said he finally found out the meeting place of one and "crashed the gate," was virtually invited to leave by W. P. MacCracken, former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for aviation, who seemed to be the presiding officer.

Henderson was asked to tell of the meeting McKee had described.

He said MacCracken, then representative of Western Air Express, acted as chairman. Invitations were extended by the Postmaster General, he said, to those who were then air mail contractors and those representing "sizable" air transport lines.

Brown Denies Burning Of Postoffice Records

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Former Postmaster General Walter Brown today declared that no official correspondence from his files had been destroyed prior to his leaving office, last March. Brown said:

"No activities of the Postoffice Department during my four years as its head warrant any criticism.

"All official correspondence in my files was left intact at the end of my tenure of office."

Regarding testimony of Paul Henderson, who was Second Assistant Postmaster General in the Coolidge administration, that some 6,000 miles of air mail contracts were awarded by Brown without competitive bidding, Brown said he had awarded the contracts in a perfectly legal way. Brown added that the government still was making appropriations to pay for mail carried under those contracts.

RUDY TO FIGHT FAY'S SUIT

tra I have traveled with them in many different states and in many different places.

"Any such charge as listed in the complaint filed against Mr. Vallee is ridiculous, as will be proved when the matter is brought into court."

Rudy Vallee said:

"I hope I never have to do it, but we may, however, be compelled to go into court.

"It may be necessary for us to answer her. We will do this not by making charges, but by letting Mrs. Vallee's voice speak for herself."

Mrs. Vallee at present is drawing $100 weekly under the terms of a settlement signed in March of last year. Vallee, she charged, deceived her at that time concerning his income, which she now claims was $350,000 yearly. His personal fortune is $3,000,000, she said in the suit filed here.

Alice Faye, named by Mrs. Vallee in her maintenance suit, first achieved fame as a singer with Vallee on his radio programs and has since signed a movie contract, appearing with Vallee in a picture now in production at the Fox studios.

Vallee, his wife charged, has "the sinister motive of divorcing the plaintiff for the purpose of marrying Alice Faye."

The singer, however, asserted as he waited at the movie studio for service of the maintenance papers that he has no definite plans for divorce.

SMITH UPHOLDS INTEREST IN POLITICS

Judges who take active part in politics in the interest of social justice, governmental economy and improvement of labor conditions are not to be criticized on the basis of the opinion that a jurist should remain out of political affairs, Judge Ralph H. Smith declared in an address last night at a testimonial dinner held in his honor in the William Penn Hotel.

More than 1,000 persons gathered to pay tribute to Judge Smith on the occasion of his thirty-fifth birthday.

A feature of the affair was the presentation to Attorney Joseph Richardson of his commission as County Court judge to succeed Judge M. A. Musmanno. The presentation was made by Duncan McCallum, secretary to Gov. Gifford Pinchot. Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot was the principal speaker of the evening.

NOTED SPEAKERS

John H. Adams, principal of Perry High School was the toastmaster. The speakers were Dr. J. Everett McClenahan, of Mercy Hospital; Judge Samuel H. Gardner; the Rev. Paul E. Campbell, superintendent of Pittsburgh Parochial schools; Coach John B. Sutherland, of Pitt; John G. Daub, past potentate of Syria Temple Shrine, and Gregory Zatkovich, local attorney, who presented Judge Smith with a radio.

Mrs. Pinchot in presenting the regards of her husband said that Allegheny County, had its Ralph Smith and New York had its Al Smith. She said she would not "trade Ralph for Al if the New York gang threw in its Empire State Building."

DEFENDS POLITICS

In his closing address Judge Smith said:

"Active interest in politics is neither offensive to the judicial temperament nor beneath the dignity of a judge. My present position as a judge is the result of the political energy, skill and tireless efforts of my friends. They worked hard to win in the intra-party political device known as a primary election and still harder to achieve victory in the intra-party political device known as a general election. The laws we daily interpret were enacted by men selected for the purpose through the same political processes. The enforcement and administration of these laws and in fact the continued existence of the courts depend upon these political processes. There is no human activity more closely interwoven with our every day affairs, the general welfare or the future progress and hope of the average man than politics."

"Social justice, slum eradication, governmental economy, abolition of child labor, the redistribution of wealth, the maintenance of a fair wage scale, the improvement of living conditions, the safeguarding of the ballot as the voice of a free people—all of these may be ethically sound and socially desirable, but they will remain forever in the dream of the idealist unless they are transmitted through the instrumentalities of practical politics into the living law of the day. . . . .

"No honest or honorable participation in politics can cast discredit upon a judge or interfere with the proper exercise of the judicial function. Political chicanery and dishonest or dishonorable political activity are just as reprehensible in a layman as in a judge."

Creating a New Judge at Dinner for Another

JUDGE RALPH H. SMITH JUDGE JOSEPH A. RICHARDSON DUNCAN C. M'CALLUM JUDGE RICHARDSON MRS. PINCHOT

Mutual good wishes between Judge Smith, honored with a banquet last night, and Attorney Richardson, formally appointed to the County Court bench when papers were presented at the same dinner. The First Lady of the Commonwealth as a satisfied witness to the presentation of Gov. Pinchot's papers making Attorney Richardson a judge. Mr. McCallum is the Governor's personal secretary.

3,000 PARADE WITH AIMEE

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Angelus Temple faithful, 3,000 strong, paraded downtown yesterday behind their spectacular leader, Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist of the four-square Gospel.

Hellelujahs and hosannas issued from hundreds of throats of marchers and passengers on floats in the three-mile long procession.

The occasion was the international Four-Square Gospel convention, in session for one week at the temple.

There was a Mexican float, a Negro float, and a float representing the Philippines. On the latter, Filipino boys strummed ukuleles.

POSTAL SITES STUDIED HERE

Eighty-three offers of postoffice branch sites in Oakland, Wilkinsburg and South Hills were opened today by M. V. Brown, postal inspector, of Pittsburgh, and F. P. Glanty, of Washington, engineer for the Treasury Department, acting as site agents.

The prices ranged from $10,000 to $80,000. From the list and any others that may be submitted the agents will recommend locations for branch postoffices in the three districts.

Among the Oakland sites offered was the present location in Meyran avenue owned by the J. J. Flannery estate at $80,000.

THREE IN JAIL IN MAN'S DEATH

Three men were in jail today, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death yesterday in the Woodville Hospital of Edward A. Aspell, 45, of Heidelberg.

An autopsy by the Coroner's office showed alcoholism as the cause of death. Reports that Aspell had been in a fight led County Detective Frank Ritz to investigate. He said the three admitted having beaten Aspell.

Those in custody are Peter Hoyson, Marion Wojcilchouski and Anthony Wymak. They will be given a hearing tomorrow before Justice of the Peace Phillip Hillen, of Heidelberg.

The will requested $10,000 be set aside for a daughter, Beatrice Kann Ruben, as an insurance fund.

Savory meat loaves and hamburg steak make hearty main dishes and are especially delicious when made with ground beef from McCanns. MAYOR NAMES WATER BOARD ASSESSORS

Decision of Mayor William N. McNair to name two Democrats on the Board of Water Assessors at $3,600 a year each sets aside a recommendation by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, the Mayor's budget representative, that those two positions be eliminated.

The Mayor named Harry F. Logsdon, Democratic chairman of the Fifteenth Ward, and Attorney Charles A. Poth to take the places of Lon Mackintosh, Republican chairman of the Thirtieth Ward, and John A. Collins. The veteran chairman of the board, James W. Gray, has been retained.

The announcements were made yesterday after Mrs. Smith had been in conference with the Mayor on budget matters. It gives further indication of the fact that pressure of job-seekers will make it hard for the new administration to cut out many jobs.

Mrs. Smith had suggested that in view of the limited duties of the board aside from the chairman, the work be delegated to the Director of the Department of Public Works and the Managing Engineer of the Bureau of Water at a nominal salary of $1 per year each.

Although Mayor McNair has said that he has not actually appointed A. G. Holmes and James A. Bortz to the positions on the Zoning Board of Adjustment held by James W. Cree, Jr., and W. C. Rice, it has been indicated from sources close to the Mayor that he still has that plan in mind.

CITY EMPLOYES RELIEF ENDS

The trustees of the City Employes' Relief Fund of Pittsburgh have voted to close up its affairs. The basis on which this will be done will be revealed later, according to C. S. Brown, president.

The fund was organized about 1921 as a volunteer society of city employes. An assessment of 50 cents was levied for each member who died, and beneficiaries received on an average of $500 for each death.

About 1930, the trustees entered into an agreement with an insurance company providing for the payment of $600 for each death, with the employes paying a premium of $1.50 per month.

This continued until May 23, 1933, when the insurance company submitted a new and higher schedule of premiums, the rates being increased according to age. Older members who found their rates multiplied by the change dropped out, and greatly reduced membership is said to be the cause of the fund's end.

REGISTER BILL SIGNING ASKED

Expressing concern over efforts to persuade Gov. Pinchot to veto the permanent registration bill, Commissioner C. C. McGovern has wired the Governor a plea for its passage. He stated:

"It is the unanimous judgment of all persons here sincerely interested in the subject that this bill, although not all that might be desired, sets up a thoroughly practicable and workable system which is a tremendous improvement over the existing one."

McGovern indicated that opposition to the bill came from Philadelphia in the fear that if Pittsburgh got permanent registration that city could not hold out long against it.

White Broadcloths naturally predominate, but there is an increased number of Colored Madrases and Broadcloths, this year, accurately proportioned to the trend of men's tastes toward color. All the fabrics are pre-shrunk, and every shirt is made in the Troy district, which assures the highest standard of shirt making workmanship in the country.

FARE CUT MOVE DELAYED BY COUNCIL

the City Solicitor to file a complaint with the Public Service Commission against the present 25-cent bus rate of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company, and directed that the Pittsburgh Railways Company report on any plans for lowering fares and improving services.

SEEK COST QUIZ

When these came up today in Finance Committee, Councilman W. A. Magee said:

"The obvious question of expense arises. There is no provision for an appropriation in these measures."

Councilman Thomas J. Gallagher, author of the bus fare measure, replied:

"Our object is to have the city solicitor investigate the cost of such action and inform us."

Councilman P. J. McArdle, chairman of the committee, interjected:

"Such legislation as is needed should be framed by the city solicitor and handed to Council with an estimate of cost."

Magee said:

"I think there is a way it can be done pretty cheaply. I understand the last Council was told it would cost the city $500,000 to fight a bus fare case beforse the Service Commission. I don't believe that. However, all this legislation is ineffective in that it does not provide for any expenditure."

ACTION DELAYED

Gallagher closed the discussion with:

"Our main purpose is to get some action in regard to motor bus transportation. Our people are paying more than the citizens of other cities."

Councilman John J. Kane presented a resolution placing the Finance Committee on record as opposed to use of federal public works funds in purchase of existing structures. It was aimed at the proposed purchase by the county of the Wabash bridge and tunnel.

Action was held up until the County Commissioners have been concluted. The Commissioners will be asked to explain their plan before Council.

On Councilman Magee's motion, Monday at 2:30 p. m. was fixed for a hearing of all persons interested in replacing the present contract system for collection and disposal of garbage and rubbish with a municipally owned and operated incinerating plant.

Attorney John J. Kennedy yesterday was named special assistant city solicitor in charge of untility litigation.

Volpe, Friend Held On Rum, Gun Case

Joseph Volpe, 19, brother of the three Volpe massacre victims, today was being held for court on charges of violating the state liquor laws and the firearms act. A companion, Carmine Marzo, 22, of 115 Cord street, Wilmerding, was held with him.

They were arraigned late yesterday before Alderman Frank T. Halleran, of 4205 Penn avenue. They were arrested by a state highway patrolman, who said he found 30 gallons of moonshine and a revolver in their automobile.

LaGuardia to Seek Lehman Compromise

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia announced today that he will go to Albany tomorrow to talk over with Governor Herbert H. Lehman, the controversy that has arisen between them over the LaGuardia request for dictatorial powers with which to deal with New York City's financial crisis.

Some sort of compromise appeared inevitable in the disagreement, the first major test of the new Fusion administration which ousted Tammany Hall from city hall.

Presbyterians Vote Down Revised Book

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Presbytery, by a 37-36 vote, yesterday defeated an overture recommending the adoption of the revised book of discipline proposed by the General Assembly.

Opponents, led chiefly by the Rev. Oswald T. Allis, of Westminster Seminary, and the Rev. J. Norris McDowell, contended the measure would give too much power to superior judiciatories—synods and the assembly.

McNair Shows Badge, Says He's Policeman

Frees 13 at Hearing In North Side Courtroom

Mayor McNair wore a policeman's badge, told of an impeachment threat and performed as a police magistrate, among other things, today.

But first he told of the threat. An anonymous telephone caller who said he represented the liquor interests called his home and accused the Mayor of "protecting a big politician who was in the liquor business."

TALKS OF DAUGHTER

But the Mayor said he wasn't protecting anybody. And he added:

"Betty, my daughter, said if I can get a superintendent of school job I should take it; it would be better for her."

In the hospital the Mayor advised Maguire not to leave today.

Maguire agreed with the Mayor's idea that they could take care of the hospital bill by selling single-tax pamphlets.

Then the Mayor turned back his coat lapel and revealed the policeman's badge:

"Look, Mr. Maguire, I'm a policeman—1,895 (the badge number), that's the year I graduated from high school. Do you need this badge, Mr. Maguire?"

RAP AT COUNCIL

The Mayor glanced at a newspaper:

"You know, Mr. Maguire, Council's working very hard; they hold a meeting once a week."

The Mayor departed. Then he revealed that he was going to be awarded a degree of doctor of philosophy at the next graduation of, he hinted, a Lutheran college. He said the college authorities admired the philosophy he exhibited yesterday at East End Police Court when he discharged 45 of 46 prisoners to face him.

The Mayor said he had heard reports he was to get a judge's job:

"Wouldn't Bob Garland (president of Council) like to fall into my Mayor's job? . . . Not so good, though; he would be too hard on the people."

ASSURED BY GARLAND

A few hours later McNair visited Garlanad and said Garland had assured him the city's financial condition was good.

The Mayor laughed when the perplexing public safety director's post was mentioned. He said that he and Mrs. Anne Felix, the defeated Democratic congressional candidate, had talked about John Henry, whom McNair defeated for the mayoralty nomination, for the job. He was still laughing as he said:

"You know Davie Lawrence county chairman) would say no to that . . . David Lawrence would say I ruined the party."

FREES ALL BUT TWO

In North Side Police Court 15 prisoners faced Patrolman No. 1,895. He discharged all but two.

One held over was Algernon Gibbs, young Negro, who didn't seem able to remember for whom he worked in the numbers racket.

The other was George White, a Negro, who explained that he had messed his wife up with a knife solely in self defense.

Six drunks were discharged. The Mayor seemed interested in whether they had been drinking legal whisky.

One gentleman said no, he had been drinking moonshine he had obtained in Preble avenue. The Mayor dropped the subject.

Another said he had got his stuff from a hip bootlegger in the produce yard.

The Mayor dropped the inquisition.

The Mayor advised another to write Gov. Pinchot complaining of the tax on liquor, also complaining that the stuff was too strong.

WITNESSES TIFF

There was a bit of a tiff between one drunk and a police sergeant. The sergeant accused the gentleman of drinking a cheap alcohol, but the accused maintained, with hurt feelings, that it was moonie.

While all this was going on McNair's assistant secretary, Theodore L. Moritz, disclosed that movie goers may have a look at the Mayor's single tax propositions in Mickey Mouse style if all goes well.

McNair plans to produce an animated cartoon illustrating the benefits of single tax. It will be financed privately, but Moritz did not say who would be the "angel." The plan is to present it in the theaters.

When he got to his office this morning, the Mayor shook hands all around with any who cared to stand in and near his office, and then dispatched William Abercrombie, superintendent of city buildings, to see the "mayor of shantytown."

Abercrombie was delegated to offer 10 city properties to citizens of shantytown for gardens.

The Mayor also did something about J. M. Wesoky, persistent applicant for that $4,000 advertising job which the Mayor wants to set up. His Honor arranged for Wesoky to make a speech before the Lions Club of Wilkinsburg.

DRIVE AGAINST SLUMS HERE SPURRED

Slum eradication and housing plans came to life today as various groups interested in a housing program prepared for the visit to Pittsburgh of Robert D. Kohn, director of housing of the Public Works Administration.

Kohn will be here Friday to attend a dinner to be given in his honor at the Hotel Schenley by the Pittsburgh Housing Association, the City Planning Commission and the Allied Architects of Pittsburgh.

Council will seek an appointment with Kohn.

It wants suggestions on slum eradication and the manner in which the city can obtain federal loans to put through the plans.

M'NAIR SEEKS DATE

Meanwhile, Mayor William Nissley McNair is seeking a luncheon date with Kohn, at which he hopes to discuss housing, particularly the program advanced by Contractor George E. Evans, who withdrew as Democratic councilmanic nominee last fall.

Evans has applied in Washington for a loan of $1,250,000, with which he would construct 220 houses on Brighton road, near Marshall avenue, North Side.

Eugene H. Klaber, chief of the technical staff of the housing division, has written for further details on the Evans plan, which calls for the transformation of the Georgian Land Company, a hitherto inactive corporation, into a limited dividend corporation in accordance with the federal housing program.

SITES KEPT SECRET

From other sources, however, it was learned that specific plans for projects in unrevealed locations here are on paper. The sites have never been announced lest land values of proposed sites there are boosted too high.

These plans Kohn will be asked to study while he is here.

Another group to confer with Kohn—if Kohn still has time—will be a "committee of representative citizens" Joseph P. Tufts, director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, is forming for the purpose at the suggestion of Administrator of Public Works Harold L. Ickes.

Sir Raymond Unwin, former technical director of housing in the British Ministry of Health, will also be a guest at the dinner, according to Tufts, as will John Ihlder, former Pittsburgh director and now consultant to the PWA housing division and secretary of the Washington, D. C., committee on housing.

City Studies Old 'Expo' For Convention Hall

McNair Asks Cost of Remodeling Arts Building

Immediate remodeling of a portion of the old Exposition Building for use as a huge exhibition hall today was being studied by city engineers upon recommendation of Mayor William N. McNair.

The action was urged by a convention committee which will lay the proposal before City Council when the engineers' report is ready. This action is expected tomorrow or Thursday.

The proposal was presented to McNair yesterday by A. J. Morgan, convention department manager of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, and Samuel K. Smith, convention department manager of the Hotel William Penn. The Mayor immediately indorsed the plan and had details outlined to Chief Engineer Charles M. Reppert, of the Department of Public Works. The engineers today started their estimate for remodeling and preparing the building.

Under the proposed plan the old arts building which stands between the old mechanical building and music hall, readily adapts itself to use for exhibition purposes, according to Morgan. It is now used for city garage purposes.

Little work other than renovating is needed, is was pointed out. The main hall will provide 36,000 square feet of exhibition space while the balcony offers 10 to 11 thousand additional square feet. Space for 300 exhibition booths, measuring 10 by 10 feet each, would be available, or the main floor could be converted with circus seats for boxing matches and such exhibitions into an auditorium with 10 to 12 thousand seating capacity.

The proposal, however, would call for partitioning a portion of the building into a meeting room for conventions with 700 to 1,000 capacity.

Morgan explained that approximately 25 large conventions now unable to consider Pittsourgh for a meeting place would be possible within the next three years. Citing the American Mining Congress, he said:

"While adequate exhibition space was available last year in its convention headquarters at the William Penn, this year we stand to lose the meet, which draws more than 3,000 delegates in normal times. The depression has forced exhibitions to be held on a small scale. An upward trend appears now and the congress has demands for exhibition space this year that cannot be met under the previous arrangements. It must have a large exhibition hall or will go elsewhere.

"This is only one of many conventions that cannot consider this city. Pittsburgh's one opportunity to secure increased convention business during the next two or three years depends on the exhibition hall. Organizations which have been getting small convention attendance now will center their meetings in the East until attendance is built up. During this period, Pittsburgh can share in a large part of these conventions."

Pinchot May Leave Hospital in Week

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot, of Pennsylvania, who is convalescing from an attack of shingles at St. Luke's Hospital, is making good progress and "doing nicely," his secretary said today.

The Governor hopes to leave the hospital in a week or 10 days.

CHECK RECORDS OF POLICEMEN

Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall today began a checkup of police and detectives to see if any has a criminal record.

Marshall disclosed he had received a complaint that a city detective had been tried and convicted. He said he would summon the detective to his office this afternoon and question him.

Demoted Captains Made Patrolmen

Thomas Gross and John Flavin, who were reduced from police captains to sub-patrolmen—lowest rank—yesterday were promoted today. Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall raised them to the status of regular patrolmen.

Marshall announced that, with Council's approval, the Police Department would return to the inspector's system. Inspectors will be named for each district and captains' titles will be eliminated.

MILLION IN TAX PAID TO CITY

The action of eight large corporations in paying 1934 taxes early has lifted the financial clouds at City Hall.

Talk of payless pay days has disappeared as more than $1,000,000 has come into the city treasury within the last few days from companies which have paid before they received the new tax bills. The receipts are more than sufficient to meet the payrolls for the last half of December, the first two weeks of January, as well as all interest charges due on city bonds, according to City Treasurer James P. Kirk.

Controller James P. Kerr is confident that tax statements now in the mails will bring in large additional revenue during the remainder of the month. Payments made in January are subject to a 2 per cent discount.

Park Not Advised Murren Will Quit

A report that George W. Murren plans to resign as chief county detective brought a statement today from District Attorney Andrew T. Park that Murren has not made known such an intention to him.

Park, returning to his office after a brief vacation, said the detective chief has been in poor health and was granted a two months' leave of absence. James McGinley, Murren's assistant, will be acting chief.

Public Safety Director Held Up for Week

Pittsburgh will not have a new Director of Public Safety before next week.

The director must be confirmed by Council at a regular session, and the next one will not be held until Monday.

When so informed Mayor McNair said:

"What! Is that all they do? What about Magee and his program? I won't ask for a special meeting. That's Council's business."

The Mayor, when asked if he intended submitting the name of James F. Malone as director next Monday, changed the subject.

EXCISE TAXES COST LESS TO COLLECT

The cost of collecting United States government taxes here, formerly $2.17 per $100, has had a drop during the 1933 fiscal year, it was learned today at the office of David L. Lawrence, Collector of Internal Revenue.

The drop was from $2.17 to $1.85 for each $100. It was due to the imposition of manufacturers sales tax, and taxes on gasoline, electrical energy, stamps on spirits and some beer tax.

The same organization was able to collect the new taxes and the old without increase in personnel, and at about 15 per cent less cost.

EASIER TO COLLECT

The additional taxes, it was indicated, are much easier to collect than income taxes, and cost much less. This, it was said, would be particularly true of a sales tax, because of the facility with which the government deals in a tax collecting way with the larger business establishments.

Mr. Lawrence today showed the ration of taxes collected to the tax dollar.

For the fiscal year of 1933, which terminated last June 30, it cost the government $1.85 to collect each $100. This ratio applied to the Pittsburgh area.

In the Twenty-third District, comprising 24 counties, 127 are employed to collect and handle the income, gasoline, electrical energy and manufacturers' sales taxes and issue stamps.

INCOME TAX DROP

For 1933 income taxes dropped 47 per cent over the previous year to a total of $17,380,295 for this district.

For 1933, the miscellaneous taxes increased 983 per cent. The total was $18,905,801.

This tremendous increase was due to the manufacturers, electric, spirits and beer taxes, although the latter was in effect only a few months.

The total of all taxes collected here for the period was $36,386,097—a net gain of 4 per cent over 1932.

The total sum collected made this district the twelfth in rank in the United States. And twelve other districts showed higher total gains than the Pittsburgh-area.

During the fiscal year, which ends June 30 next, additional taxes will be shown among the miscellaneous items. One of these will be the hog processing tax.

Junior Patrol Mail Box

JUNIOR PATROL PLEDGE

I promise to help children less fortunate than I am.
I promise to do my best to make my parents proud of me.
I promise to watch carefully when crossing streets and to aid other children in keeping out of danger.
I promise to study hard and do errands willingly.
I promise to be a 100% Junior Patrol member.
Signed .....
Date of Birth ..... Address .....
School .....

Address this pledge to the JUNIOR Patrol, Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa. Upon its receipt you will be registered as a member of the JUNIOR PATROL and will be forwarded a membership card and an official emblem.

You remember, fellows, yesterday one of our letters suggested that we should have a motto for the Junior Patrol Club. What do you say we have a little contest to get the best motto? Only Junior Patrol members, and that means any boy or girl who sends a signed pledge, is eligible to compete.

Start thinking up good mottos right away, fellows. We will give you just two examples: "World's best club for boys and girls." "Fun and fellowship to help others." You can think up lots better one probably.

Send them in. The boy who writes the best motto will have his name printed her in the Mail Box and so will the girl who writes the best one. Let's hear from all the captains.

Hurray, everybody! We have a new Junior Patrol club to announce today—captain is Sally Pritchard, of 3013 Bigelow boulevard. She writes:

"I am sending 13 pledges. Please send all buttons, cards and a captain's armband right away. We meet on Mondays. We have some very good singers in our club. We give programs so that other children can see how nice the Junior Patrol is and we charge 1 cent admission. They might think over this and join it themselves. Altogether we have 16 members now with myself."

We hope they do think it over and join themselves, too, Sally. You say you have some good singers? Please have them write and tell our radio program director what experience they have had and if they have ever taken any lessons.

We surely hope that your club is successful in every way. Be sure to write to us again and tell us what you do to help others and have fun yourselves. Giving shows is a great idea.

Now here is a letter from another new captain, Melvin Louis Goldburg, of 727 Broad avenue, Belle Vernon. He writes:

"I am sending in 10 pledges and have been elected captain. Kindly send us some information such as how often we are to elect officers and what else we are supposed to do. Also what to do with a member when he should give our signals to strangers.

You should elect officers once a year, Melvin. Most Junior Patrol clubs find lots to do. They give plays, sing songs, play games during their meetings, and do all they can to help others who need help—who are poor and sick and helpless.

If you have a member who gives away your secrets you should not let him come to your meetings any more and not consider him a member any more. Then you can have new secrets and signals so that he won't know them. You can probably get better ones anyway.

Lots of calls all this week asking about that mysterious flier, whose motor was heard all over New York when the storm first broke . . . It was believed he fell into the ocean and perished . . . The papers ran a brief note on him. He landed, it appears, at a Long Island field, took on gas, and took off again for the North. He didn't even know the concern he caused.

Add swelegant squelches: Al Shayne, who canaries at the King's Terrace, had one of those pests bothering him New Year's Eve. Al finally turned to the audience and said: "Ladies and gentlemen, I want you to look at that guy. This is the first time he has ever been in here and I assure you it is positively the last!" . . . He says the talk that he has reconciled with his wife is hooey . . . June McCloy phoned all the way from the West. Bernice Bernie will have a guest star tonight—Zimbalist! . . . Probably to get some free lessons on how to hold his fiddle . . . Elinor Davenport (don't know husband's tag, but she is socially prominent)—has gone to Maine to have her baby in peace . . . Sally Broomell, who used to be on The World, is taking over the press agent's post of the Camden, S. C., Chamber of Commerce . . . Virginia Biddle, former Follies dolly, is studying dramatic art, if you please . . . I thought the neatest holiday card was Bill Leeds'—class will tell . . . Said that Mussolini pinned a medal on a woman for being the mother of 19 children. It oughta come in handy, he says, as a safety pin.

We will have two Fridays, the 13th this year—in case you want to worry people . . . You may wise up the dictionary compilers that a word not yet in any book, column or index is "jiggler" . . . It is in general use, however, all over Wall Street, and it means an operator who gets calls and options on stocks at 2 points above the market and then "operates" or moves it up . . . That young man who wrote you months ago to have him arrested because he was going to kill his mother, was in. To say thanks. They put him in an observation ward, but he's all right now.

They are plotting to oust Ben Frank, of the Ambassador, in L. A., and if they do—it will never be the same. It is Ben, I think, who is responsible for its atmosphere and loveliness . . . Len Golos submits a simile: Sweet as a secretary's "Hello"—when her boss is in! . . . The 8th Assembly District Independent Democratic Club, which is the official Fusion organization in the Bronx, phoned . . . Said so many people confused them with the Fusion Club of the Bronx which you mentioned . . . The first mentioned distributed over 300 Xmas baskets and they want you to know the other club was not an official branch of the Fusion group.

The short wave mags wanted permission to reprint the piece you did on the your new radio. I said okay. Did they ever locate Flier Hall out of St. Louis? What a tense 10 minutes it was Tuesday night. Wish we could have heard the Department of Commerce sending out the general alarm for the poor guy—why didn't we? . . . I don't don't know how good this is at all—but there is a buzz about town that Lady Astor is supposed to be at the Waldorf incog . . . Under the name of Hamilton—perhaps it's someone who resembles her . . . Doris Groday, I hear, spurned a big offer to marry a prominent Chicagoan, Edward Simon, on Jan. 7 . . . Theodore Emerson, of the Enna Jettick millions, and Edna Breyman, nee Harvey, may have the knot knotted at Yuma one of these days . . . Both are in Cal. . . . The Archie Goettlers, he's the song-writer, have filed the papers, after talking about it so long . . . Ted Fiorita didn't marry as threatened.

Stephen Ames, Paul Ames, Sailing Baruch and others phoned all the way from Miami Beach—but I couldn't locate you . . . Just wanted to tease you by saying it is so balmy there—76 or 78 daily—and they hope you have frozen ears . . . Apropos of your paragraph on that lawyer who is preparing a feature called "Legal Oddities"—did you know Dick Hyman, who is Ripley's press agent, did "Laughs in the Law" for the Sunday Mirror over a year ago? Ran four instalments, too . . . The Palais Royal call for show girls brought over 400 of them. And they won't have to do nudes, either—it'll be mainly a gorgeous fashion show . . . Nothing else, except that Sally (fan dancer) Rand won't be able to dance for a long time. She sprained her wrist.

Joan, Lederer Have Play In Mind

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—If the studio will let her off, Joan Crawford is keen to make a footlight appearance in Hollywood with Francis Lederer, the Czecho-Slovakian star.

Joan was so enthused over the preview "A Man Of Two Worlds" that she joined in the throng of fans and waited to congratulate Lederer when he came out of the theater. Later on, it was her own idea that they do a play together.

She read the script of "Autumn Crocus," in which Lederer opens here Sunday, but it offers no suitable part for her.

The idea is not abandoned however. Both she and Lederer are reading plays to find the right vehicle. Once it is discovered, they will try to talk the studio into giving Joan a leave.

* * *

It is usually Cecil B. De Mille, who coins the bon mots when talking to interviewers.

Edwin Schallert, local scribe, turned the tables neatly, however, when the two were discussing the decline of sex pictures and of themes of the flesh.

"Yes," said Schallert, "the public is tired of staring at Lady Godiva; they want to see what the horse looks like."

* * *

The canine population of the Lupe Velez - Johnny Weissmuller menage has been suddenly decimated. Yesterday, Lupe called Johnny at the studio and bubbled excitedly that she had given away all the dogs but two Chihuahuas and Johnny's police pup.

Seems that all 13 of the animals got out on the lawn and started to dig for the same bone. Lupe and Johnny have a nice well in their yard now.

* * *

After being in and out of "The Baby in the Ice-Box" several times, Richard Ralston Arlen did his first work before the camera yesterday. The idea almost fell through because the Charles Rogers company wanted to work the baby in the morning. But the Arlen heir has a definite schedule before noon and Jobyna Ralston turned thumbs down. They've compromised now on 2 o'clock.

* * *

Ginger Rogers joined the victims of punches that were not pulled Thursday when the film heavy, J. Carroll Naish, socked her and she went down for the count. It was a scene in "Upper World" and she was supposed to fall into the arms of a waiting property man. Instead, she dropped like a log five feet in front of him, striking her head against a light standard on the way down. Even so, they didn't know she was out until the director told her to get up, and she didn't move.

* * *

Lenore Ulric has lost 15 pounds during her stay in Hollywood. She will leave for New York soon . . . It was all set for Jean Muir to play opposite Francis Lederer in local production of "Autumn Crocus," but the studio finally refused to let her off for 12 weeks. Jean is in a state about it . . . Miraculous, but Marlene Dietrich and Josef von Sternberg waited in line 15 minutes for a booth at Sardis. Maybe the fact that Joe's a stockholder eased his impatience . . . Anna Sten is hailed as the new sensation, but she's still a little bewildered about the film colony. When everybody else was whooping it up, she called Mae Clarke on the telephone and plaintively inquired: "What do you do in Hollywood on New Years Eve?" . . . Bill Powell and Margaret Lindsay were so engrossed that neither even looked up when a waitress dropped a whole tray of dishes in the Warner Brothers' commissary . . . Bill, incidentally, was largely responsible for Warner Brothers changing the title of his picture from "The King of Fashion." He didn't want to be typed as a dude . . . If you can believe Pat O'Brien, not even 11 process servers could have gotten through that Columbia team to the goal line.

* * *

Did you know that the local postoffice has just correctly delivered to Joe E. Brown a letter addressed simply with a drawing of a large mouth and the words, "Hollywood, California?"

Pitt Offering 'Scandals'

By ZORA D. UNKOVICH

George White is giving Pitt theatergoers a very generous money's worth this week with an abbreviated version of his "Scandals," which is packing not only the house, but the sidewalks. As usual, the "most beautiful show girls in the world" are drawing like honey.

If you didn't have the price of the "Scandals" when they charged high in another Pittsburgh theater some time ago, you can see many of the skits this week without straining your pocketbook, for the acts are all much as they were in their first Pittsburgh showing with the exception of a few stellar attractions.

Topping the bill in both ability and popularity is the dancing art of Lucille Page, whose versatility and finish in the opening performance yesterday, brought forth such applause as has not been heard in the Pitt this season. Not far behind her in appeal are the harmonizing Loomis Sisters, who sing and dance quite prettily.

The lawyer who's never lost a case comes in for some lampooning in Shaw and Lee's comedy skit, "Pay the Two Dollars," while "The Duel" has as its chief point of attraction Helen Spicer in military trousers. Shaw and Lee also have their specialty moment for accentric dancing.

Choruses are always naturally an important part of any George White show, and the girls in the present production are good-looking. They give a really effective black and white study in arm rhythm, and yet seem to lack spirit. Contrary to all traditions, too, they're very fully clothed, with the exception of the opening scene.

Ross MacLean takes the part of the preacher in "That's Why Darkies Were Born." More suited to his voice is "This Is the Missus," a duet with Gloria Mossman.

Filling out the time, you have the screen offering, "Above the Clouds," which has Robert Montgomery in the role of an adventurous young news-reeler.

Coming Films Noted

Irene Dunne and Clive Brooke are featured in "If I Were Free" photoplay opening tomorrow in the Enright.

* * *

"Berekely Square," with Leslie Howard in the same role that he created on the stage, will be in the Fulton, opening Thursday, Heather Angel playing the feminine lead. Inasmuch as this film is one that would be confusing, if not seen from the beginning, Manager Cool advises patrons to arrive in time to be seated at any of the following hours for the beginning of the feature: 11:51 a. m., 1:51, 3:53, 5:55, 7:57 and 9:59 p. m.

* * *

Eddie Cantor, Ruth Etting and Gloria Stuart will be seen in "Roman Scandals," beginning Friday in the Penn. In it Eddie dreams that he is in ancient Rome, where he gets into plenty of trouble. It's a musical comedy.

* * *

"Counsellor at Law," with John Barrymore, Bebe Daniels and Doris Kenyon in featured roles, will open Friday in the Stanley. The story revolves about a lawyer and his activities and those of clients, associates, employes and his family.

* * *

"Little Women," starring Katharine Hepburn, who is chiefly aided by Joan Bennett, Frances Dee and Jean Parker, open Friday in the Davis and Sheridan Square. The picture is about the four sisters of long-beloved Louisa May Alcott tale.

* * *

Spencer Tracy and Loretta Young, in "Man's Castle," opening Friday in the Warner, portray a romance in a "Shanty Town." Eventually they are married.

Jaffe's Party In Variety

"George Jaffe's Anniversary Revue," current in the Variety, celebrating the twentieth anniversary of George Jaffe's entrance in the theatrical field, begins with a scene depicting an anniversary party. There is a replica of a cake containing 20 candles, with the entire cast of 25 principals and the ensemble of 20 girls, grouped around, singing "Happy Birthday to You." The whole production is in two acts and 44 scenes.

Jackie James, blonde, billed as the "Little Venus," is featured. She is an oriental and hula-hula dancer. There are four other blonde dancers, Bee Kellar, Esther Burt, Joan Barlow and Syd Burt. Madeline Moore, prima donna, is seen in a number of musical scenes, including, "Song of the Moon," "Pagan Love Song" and "Birds of a Feather." Paul Niles, tenor, supports Miss Moore in these sketches.

Comedy is sprinkled throughout the show. Headed by Eddie Kaplin, the comics include Eddie Lloyd, Lee Hickman and Billy Mifflin. Two of the featured comedy scenes are "Schoolroom" and "The Salesman."

Joe Cook's Fun Machines And Hoctor's Feet Make the Mare Go

By GEORGE SEIBEL

During the first three scenes of the "musical runaway" at the Nixon Theater last night, it looked as if "Hold Your Horses" was an unnecessary phrase. There wasn't anything speedy or spirited about those first 10 minutes. But when Joe Cook came on as a cabby, with a vehicle that was a cross between the Ark and the One-Hoss Shay, the fun began. And when Harriet Hoctor came on somewhat later, in ballet work such as has not been seen here since Adelaide Genee, the show was a winner.

Without Joe Cook and Harriet Hoctor it would not amount to much. True, Tom Patricola has a pair of legs that have lost none of their desperate angles. June O'Dea has something in her voice that makes it balm to the ear. Dave Chasen's grin is infectious as the measles in an orphan asylum. But it is Harriet Hoctor's aristocratic dancing and Joe Cook's plebeian clowning that make "Hold Your Horses" worth while.

Mr. Seibel

It is a production with many beautiful scenes, long wash-lines of gay costumes, music of much muscular prowess—but these can all be duplicated by the Broadway experts who have the recipe and the checkbook. There is no formula for Cook's Edisonian brainstorms and Harriet's fluttering feet.

THERE IS A PLOT

It might be said that the story is thin—but there is a plot. In the first act Broadway Joe, alias Giuseppe Cuoco, is elected Mayor of New York. In the second act the mustache gang tries to get him to sign a subway ordinance in which there is much honest graft.

These doings afford opportunity to introduce scenes inside of Rector's, in a Bowery joint, on the Casino stage while the Floradora Sextette is sextetting, on Coney Island where the new Mayor is giving a picnic, at the Flatiron corner on Broadway, in Central Park and in the subway. They dance the cotillion in the ballroom of the Waldorf Astoria, and they run the roulette wheel at Canfield's gambling palace.

All this is the work of Russel Crouse and Corey Ford, who are responsible for the book. It did not require such sturdy and ingenious technicians to construct so slender a bridge. Ascross the wobbly arches pass Lillian Russell and Diamond Jim, John L. Sullivan and Spike Ahearn, Oscar Hammerstein and other ancient worthies. But they are merely shadows.

Joe Cook is it.

HIS GREAT INVENTIONS

From Archimedes to Edison, he has all the inventors knocked into a cocked hat. One whole floor of the Patent Office must be taken up with his models, and half the basement must be filled with his caveats. If not the most amusing clown on our boards, he is the most ingenious and hard-working. Like Pooh-Bah, he is a whole city administration, with a different vest for each, and his horse Magnolia is worthy to feed between Bucephalus and Rosinante.

The audience is laughing most of the time while Cook is ladling out his menu. One musical travesty is uproarious in its mad pranks. And nearly all the time Dave Chasen, a sublime Harpo Marx, furnishes the appropriate background.

Artistically the highest note is struck when Harriet Hoctor and her ballet present the Flea Circus. Here is an original idea, carried through with much resourcefulness and skill. It alone is worth going to the Nixon to see—though in sheer beauty the first act ballet surpasses it.

Jack Anthony and Harry Rogers in an Italian duologue, Dorothy Dare in dashing dances, Frances Upton in some melodic bursts, Jerry Norris and Donnell O'Brian in bits of song, are among the clever and capable people in the large cast. A syndicate seems to have provided the music, which is of average brand. Lighting and costuming are brilliant—the dialogue is often banal—but Harriet Hoctor and Joe Cook are the show.

Romance

OHIO FUGITIVE TO RETURN

City detectives were in Lima, O., today to return Ernest Bananno, 30, formerly of Cleveland, to Pittsburgh to face indictments charging him with participation in three gasoline station robberies.

The indictments were returned in 1929 and Bananno fled, police said. He was captured in Cleveland and sentenced to the Ohio State Prison on charges preferred in the Ohio city. During the Ohio State prison fire in 1930 records of the indictment were burned and Bananno was released at the expiration of his term.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Same Interview—Two Ways.

AMBASSADOR HOTEL, LOS ANGELES, Cal.—I ran into Mae West yesterday. Mae's a celebrated screen star now, and they tell me that she heads the box office reports all over the nation. Until I met her the other afternoon, I hadn't seen her in some five years.

"Hello, Mae," I said. "You're looking fine."

"Yeah," she said, "I feel good. But I'm working hard, working very hard."

"Been a long time since we had a little chat," I said.

"Yeah," she said. "Yeah."

Silence.

"I'd like to bat out a yarn on you, Mae," I said, "but that's a tough job these days. I guess almost everything has been written about you."

"Yeah," she said. "That's right. Almost everything."

Silence.

"They tell me you're gone a little high hat, Mae," I said. "That's not true, is it?"

"No," she said. "Nothing to it, Mark. I'm just the same as when you knew me. Just the same. Little more success, that's all. But just the same."

Silence.

"Nothing much to tell me then, eh?" I said.

"No," she said. "Just working hard. That's all."

Silence.

"Okay, kid," I said. "I'll see you around. So long."

"So long," she said.

Silence . . .

* * *

That, then, was my actual conversation with Mae. I give it to you as it took place. But suppose I were a writer for one of those fan magazines that flood the country today. Suppose I had to write it in the fan style that the movie readers seem to like so much.

Well, in that case, the same interview would read something like this:

My heart was beating wildly. It was almost time for her to arrive. I knew that I shouldn't have been so excited and that it was silly of me to feel that way about a mere mortal. But I couldn't help myself, dear reader. I simply couldn't.

For I was about to meet—don't get excited, dear, dear reader. I'll tell you in a moment. I was about to meet, dear reader, Miss Mae West.

Do you wonder that I was nervous? How do you think you'd feel if you were about to meet such a glamorous and beautiful creature; the adored of the millions? Or you? Or you? Or you? Well, that's the way I felt, dear reader.

Before I knew it, she was beside me. She extended her hand to me. Her hand. It wasn't an ordinary hand. It was—it was—well, it was her hand.

"Oh, Miss West," I cried. "You look so beautiful. So very, very beautiful."

Her eyelids fluttered. From out of nowhere came the odor of an exotic incense. Then she talked. She talked to me, dear reader. I felt suddenly faint.

"I feel well," were her precious words, "but I'm tired. I have been striving so diligently to please my public. It is a difficult task. And I am weary."

Poor, dear adorable, sweet, lovable Mae West. It was easy to see, dear reader, that she was tired. You could see it in the curve of her delicate neck, in the heaving of her beautiful bosom, in the arches of her dainty feet. Poor, soft, clinging, misunderstood, divine Mae West.

"I know you're tired," I sympathized, "and I won't keep you long. But I represent 'Movie Hooey' and I want just a few words from you. Have you a message for your dear public?"

Her soft eyes grew softer.

"Dear 'Movie Hooey,'" she breathed. "How I love to read it in my private study just before I retire. But what can I add to all that has already been said? There has been so much. So very, very much."

Ah, dear reader, how sorry I felt for dear Mae West at that dear moment. She is able to say so much in so very few words. Can you understand the heartbreaks behind her simple statement that so very much has been written about her?

Wrong things have been said about dear Mae West. Writers without hearts have lied about her. It has all been so unfair; so unkind. Poor, angelic, sympathetic, calisthenic Mae West.

I leaned forward, dear reader.

"Just one more question, Miss West," I said, "and I will leave you to the solitude you love so well. Do you think—do you think that your great success has changed you any?"

She folded her hands across her bosom without much difficulty. Her lips trembled. Her eyes watered.

"Oh," she moaned, "why do people always ask me that one question? I haven't changed at all. I am the same, sweet, simple soul that I always was. I still dream of a little farm, somewhere far away. And I still dream of the right man who will take me to that farm and give me the one thing I have always wanted. A baby."

Think of it, dear reader. Mae West wants a baby. She's not the woman we see on the screen at all. She's just a little mother at heart. Ah, poor, poor, poor, poor Mae West.

I arose to go. I wanted to cause her no more suffering.

"Goodbye, dear Mae West," I said. "You have been marvelous to me, and I shall certainly tell the readers of 'Movie Hooey' all about it. Goodby."

"Goodby," was her penetrating reply. And before I knew what had happened she had shaken hands with me. Do you understand, dear reader? Mae West had shaken my hand. Oh, happiness! Oh, sensation!

Good Movies Sometimes Neglected

By MICHAEL SHAW

The National Board of Review has done one of those "Ten Best Films of the Year" things, and "Three-Cornered Moon" gets into the honor class.

This Claudette Colbert film, released at the tag-end of last summer, has yet to be shown in Pittsburgh (unless it was spirited silently into some neighborhood house, where we missed it).

Doubtless there was some reason for denying us a view of a picture highly admired in the East and starring the beauteous and popular Claudette. But the proceeding only heightens the mystery of the whole booking system to such a lay mind as ours.

"Three-Cornered Moon" is not the only case in point. There was "The Power and the Glory," one of last year's most interesting experiments, which never got downtown. The Harris Family finally put it on in East Liberty.

Surely pictures like these are worthier of presentation than some of those tiresome backstage affairs, of which we seem to have avoided not a single one.

Thank goodness, the Fulton is going to let us see "Berkeley Square" this week. It's on virtually all those "Ten Best of 1933" lists, and here it is 1934; but Leslie Howard is certainly better late than never.

* * *

All the pictures considered above are regular commercial productions with a fair chance of box-office success. What hope is there then of seeing the out-of-the-beaten-track things, like "M" and "Thunder Over Mexico?" The ordinary exhibitor would consider it suicide to book them, and perhaps rightly so.

"M," gruesome German murder story with dubbed-in English titles, was privately screened for a fortunate few here last summer, and apparently that was the end of that.

Nothing at all has been heard of "Thunder Over Mexico." Upton Sinclair's cutting from Eisenstein's silent film epic, which literally caused a riot among intellectuals at its premiere in Boston.

"Morgenrot," the German picture of undersea warfare; Rene Clair's idyls from France, and the latest drama-coated propaganda from the Soviets—all might have been seen at the Avenue Cinema, had the Avenue not folded last spring.

Maybe there is no demand for such things here. Yet if the Avenue had stressed an appeal to the town's intelligentsia rather than to various foreign-speaking groups, it might have had the success that has come to the "little" film theaters in New York, Philadelphia and Boston.

* * *

Frank Damis, Warner Brothers assistant general manager for the last year, is moving his family here from New York . . . Eddie Cantor's annual extravaganza is bound to give the Penn a big week. This time it's called "Roman Scandals," and the advance rushes indicate that it sets new standards in eye-filling beauty . . . Lynn Farnol, Samuel Goldwyn's ace publicity man, was here Saturday for a huddle with Mike Cullen on exploiting the Cantor opus. In the days when Cullen was with United Artists, he and Farnol covered a lot of the U. S. A. in the interests of such pictures as "Kid Boots," "Whoopee," and "The Bridge of San Luis Rey."

S. Tilden Stern, Warner Brothers art director, has his office walls covered with the grease-pencil drawings and designs for cocktail room murals that he will display at Wunderly's February 5. Stern did the Warner Theater murals . . . The Penn had a 73,000-week with "Dinner at Eight." This total admission figure is reached only about three times a year. Mae West's "I'm No Angel" was the last previous picture to do so well.

The sets for the tabloid "George White's Scandals," in the Pitt, were designed by the late Joseph Urban . . . And the set for the main scenes in "Man's Castle," opening at the Warner Friday, is an exact reproduction of the "depression camp" along the Hudson in New York City.

DENTIST KILLING ARREST LOOMS

PASADENA, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Analyzing clues surrounding a cryptic letter offering the "real truth" of the case for $5,000 and enclosing the victim's wrist watch, police today expected to make an arrest soon in the sensational murder of Dr. Leonard Siever, musician and dentist to the socially elite.

The letter and watch were received last week by Mrs. Frances Coen Cooke, young divorcee, who had a bridge engagement with the Russian-born bachelor dentist the night he was shot to death in a driveway near his office.

In disclosing receipt of the letter, police and District Attorney's investigators expressed belief that it was a "camouflage" attempt to send officers on a false trail.

Spanish War Vets To Install Henry

R. E. Henry will be installed as commander of Camp Alfred E. Hunt No. 1, United Spanish War Veterans, at exercises tomorrow night in Memorial Hall.

Department Commander William Best and George Deike, encampment committee chairman, will outline plans for the national encampment to be held here next August. The Sister Sylvia Auxiliary will hold its installation exercises on the same program.

Coaches Haul Pupils Pending Court Rule

Pending a decision by the Public Service Commission officials of the Oriole Motor Coach Company and the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company have agreed to transport Banksville public school students between their homes and the Beechview street car line.

The commission is expected to rule on the legality of the Oriole company transporting the students from their homes for a street car fare plus a 5-cent fare. Prior to the inauguration of this plan students walked to the car line, from where their fare was paid by the Board of Public Education.

AUTO PARKING SURVEY NEAR

Motorists who park in downtown streets tomorrow morning will be asked to give their reasons, as a part of a Bureau of Traffic Planning survey. Twenty-five CWA employes will be engaged in the survey.

Lewis M. McIntyre, city traffic engineer, explained the parked cars are not to be tagged, but the drivers will be asked to tell where they are going and why, whether to shop or work or for recreation.

A revision of parking rules is expected to result from the survey, according to the bureau. The workers will cover the downtown district in eight working days and then will be transferred to the East Liberty and North Side business sections.

WRIT PROTECTS COUNCILMAN

Dr. William J. McGill, newly elected councilman, took his seat in West Homestead Council under the protection of an injunction granted by Judge W. Heber Dithrich in Common Pleas Court yesterday.

These councilmen were chosen as officers: Robert S. Giles, president; George F. Lloyd, treasurer, and Wade G. Ewing, secretary.

Although John C. Sullivan received 200 more votes than any other candidate in the recent election, a certificate of election was granted to Dr. McGill as a result of the action of the return board. Sullivan's name appeared on the Republican ticket as John C. Sullivan and on the Independent ticket as John Sullivan. He took no action to have his votes consolidated and the return board declared McGill elected.

Pneumonia Fatal To Injured Man

Injured in the Clairton plant of the Carnegie Steel Company December 20, E. J. Laughlin, 55 of Mitchell avenue, Clairton, died last night in West Penn Hospital according to a morgue report. His death was due to pneumonia which developed following the injury.

6 NAVY PLANES READY FOR HOP

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Off for a hop to San Francisco and then a non-stop mass flight to Honolulu six giant Navy seaplanes leave here today with the commander-in-chief of the United States fleet as a passenger.

Admiral David F. Sellers will accompany the squadron only to San Francisco, aboard the plane of Lieut Commander Kneffler McGinnes, in charge of the flight. The start of the hop north was set for 8 a. m. (P. S. T.)

Commander McGinnis said the 2,400-mile flight from San Francisco to Honolulu, the first by any aircraft in winter and the longest hop attempted by a seaplane squadron, may start Thursday.

Six Navy vessels, spaced at 200-mile intervals have been ordered to position along the route. Each plane will carry a food supply sufficient for several days and will be equipped with a collapsible rubber boat.

Now get Primary VITAMIN A

It has been added to SmithBros. Cough Syrup

Misery, money . . . this new discovery may save you both! An astounding advance has been made in the treatment of coughs and colds.

Not just a new drug or antiseptic. The way has been discovered to use Nature's own weapon in fighting coughs and colds.

This weapon is Primary Vitamin A . . . the "Anti-Infective" Vitamin. Eminent medical authorities have long recognized its importance. But, up to September 1932, Primary Vitamin A was so rare that it cost $11,000 lb.

It seems almost unbelievable—but it is true. Now you can get Primary Vitamin A—concentrated quantities of it—in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup . . . at no extra cost to you!

Primary Vitamin A in Smith Brothers Cough Syrup does two wonderful things:

It aids Nature in DRIVING the cough and cold out of the system faster. And it raises your resistance against re-infection with new coughs and colds.

Quicker cough recovery . . . fewer coughs and colds . . . that, in plain English, is what Vitamin A can do for you. And the ONLY cough syrup containing Vitamin A is Smith Brothers.

The Vitamin A benefits are in addition to the fast cough relief that Smith Brothers' gives you. It soothes the throat . . . loosens phlegm . . . clears the air passages. Get a bottle today! (only 35¢). Lift the burden of coughs and colds!

Note to Doctors: 10,000 A.D.M.A. units of Vitamin A (Biologically tested Carotene) have been added to every bottle of Smith Brothers Cough Syrup. For literature please write Smith Bros., Poughkeepsie, N. Y.

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

More men attended the second art exhibition at the Junior League rooms yesterday afternoon than the first one. Yesterday the exhibit was of flower paintings, tapestries and woodcarvings from the Tenth to the Twentieth Century. And again sherry was served, and tea for those who wished it, and sandwiches. Among the men, who nearly outnumbered the women in attendance this time, was Paul Mellon.

Junior League members were there to receive the guests, of course (the exhibits are being sponsored by the arts and interests committee of the league, you know), and Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson's dress was particularly unusual. It was of bright green wool, with a very wide and rippling revers of black velvet almost suggesting a jacket from the front, and she wore with it a small black hat.

Smart Gowns Chosen by Society Spectators

Mrs. T. Howe Nimick's afternoon dress of pebbled crepe was of the palest green, with horizontal loops of gold beads festooning the high neckline and the belt in front. Lydia Irish was in rust crepe and Mrs. George L. Craig, Jr., in red crepe. Royal blue crepe with soft bows of the material over the shoulders was the choice of Mrs. W. McCook Reed, and a black wool suit with a black satin blouse, that of Mrs. Raymond Ford Moreland, who was wearing one of the new off-the-face hats of black felt.

Mrs. Henry E. Scott, another Junior Leaguer, wore bright red wool, and Eliza Boyd wore a black crepe dress with demure frills of narrow pleated white pique around the neckline and just above the elbows. Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby was also in black, and Mrs. W. Dudley Livingston, up from Sewickley, wore a tailored brown woolen suit.

Miss Chalfant Poured At League's Exhibit-Tea

Mrs. John A. Murtland was there, too, in black, and Mrs. Thomas Wurts. Rosamound Fitch's frock was of pebbled crepe in a brown and white tweed design, with which she wore a brown turban having a perky veil.

I noticed Emily Stewart, too, and Genevieve Bell, in turquoise crepe made with high cowl drapery at the neck, and tiny buttons down the back of the bodice.

West Penn Hospital Cot Club To Meet

The board of directors of the West Penn Hospital Cot Club will meet tomorrow at the hospital. The members will sew and have luncheon, and then the reports of the committees will be read.

The cot club takes entire charge of the children's ward, by the way, and makes all of the small patients' nightdresses and jackets, and as they have from 45 to 50 cots always, they are kept very busy, indeed. Although no date has been set yet, the board is planning a big anniversary affair.

Harriet Wainwright At Palm Springs

Wintering at Palm Springs, Cal., is Harriet Wainwright, daughter of Mrs. Harris E. Wainwright, of Beechwood boulevard. She is with her aunt, Mrs. H. W. Ward, of La Jolla, Cal., at Desert Inn, Palm Springs. Later Harriet will go to La Jolla with her aunt.

Behind Scenes of NRA Sewickley Club Topic

"Behind the Scenes of the NRA, or the Private Life of the Blue Eagle," was the subject Drew Pearson, co-author of "Washington Merry Go Round," gave his talk before the Sewickley Valley Woman's Club yesterday in the Edgeworth Club. Mr. Pearson sketched briefly the presidential cabinet and the personalities behind the NRA, particularly Gen. Hugh Johnson.

The speaker believes that recognition of Russia by the United States has at least temporarily halted Japan's designs against that country. He holds that President Roosevelt, who went into office with only the thought of recovery in his mind, is now more bent upon reconstruction—building up the economic fabric of the country so that present conditions may never recur.

Dorothy Kerr Betrothed To Dr. John O. Stewart

The engagement of Miss Dorothy Kerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Kerr, of Washington avenue, to Dr. John O. Stewart, was announced at a bridge party her cousin, Miss Virginia Kerr, daughter of Mrs. Thomas R. Kerr, of Oakmont, gave in her home recently.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Allegheny College, and is a member of Alpha Gamma Delta. Her fiance is a graduate of the University of Pittsburgh Dental School, and is a member of the Delta Sigma Delta Fraternity.

Former Press Club Head To Visit Here for Week

Mrs. Madeline Young Love, a former president of the Women's Press Club, who is now living in New York, will arrive in Pittsburgh Thursday morning for a week's visit. Another former president, Miss Marion Brunot Haymaker, who is spending the winter in Pittsburgh, has taken an apartment in the Dithridge.

The club had its January meeting and tea yesterday in the Woman's City Club, Miss Mary L. Hay presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Anne Ryan Lesh.

East End Girl Marries in Hotel

Mr. and Mrs. Simon Monheim, of North Negley avenue, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Edith Monheim, to Samuel Viess, son of H. Viess, of Glassport. The ceremony took place at 2:30 o'clock the afternoon of December 24 in the Hotel Schenley. Officiating was Rabbi B. A. Lichter, before an altar of palms and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of green satin with a green hat and carried calla lilies. Her sister, Mrs. N. L. Stearns, as matron of honor, wore gold colored crepe with brown accessories and carried talisman roses. Joseph Viess, of New York, was his brother's best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Viess left for Southern California and New Mexico and will return about January 15.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keefer, of Sharpsburg, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Irene Keefer, to Elmer F. Schafer, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. P. Schafer, of the North Side, at a tea on Saturday given in the Keefer home.

Anne Brown Picks Date To Wed

Miss Anne Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Moses Brown, of Raleigh street, has selected Sunday, January 28, as the date for her marriage to Joseph Goldston, son of Mrs. Rebecca Goldston, of Pittburgh.

Miss Brown was guest of honor at a bridge and luncheon Sunday afternoon, given by her sister-in-law, Mrs. William Brown and Mrs. David Lipschutz, in Mrs. Brown's home in Raleigh street. There were six tables of bridge.

Spanish War Auxiliary Will Install Officers

The joint installation of newly elected and appointed officers of Sister Sylvia Auxiliary No. 10 and Capt. Alfred E. Hunt Camp No. 1, U. S. W. V., will be held tomorrow night at 8:30 o'clock in Soldiers and Sailors Memorial Hall, East End.

Mayfair Set Appearing More in Informal Garb

More and more at the theater, the smart set comes attired informally, particularly if there has been some event late in the afternoon, such as the Junior League pre-view.

The B. F. Joneses III and Mrs. Jones' sisters, Fredericka and Margaret Holdship, arrived together at the Nixon last night for "Hold Your Horses." All were in street clothes.

The Aiken W. Fishers were there, with Mrs. Fisher in black crepe; the Nelson Vance Harpers with Mrs. Harper in pale grey crepe; Elizabeth Jenkins in black crepe and her mother, Mrs. T. C. Jenkins, in black and white crepe.

Barbara Verner appeared in a white satin-ribbed crepe gown with a red belt and red slippers; Jane Sloan in black crepe; Katharine MacCloskey in white lace with a cream velvet wrap; Mrs. F. I. Merrick in black crepe and white lace with a panelled skirt.

Mrs. William A. Duckham's velvet gown had a slit skirt. With the dress she wore a black and white cameo pendant. With her was Mr. Duckham.

Others there were Mrs. A. P. Woolfolk in pansy-blue satin, Mrs. Dorwin Donnelly in black chiffon and lace; Mrs. J. O. Burgwin in blue crepe and a white fur wrap, Mrs. Henry Clay Bughman, Jr., in a street costume. Her young daughter, Betty wore a royal blue crepe gown with the smart dropped-shoulder line, and a tri-cornered cape.

Now's your chance to catch up on your correspondence (laggards that you are!) For one of the stores is offering fountain pens with really truly 14-karat gold points nowadays at only 99c! Self filling, of course, and done up in all colors.

* * *

No longer need your permanent leave you curled up so tight that you can't get your feet on the floor! And you needn't mortgage your budget for weeks to come either!

Because—one of the hightytightiest beauty salons in town is offering their extremely fine $7.50 permanent for $5—the FIRST FOUR DAYS OF EACH WEEK IN THIS MONTH! And this is not to be sneezed at, over, or upon!

Too . . . they have a super extra creature there who is noted far and wide for his really intelligent hair cutting (and having heard lamentations on this matter before, we think you'll appreciate this information!)

* * *

Clattery-bang . . . that's merely little us falling flat over the new kitchen-ware which is just out of its wrappings at one of the stores (that's how NEW it is!)

Beautiful new enamel-ware . . . of famous make . . . and done up in RED this time, with chromium lids! And what housewife wouldn't take a new lease on stewing and brewing when it was done in one of these!

* * *

When we see alligator handbags for high sums we think that 'tis but the "nature of the beast."

BUT . . . when we run across genuine alligator 4-eyelet tie shoes for $3.85 only . . . we conclude that someone has run amuck when making out the price tags!

HOWEVER . . . in this case, they haven't! For it's true that these beautiful shoes are to be sold at this exceptionally low price. Splendid for town trotting on bright days and weepy ones. In all sizes and widths . . . with Continental heels.

* * *

There are sifter styles . . . double compacts . . . "thinsies" (flatter n' pancakes)! And, of course, the designs are as varied as the styles! Some of cloisonee effect . . . some of luxurious-looking enamels . . . modernistic blobs . . . and shapes either round or oblong! Of course they SHOULD be up to $4.98 . . . but nothing's all it should be in this world! So they're 88c, instead!

When dabbling your stockings and panties in the family washbowl in the bathroom (and what female doesn't) . . . do you never wish that it were a LITTLE easier to use?

Apparently lots of women have voiced this opinion . . . for there is the cutest little washboard on the market now, designed for just such use! It has rubber suction do-jigs on its nether side, and sticks tight to the bowl. Making your rub-a-dub-dub-ing much easier. Of copper . . . and special now for $1 (used to be $1.25).

The afternoon speaker is Dr. N. Andrew N. Cleven, of the University of Pittsburgh. The County Choral, under the direction of Mrs. Robert L. Finlayson, is to make its bow on this program also, and will open with Mrs. F. F. Rohrer's setting for the Mary Stewart "Collect for Clubwomen."

Election of several officers will take place that day also.

Former Governor To Address Century

William E. Sweet, former Governor of Colorado, who is making an official tour of the larger cities in the country, will address an open meeting of the Twentieth Century Club at 10:45 Thursday morning, speaking on "The NRA: Its Plans and Purposes." The usual buffet luncheon for members and their guests will follow the talk.

In discussing "The New Deal in Italy" yesterday morning, Dr. Bruno Roselli declared the Italians are basically effeminate enough to love the man who "treats them rough once in a while"—meaning, of course, Mussolini.

No one can doubt that the new deal in Italy is really something new, and, whether it is successful or unsuccessful, it must be taken into account by any other nation groping its way out of the depression, he said.

While it may be a light that carries dynamite under its arm, Russia, Italy and Germany have a light in their eyes that does not exist in more conservative countries.

Italy's new deal faces realities and offers two forms of challenge to capital and labor. Fascism practices that "all men are created equal" and is "a government for the people, of the people and by the people;" it is a government by specialists, he said. Bolshevism needs propaganda, not so fascism, which has claimed no jurisdiction outside its own country. He called fascism "the idealism of practical nationalism."

Even the rivers are fascitized"—they can't run the way they always have, but have been rerouted and must go the way they will do the most good, Dr. Roselli remarked.

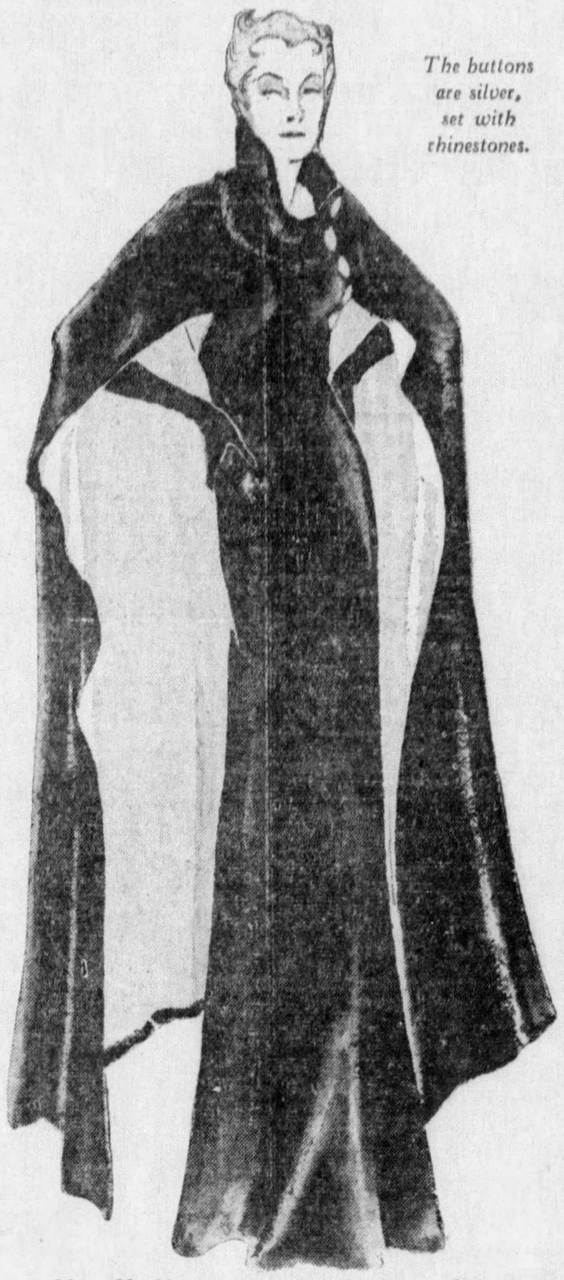
TOPPING THE MODE



The buttons are silver, set with rhinestones.

Mme. Mephisto, perhaps, the lady above. Anyway, her newest of all new evening wraps is distinctly dramatic, made of black Lyons velvet in a tightly fitted coat from which flares a full length back cape.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

NO MATTER WHERE parties are held these bright nights, the journey thither involves a Peacock Alley gantlet, and the result is the most varied line of lovely evening wraps that fashion has seen for some time.

The ford that is so good that it does not look like one is the Chesterfield effect in stiff black velvet. Everyone has one of those, no matter what else her budget has permitted.

* * *

JUST AS ATTRACTIVE is the Red Riding Hood sort of wrap, with its long, slim coat, and deep hood that can be worn over the coffure or thrown back to hang as a cowl. But this is a model for the youngish girl, whereas the Chesterfield knows no birthdays.

* * *

PORTIA WOULD HAVE approved another type of wrap which is proving popular. It has the coveted tubular lines, but it is given a lot of swank by long bishop sleeves, draped from a drop shoulder. The jabot collar of this model folds over close to the chin, and in it a woman looks mysteriously and alluringly concealed.

Mt. Lebanon Club Honors Head at Large Meeting

A large attendance marked the president's day meeting held yesterday by the Mt. Lebanon Woman's Club in honor of Mrs. Harold T. Hanson. It was the travel league's day and because of this the decorations consisted of the flags of many nations hung along the balcony and toy airships, trains and boats on the palm-decorated platform.

Mrs. Hanson greeted the guests, recognizing particularly the representatives from other organizations, many of whom were present, among them Mrs. Oliver J. Haller, president of the Congress of Clubs, who spoke briefly.

Mrs. Hanson also called attention to the fact that two of the visiting presidents, Mrs. Charles Goldthwaite, of the Forum, and Mrs. T. C. Cheeseman, of the South Hills College Club, are Mt. Lebanon Club members.

George A. Burrell, author of "An Engineer Looks at Russia," was the speaker and gave some of the highlights of Russian history in the 15 years since the country became Bolshevik. His surprise, he said, has not been at the many mistakes, some of them tragic, some ludicrous which have been made, but that more were not made. Russia will be the first country to be educated out of liquor, he said, for the youth of Russia does not want it.

Also on the program were two young musicians, William Stone, violin, and Earl Wild, piano, who played three numbers with fine musical feeling.

At the charmingly appointed tea table which was centered by a low mound of yellow roses and lavendar sweet peas with ivory tapers, Mrs. Robert Kunz and Mrs. W. W. Briant, Jr., presided.

WANTS THAT HAVE BEEN SATISFIED

As man has advanced through the ages his progress is but the history of his gratified desires. Institutions that filled man's wants survived—or, failing to do so, crumbled into dust.

Newer and more urgent needs created better methods—system—service—classification. System and Classification in this newspaper have been combined for your welfare.

Stars Fading From Radio Firmament

By AIRCASTER

In contrast with the ballyhoo that greets newcomers to radio is the secrecy and silence that prevail when names that were once household words are relegated to the legion of forgotten men—and women.

The new deal, where radio performers are concerned, has been under way at the National and Columbia headquarters for several weeks, whereby fresh talent is being imported, and old talent, which it has been difficult to sell, is slowly, but surely fading out.

Some of the stars are falling from the firmament after years of scintillation; others, as in the past, are waning, after enjoying only half a chance.

More sympathy is excited, perhaps, by the fading of those who once made good than the vanishment of those who merely flashed across the air.

FADEOUT

The relegation of four major artists at Columbia, and one at NBC within a week could scarcely go as unnoticed as the network chieftains had hoped.

The Columbia system has released Willard Robison, the Deep River orchestra genius, who has been tough to sell because his music is about 10 years ahea' of his time.

It has likewise relinquished Gladys Rice, Gypsy Nina, Theo Karle and Barbara Maurel, all gifted vocalists.

At NBC, Marcel Rodrigo, the Spanish baritone, who made his debut only recently, will go the way of all radio flesh on January 15—and through no fault of his own.

MORE TO GO

Half a dozen others will walk the plank this week, to make room for incoming talent. Down in the limbo of nearly-forgotten artists, who are waiting to be joined by the latest exodus, patiently smile performers as capable if not as readily salable as any who might be newly discovered.

Rubinoff, the Wiolinist, sends me a piece of publicity the ethics of which I question. It is a reprint of a fan letter he received. Quote:

"I have heard Mr. Spalding play some of your selections. He is good, but I still say Rubinoff has a musical feeling not every violinist has.

AN EXTRA JOB

Sammy Fuller (KDKA'S Uncle Sammy) has gone commercial with a bang. Or should I say with a wry face?

The makers of a cod-liver oil preparation are sponsoring the Kiddies' Club thrice weekly.

CBS is to try a stunt called "dancing around the world" within a week or so.

The idea is to make a short wave tour of the principal cities to pick up the music of the most popular dance organizations therein.

The start will be made in London, then on to Berlin, Paris, Vienna and into the East, probably winding up in South America. All stops will be rebroadcast in this country.

'MRS. ELY' KEEPS BRIDGE LEAD

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The field for the pair championship of the United States Bridge Association was narrowed to 28 teams early today. It was 3 a. m. when the last score was tabulated.

Fifty-seven boards were played and the final standing was an average of the two sessions.

Mrs. Ely Culbertson and Albert H. Morehead, leading at the halfway mark, maintained their advantage and finished with a score of 140.2, well above the next pair, Michael Gottlieb and Howard Schenken, of New York, with 128.5.

In order came H. D. Lent, Jr., and J. M. Rothschild, New York, with 112.9; Ely Culbertson and Theodore A. Lightner, with 109.6, and W. E. Brownback and C. C. Lockett, of St. Louis, with 103.8.

No favored team failed to make the grade with the exception of a pair comprising Whitner L. Cary and Commander Winfield Liggett, Jr., a well known player. They were out with only 91.1 points, but Cary protested the score on one hand, which may lead to a recapitulation tomorrow.

300th Anniversary Of Land Deal Marked

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The three hundredth anniversary of the occupation of land—now within the city of Philadelphia—purchased in 1633 by the Dutch from the Indians, was commemorated last night.

The anniversary was observed by a joint meeting of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Netherlands Society of Philadelphia, the Pennsylvania Society of Colonial Wars, the Genealogical Society of Pennsylvania and the Pennsylvania Society of Sons of the Revolution.

NAZIS ARREST PREACHER

DORTMUND, Germany, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The German government struck at a recalcitrant Protestant pastor today, taking the Rev. Bueltmeier into custody.

It was charged that he forbade giving the Hitler salute in church rooms and issued a circular against the incorporation of the Evangelical Church Youth Movement with the organization sponsored by the government.

As police banned three of eight scheduled meetings last night, the ministers who raised their voices against Mueller were careful to place the emphasis upon questions of faith.

Nevertheless, the Rev. Siegfried Knak did go so far as to declare:

"We serve Chancellor Hitler better than those who want to preach a diluted and humanized gospel."

FRANK & SEDER

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

No more will we be able to broadcast that the Mayor is complaining because he hasn't a real honest to goodness dish of schnitz and knepp since he has been a resident of Pittsburgh.

We made that announcement once and then many of the good Pennsylvania Dutch housewives who have migrated to Pittsburgh from Central and Eastern Pennsylvania counties responded with invitations.

Of course the Mayor could not accept all the invitations, but in all likelihood he will appear tonight at the schnitz and knepp dinner given downtown by Globe Trotter Mrs. James A. Storch, of Carrick. It looks like it will be a gala occasion. There will be about 60 guests, which include those of the Mayor's cabinet who wish to take part in the tasty Pennsylvania Dutch repast.

There is more than a wish to gratify Mr. McNair's palate behind the dinner this evening. There is a sentimental reason as well. Mrs. Storch's mother, who passed away a year ago, was celebrated among Northumberland Countians for her artistic preparation and service of the dish. This dinner will serve as a memorial to her.

D. A. E., Wilmerding: Marriage laws are passed by State Legislatures and not by Congress. Therefore each state has different requirements. In Pennsylvania a girl or boy must be 21 years old to obtain a marriage license by themselves. If one is or both are younger the consent of parents or guardian must be obtained. Of course, many times young couples romantically inclined, who have forgotten to take their parents in their confidence often add a few years to their actual ages when before the license clerk.

Mechanic Denies Murdering Youth

COLUMBIA, S. C., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Robert H. Wiles pleaded not guilty yesterday to a charge of murder of Hubbard H. Harris, Jr., 15-year-old Columbia schoolboy.

The 46-year-old mechanic, who already had confessed kidnaping and beating the youth to death, was brought under a heavy guard from the state penitentiary to the court room. Thursday was tentatively fixed for the trial.

Is This Too Good for Your Cough?

Creomulsion may be a better help than you need. It combines seven major helps in one—the best helps known to science. It is made for quick relief, for safety.

Mild coughs often yield to lesser helps. No one can tell. No one knows which factor will do most for any certain cough. So careful people, more and more, are using Creomulsion for any cough that starts.

The cost is a little more than a single help. But your druggist guarantees it, so it costs nothing if it fails to bring you quick relief. Coughs are danger signals. For safety's sake, deal with them in the best way known.

Junior Patrol Sailing for South Pole

To be sure, the Pole may turn out to be their mother's clothes pole, and the boat may sail on dry land, but the Junior Patrollers, bless their hearts, have imagination.

Listen in to them tomorrow, (Wednesday) afternoon at 4:45, over WCAE, and join their thrilling, make-believe expedition to Little America in the wake of Admiral Byrd and his intrepid explorers.

Junior Patrol Ensemble: Old Folks at Home.
May Florence Freker—Vocal solo.
Trio: Old Black Joe.
George Walsh—Vocal solo.
Trio: Way Down Upon the Swanee River.
Junior Patrol Ensemble: My Old Kentucky Home.

The Best GRAY HAIR REMEDY IS MADE AT HOME

You can now make at home a better gray hair remedy than you can buy, by following this simple recipe: To half pint of water add one ounce bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and one-fourth ounce of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it yourself at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained.

Barbo imparts color to streaked, faded or gray hair, makes it soft and glossy and takes years off your looks. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off. Do not be handicapped by gray hair now when it is so economical and easy to get rid of it in your own home.

When Your Cough Hangs On, Mix This at Home

Saves Good Money! No Cooking!

If you want the best cough remedy that money can buy, mix it at home. It costs very little, yet it's the most reliable, quick-acting medicine you ever used. The way it takes hold of stubborn coughs, giving immediate relief, is astonishing.

Any druggist can supply you with 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. To make syrup, use 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, and stir a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. It's no trouble at all, and gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money—a real family supply. Keeps perfectly and tastes fine.

It is surprising how quickly this loosens the germ-laden phlegm, soothes and heals the inflamed membranes, clears the air passages, and thus ends a severe cough in a hurry.

Pinex is a compound of Norway Pine, in concentrated form, the most reliable healing agent for severe coughs. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

U.S. CONCERNED OVER FLOOD OF JAP GOODS

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Despite tariff barriers, Japan is flooding American markets with cheaply-made products at a rate rapidly becoming alarming to President Roosevelt and his administration.

More than a score of products in daily use in homes are being piled on our shores in steadily increasing quantities, at prices far below cost of manufacture here, records in government departments reveal.

SERIOUS SITUATION

So serious is this economic invasion that President Roosevelt has acted three times by executive order in an effort to stem it. The customs division of the Treasury Department has acted independently of the Chief Executive on eight products from Japan.

Low living standards, bare existence wages for labor, and currency fluctuations have provided rungs for the ladder by which Japan is scaling American tariff walls. The result has been to keep many American workers unemployed and factories closed.

In some cases Japan lands goods here, including cost, shipping, tariff and profit, at as much as 90 per cent under American manufacturing cost.

GOVERNMENT FIGURES

Government statistics on Japanese imports indicates the situation is more grave than two years ago, when a series of anti-dumping orders were issued to stop the influx. The export control board set up by Japan as a gesture to this country, apparently has not functioned effectively from America's standpoint except in minor instances.

President Roosevelt has ordered tariff commission investigations of imports from Japan of rag rugs, pencils and matches. These are intended to provide data on which the President can exercise his power to increase tariff rates up to 50 per cent without congressional action.

REBELS ROUTED NEAR FOOCHOW

NANKING, China, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—National government forces, in a sweeping advance over Kukien Province rebels, fought their way today within 25 miles of Foochow, capital of the province, Nanking military leaders claimed.

All of the rebel chiefs were in flight, it was said, with the exception of Gen. Tsai Ting-Kai, commander of the 19th Route Army and chairman of the Fukien military council.

On the basis of these reported developments National government leaders predicted the early overthrow of the revolutionary movement centered in Foochow.

Noted Japs Stricken In Epidemic of Flu

TOKIO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Two cabinet members and the commander-in-chief of the Japanese navy's combined fleet today joined War Minister Sadeo Araki among those suffering from influenza in an epidemic which newspapers estimate is causing 90 deaths daily.

The greater part of the population of Tokio is wearing "flu masks" such as those seen in the United States in the winter of 1918-1919.

RUSH KILLING 80 LAID TO LIQUOR

KYOTO, Japan, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Liquor was held largely responsible by railway authorities today for a panic in which 80 persons lost their lives.

The authorities said unsteady drinkers of sake caused the commotion in the Kyoto Railway Station yesterday which resulted in an uncontrollable stampede. Liquor, they added, increased the crowd's unruliness.

Scores of persons were crushed and suffocated at the foot of a packed stairway when one, falling, cried out, and the crowd broke into a mad, shifting mass.

JAPS TO BUILD NAVY TO LIMIT

International News Service.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Japan will be the only power to build up to full treaty strength in naval vessels by the end of 1936, according to naval circles here today.

England, it is pointed out, will have full strength in tonnage, but with numerous old ships, while the United States will be below strength in six-inch gun ships.

Hector C. Bywater, naval correspondent of the Daily Telegraph, in forecasting Britain's 1934 naval building program, says the cost will be spread over three or four years.

He predicts the 1934 program will provide for the construction of two cruisers of 9,000 tons, two cruisers of 7,000 or 5,200 tons, an aircraft carrier over 10,000 tons, two flotilla leaders, 16 destroyers, four convoy sloops, two ocean submarines and four coastal submarines.

Japanese Expansion Perils Italy's Plans

LONDON, Jan. 9.—(Universal.)—Japan's commercial penetration into Abyssinia, heretofore under Italian economic commercial domination, is one of the chief reasons for the Italian-Natal reporter's outburst against Japan's imperialistic policies in Asia and the Pacific, according to the London News-Chronicle, Liberal newspaper.

It is declared that Prince Ridy Alaya of Abyssinia is going to Tokio in the spring to marry one of ten Japaneses women selected for his choice.

SPURS NATION ON DEFENSE

Staff Correspondent.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Jan. 9.—Pleading eloquently for adequate national defense, Col William H. Neblett, Los Angeles law partner of Senator William G. McAdoo, principal speaker at the Jackson Day dinner sponsored by the Democratic County Central Committee at the San Diego Club last night, concluded with:

"To develop a Jackson to shake the nation out of its policy of defenseless lethargy into one of an enlightened machine defense is the hope of us who have given our thought to the problem."

Col. Neblett declared that world opinion believes that the United States, with its wealth and resources, cannot escape participation in the war to which the nations are looking forward. He added:

"Any program of reconstruction for this country will be vitally deficient which does not take into account our national defense.

"William Randolph Hearst, in the expression of his far-seeing policies for the nation, always has been a staunch advocate of an adequate national defense. Not later than this morning, in an editorial in his newspapers, he sets up 'invincible national defense' as part of a patriotic program."

JAPAN BUILDING SECRET 'SUB'

International News Service.

TOKIO, Jan. 9.—The Japanese Navy is constructing a combination submarine depot ship and aircraft carrier, employing secret devices, unlike any other vessel in the world, International News Service learned exclusively today.

The ship is the Taige. It will have two eight-inch guns mounted underneath one of its decks, ordinarily invisible, but ready to be brought out for instant action.

It also is designed to be easily converted into a "Class B" aircraft carrier with a capacity of a score or more pursuit planes.

PRIEST BLAMES KLAN DISORDER ON SLEUTH

Council, Burgess Row As Audience Jeers And Cheers

Fired by Burgess Paul Ingram when he took office the first of the year, he was reinstated last night by a vote of 7 to 1 at a tumultuous reorganization meeting held by Council in the borough high school and an hour later was again suspended.

Father Curtin

Several hundred residents heard the Rev. William P. Curtin, of St. James Roman Catholic Church in Sewickley, flay Barclay's character. He charged him with association with the bloody Ku Klux Klan parade in Carnegie, with the hanging of a Negro man, and with the kidnaping of a 4-year-old girl.

Many in the crowded hall cheered Burgess Ingram when he declared "the people did not want Barclay" and that he was going to fire him just as soon as Council put him back in office.

SUSPENDED AGAIN

After the meeting the Burgess went to the police station and gave Sergt. H. E. Eolde the second written dismissal of Barclay, telling him to deliver it to the chief.

It read:

"You are hereby suspended without pay for cause until the next meeting of Council,"

"I'm going to stick it out—I'm not a quitter. There's going to be somebody else quitting.

"I'm going to take charge of the police department at the request of Council. Burgess Ingram can do what he wants about it, I'm listening to Council."

TURBULENT MEETING

Never in its history has the little Ohio Valley community seen as fiery, turbulent and outspoken Council meeting. Council President James C. Chaplin, who is president of the Colonial Trust Company, and police had to quell the cheers and jeers of the audience time and time again.

Mrs. Margaret Shearer and Thomas H. Drynan, new Council members were sworn in when the meeting opened.

All borough officers were reappointed. They include the following: John Hiteshew, borough manager; R. D. Richey, vice president; Edmund Ellerton, secretary; W. G. Davis, treasurer, and R. S. Doughty, street commissioner.

NEW OFFICIALS INDUCTED BY BOROUGHS

Reorganization of Councils Reflects Election Upsets

Reverberations of last November's political upsets echoed over many of Allegheny County's boroughs last night as their governing bodies met in reorganization meetings.

In many instances established claims to political leadership were sent into the discard, or at least severely tested, as the various newly elected councilmanic groups ushered in a new regime.

In general, peace and quiet marked the session of the new governing bodies. They included:

AVALON

Avalon Council elected Bruce Park chairman. The group will meet again Friday night.

BELLEVUE

Bellevue Council elected Samuel B. Rheam chairman. Charles E. Braden was re-elected treasurer and Philip S. Strain secretary. Council will meet again tomorrow night.

WILKINSBURG

A crowd that packed the Wilkinsburg Municipal Building cheered the re-appointment of Police Chief James Harris at the organization meeting of the borough council. The former chief, Wallace Bishop, supported by Postmaster William Turner, received three votes in the Council election. Dr. George Kirkpatrick was re-elected head of the body.

EAST PITTSBURGH

Three old patrolmen were dropped and six new ones were added to the East Pittsburgh Police Department at the reorganization meeting of Council last night.

Police Chief William McCoy was demoted to day desk sergeant, and in his place Council elected Michael Tansey.

GLASSPORT

All former employes of the Borough of Glassport were reappointed or elected. Burgess Seward Gross presided at the Council meeting, which saw three new members inducted into office.

Councilman Samuel G. Ferguson, a holdover, was named as the Council's new head, replacing George F. Pforsich, defeated at the last election. Joseph Hornbeck, newly elected councilman, failed in his effort to have new borough officers elected by the body.

James H. McClure, after pleading other business made it impossible for him to continue as borough solicitor, was relieved of his duties. J. R. Schwerh was elected in his place.

MILLVALE

David Iseman was re-elected chairman of Millvale Council. Mike Quinlin was re-elected borough clerk and Philip Mitzel was re-appointed chief of police.

WHITAKER

Joseph Carter was chosen president of the new Whitaker Council. George A. Taylor was named secretary and Herbert Riheldaffer treasurer. Council also elected Theodore Rushi chief of police and Robert Faucett captain. Rushi

Cost of Operating County's 250 Agencies Tremendous Drain on Taxpayer's Purse

Millions Go Annually To Vast Army of Collectors

Forty-two and one-half million dollars is paid out annually by the residents of Allegheny County in wages and salaries to more than 25,000 persons engaged in governmental or school work under the direction of nearly 250 separate and distinct taxing bodies.

And this tremendous figure includes only the salaries paid out in the county, the total cost of operating the governments and schools here totaling more than SEVENTY MILLION DOLLARS annually.

On the basis of the 1930 census, Allegheny County has a population of 1,374,310, and at present there are 25,619 persons engaged in regular work and drawing regular salaries from school and local governmental taxes. This figure does not include the many thousands of persons put to work in emergency projects.

Local welfare organizations estimate that there are approximately 300,000 families in the county. It takes but little mathematics to reveal that one out of every 12 family wage earners is living on tax money. This means that your family and 10 other families must support the family of some payroller.

250 UNIT STAFFS

Each of the approximate 250 taxing units in the county must have its own secretary, its solicitor, its treasurer, its auditors and its tax collector. In some instances in this county there are school districts where there are more school directors than teachers.

Others where there is not one single school or teacher and here, too, the school directors must have its own secretary, treasurer, auditor and collector, all paid out of taxes.

Allegheny County, like every other county in the commonwealth has many instances of duplication. The outstanding example of this is the duplicate assessment in Pittsburgh of all real estate. It is estimated that the double assessment is costing the taxpayers at least $100,000 annually. An additional $10,000 could be saved each year through elimination of the duplicate assessment now existing in the cities of McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton.

Figures provided by the local branch of the National Economy League show that during the last five years approximately $60,101.87 was spent to appraise Pittsburgh property after it had once been assessed.

AN ARMY OF MORE THAN FIVE THOUSAND COLLECTORS IS NOW COLLECTING TAXES IN PENNSYLVANIA.

It is estimated that in Pennsylvania a saving of between three and four million dollars could be brought about annually through establishment of a central receiver of taxes in each county.

EXPENSIVE COLLECTION

In 1931 the county delinquent tax collector earned himself more than ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS for collecting about two million dollars. In this year nearly eight hundred thousand dollars went into the pockets of about 150 collectors scattered throughout the county for collecting taxes.

The foregoing duplications are only two of more than a dozen cases where local taxpayers are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars in duplications and useless forms of governmental services.

Taking Pennsylvania as a whole, taxes have increased about 49 per cent during the period 1923-1931. The proportion of this increase, according to the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, is as follows:

County, 52 per cent; city, 56 per cent; borough, 33 per cent; township, 41 per cent; school, 46 per cent, and poor, 44 per cent.

Many years ago Benjamin Franklin said:

"In this world, nothing is certain but death and taxes."

Today the individual taxpayer realizes that taxes have become a very personal and painful matter. The mounting tax bill has brought the individual taxpayer to wonder where his tax money goes and how it is spent. The mounting lists of delinquents offers a warning and makes the property owner realize that only drastic economy in the use of public funds in every governmental unit will save a situation that may easily become critical.

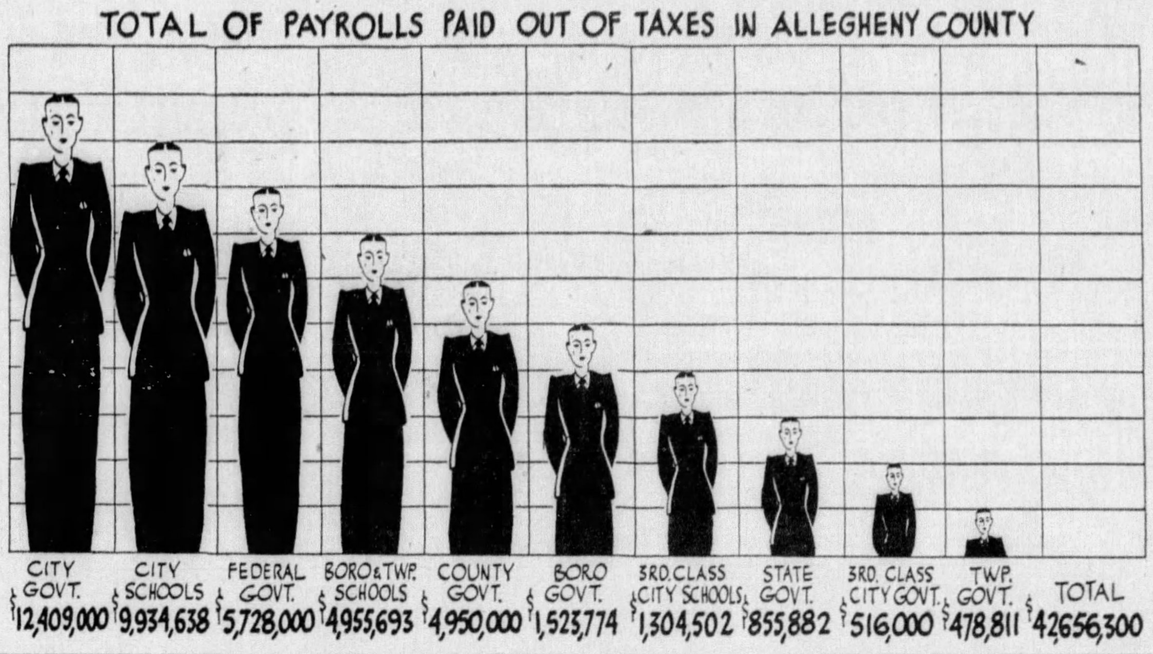
ECONOMISTS' VIEWS

Economists point out that the way to decrease the cost of government is to simplify our organization, consolidate overlapping units, modernize operating methods and eliminate all useless and unnecessary activities.

Pennsylvania, as will every other state in the Union, will be the battleground during the next 12 months, in the war against high taxes and old-fashioned government. Taxpaying groups, civic organizations and economists have rallied to the aid of the overburdened taxpayer and the lawmakers of every state will be called upon to enact new laws, simplifying our government and to cut down the enormous cost of operation.

Dr. Leonard P. Fox, president of the Pennsylvania State Chamber of Commerce, has pledged that during 1934 Pennsylvania residents are to be made tax conscious through a state-wide drive to slash costs of local governments. The fight of the state organization will be outlined next month at the annual convention in Harrisburg.

TOTAL OF PAYROLLS PAID OUT OF TAXES IN ALLEGHENY COUNTY



Davis Urges Dropping Many Useless Bureaus

Cut Out Luxuries, Senator's Economy Solution

A constitutional convention should be called immediately to reorganize the entire governmental structure of Pennsylvania and the many municipalities and sub-divisions within the commonwealth, United States Senator James J. Davis believes.

Sen. Davis

Senator Davis is of the opinion that between fifty and one hundred million dollars could be saved annually in this state through merging of bureaus and elimination of useless and duplicating agencies.

The Pittsburgh statesman declared that the people of Pennsylvania have been tinkering with the constitution long enough through proposed amendments. He said that the many amendments offered at election only serve to clutter up the real issues of state being voted on by the residents of the commonwealth. He is of the firm belief that a constitutional convention should be held to make drastic changes in our present day government.

Senator Davis also said:

"We cannot raise more taxes in Pennsylvania. We must now raise money to provide for the needy, disabled and blind, as provided for in the recent social service legislation. We can do this only by cutting out luxuries to pay for necessities."

Senator Davis said he believed the federal government should be the modern employer. He declared today:

"We should do away with unnecessary luxuries, useless agencies, wasteful bureaus from the very top of our governmental structure, to the smallest political sub-division."

'NUMBER' RAIDS TRAP 14

State police raided two alleged numbers headquarters in McKeesport last night and 14 persons are held for court, each on $500 bond, as a result of the raids.

The first raid was in a confectionery store at 602 Fifth avenue, believed to have been operated by Matt Fulmer. Shortly afterward the state police raided another confectionery store at 110 Market street, believed to have been maintained by William Duffy. In each establishment a large quantity of numbers books were confiscated, the raiders said.

Those arrested were given hearings a short time after the raids before Justice of the Peace Bernard Volk, of Versailles Township.

The eight held for court who were arrested at the Fifth avenue address were Fulmer, Alma McShone, Vivian Johnson, Alfred Gopplel, Sam Carr, Charles Rafferty and Herbert Dixon and Spurgeon Jones, both Negroes. All were charged with operating a lottery.

Those arrested at the Market street address and held for court were Duffy, Joseph Ratz, Clyde Croush, Jr.; Samuel Washington, Negro; Al Vaughn, Negro, and Anthoney Vanedelli.

EXPLAINS ROAD MAN SHIFT

The transfer of a right-of-way man on the Stoops Ferry road to a Highway Department position, which he never filled, was revealed today by the County Controller's records.

The action was taken November 2 because, according to County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, the man, Joseph E. Formichella, a graduate engineer, was thought better suited to a position of painting supervisor in the Highway Department.

According to the Controller's records, Formichella has received no pay in that position. As right-of-way man on the road he worked under the Department of Claims and Investigations.

The County Commissioners recently ordered an audit of the Stoops Ferry road, said to have cost an excessive $100,000 and characterized by McGovern as "engineering debauchery." In a letter then made public, McGovern stated the road had been built under supervision of the Commissioners and particularly of himself.

Homestead Police Vet Is Found Dead in Bed

John Mostyn, 52, a veteran Homestead police officer, was found dead in bed at his home at 345 West Thirteenth avenue early today, according to a Coroner's report.

He had been a member of the Homestead police force for more than 20 years. He leaves his wife and one daughter.

Congress Gives France 'The Bird' And It's No Eagle

All tariffs seem to be as protective and as annoying as itchy underwear.

We have a big commercial skirmish on with France right now and we seem to be eating at the second table.

Last month our gorgeous system of reciprocity was hooted in the French Chamber of Deputies. Last week our own Congress gave France the bird and we don't mean the Blue Eagle.

The international catcall and the domestic Bronx cheer are valuable as condensed negatives.

We advise young high school orators to study this new form of forensic argumentation.

'DISOWNED GIRL' FIGHTS WILL OF FATHER

$300,000 Suit Opens In Erie Against Nagle Estate

ERIE, Pa., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Suing the estate of Theodore M. Nagle for $300,000 damages because his will denied she was his daughter, Theodora M. Nagle produced court records today to show that Nagle agreed to pay stipulated monthly sums for her support as his daughter.

A jury was completed yesterday to hear the suit.

In his unusual will, which was filed after his death, in 1925, the man who once was reputed to be worth more than $10,000,000 stated:

"I have two children only—Daughter Edith, Son Baily . . . Should any other persons claim such relation to me and claim a right to participate in distribution of my estate, the claim would be fraud, and I direct that no compromise be entered into, under any conditions or circumstances, with anyone claiming such relationship, but such fraudulent claim should be resisted to the last, the money necessary to carry out these instructions, of course, to be paid out of my estate."

Nagle was 85 at the time of death. He manufactured Corliss and Nagle engines and boilers.

Miss Nagel is 36. A birth certificate, showing her to be the daughter of Agnes Whitman Nagle and Nagle, her mother's marriage license and the record of a $60,000 cash settlement made upon her mother by Nagle after their separation, are included in the evidence she will introduce.

Her attorneys pointed out she is not seeking to participate in the estate, but seeks the money as damages for the implications contained in the will.

At a recent hearing Judge Thomas P. Trimble, of the Pittsburgh Orphans Court, described Nagle's will as a "memorial of wrath" against women. He said the former German immigrant had "no respect" for woman and termed Miss Nagle "innocent." He expressed the opinion that she was Nagle's daughter.

Judge James Burnett, of Juniata, Perry County, is presiding at the trial.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

RIVERSIDE, Cal., Jan. 9.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph.

Among the society notes of Rochester, Minn., I see where Dr. Cary Grayson, of Washington, arrived at Mayo's road house. Admiral Grayson was President Wilson's private physician.

Will Rogers

Scare him, Charley, but don't hurt him, for he is the liked man in Washington, the best story teller, raises good horses, and is personal physician to Senator Carter Glass' fighting roosters.

President Wilson used his sense of humor when he made the doctor an admiral. Doc had never been on any water bigger than Culpepper Creek, and he forded it horseback on a possum hunt.

You Mayo boys get doc to tell you about when he and Jesse Jones, of the RFC, got into Buckingham Palace with President Wilson, and Jesse took off his shoes in the reception hall and was warming his feet by the king's fireside.

Yours,
WILL.

MISS ELEANOR BREEN . . . GOLD'S 'GOOD' IN CRYSTAL WARE

Trade Exhibition Draws Buyers From All U. S.

That the buying public is awaiting something new was agreed at the annual trade show of the Associated Glass and Pottery Manufacturers now being held in the Fort Pitt Hotel. Independent dealers are exhibiting in the Hotel William Penn. The show, which is not open to the public, is drawing commercial buyers from throughout the country.

While prices in the general lines are 15 to 20 per cent higher, with exclusive ware increased as much as 40 per cent, a better demand for dinnerware is being evidenced than in several years. Glassware feels the influence of repeal with liquor sets getting the first attention. With the "Buy American" slogan before the buyers, the decline of the dollar in foreign countries is expected to influence a larger market for American-made ware.

The latest in dinnerware, a leader with the majority of china manufacturers, is the new treatment of the heretofore simple gold or silver band. The modernistic bright colors of red, green, gray and yellow are found in duplicate and triplicate bands.

MISS ANN TOOLE . . . POTTERY'S PLAIN, IVORY FAVORED

Fire Laddies Fail Lady And Dinner Bell Alarm

Mrs. Grote arranged the unique alarm system some time ago after having been visited by burglars. A wire was attached to an old-fashioned dinner bell hung in an apple tree in her back yard. The wire was brought in through a window and was within reach of Mrs. Grote's bed.

The firemen had agreed to respond in a jiffy when they heard the bell.

At 2 a. m. today Mrs. Grote reported she awoke and saw a prowler near her window on the second floor. She reached for the wire. She pulled it twice vigorously.

The "ding dong" of the old bell rang out on the stilly night. Then it toppled and fell to the ground.

The prowler took the alarm and fled through the same kitchen window by which he had entered. But no firemen appeared. They hadn't heard the bell, they said.

Mrs. Grote described the intruder as wearing a long overcoat and a soft hat.

DEALERS PROBE CONSTABLE 'RACKETS'

Rackets developed by some constables in assessing costs, election of three times as many justices of the peace in the county as needed, and assertions interpreted by Attorney William S. Doty as unauthorized practices, in an address last night before the Retail Credit Men's Association in McCreery's dining room, was followed by the appointment of a committee to study conditions and report back to the organization.

President David H. Goldman, who presided, named Col. Franklin Blackstone, chairman; C. Guy Ferguson, secretary, and Edgar J. Kaufmann, Walter Rosenbaum and Harry E. Wilson as members of the committee.

CITES FLOOD OF LAWS

Doty was the chairman of the law practice committee of the Allegheny County Bar Association. He called attention to the state's voluminous laws and remarked:

"If a man started to read the laws passed by the state up until 1920 it would take him more than 20 years, reading eight hours a day. I simply mention that to show you what some of the lawyers are up against to become practicing attorneys."

He warned against paying excessive mileage costs to constables and pointed out that a constable is only entitled to charge for one trip. Under the law he claimed that the execution of service shall be directed to the constable of the district where the defendant resides as to suits for debts. This charge on the mileage basis should not amount to more than one or two miles.

CHARGES EXCESS COSTS

He explained that if a suit is brought in McKeesport and the debtor lives in Sewickley, excess mileage is charged, all of which comes out of the pockets of the person sued. This, he contended, had developed into a racket. He added:

"There are three times as many justices of the peace as needed and constables and justices of the peace all try to make a living on fees. Abuses will continue until 'squires get a salary.'"

MILES BRYAN STILL BOSS

The Miles Bryan faction still holds sway in McKees Rocks despite the fact that three Democratic members were installed at last night's reorganization meeting of Council.

Edward Reider, chief of the borough's police for years, was discharged at the meeting, but was immediately appointed street inspector. Michael F. Matsey, night captain of the force, was made chief, and C. W. Ashton, a patrolman, was named night captain.

C. B. Keebler, who was defeated in the recent election for Burgess by Dr. P. J. Henney, Democrat, was named President of Council. Keebler was appointed to Council by the Bryan faction to fill the vacancy of D. J. Buckley, who was elected Controller. Solicitor E. A. Sefler was replaced by Leo J. Aaron. The remainder of the borough's payroll remained the same. The new members of Council are John Chvastal, Vincent Vibella and Michael Pravlochak.

RELIEF SOCIETY IN NEW HOME

Unordered Goods Racket Again Active Here

Capt. Reuel Elton, manager of the Better Business Bureau, today warned that the unordered merchandise racket is again active. He said complaints received indicate an apparent attempt to revive the old racket of sending all types of unordered merchandise to businessmen and then trying to force payment.

Elton pointed out that the unordered merchandise plan has been used for the distribution of carbon paper, pencils, neckties, etc., and even so-called stock certificates. Businessmen are advised by the bureau that recipients of unordered merchandise are not obligated to return or pay for the goods.

Arnold Drops Two From 1934 Payroll

ARNOLD, Pa., Jan. 9.—Street Commissioner Michael Nee and Patrolman George Frickanise were dropped from the payroll by the new Council following its organization last night. Chief of Police Sherman Hill, two patrolmen and two desk sergeants were retained. Robert Barry was named the new Street Commissioner.

Sworn in as new members of Council were H. R. Gould, J. R. Baxter and Daniel Sullivan, Jr. A fourth member, Joseph Carroll, suffered a broken leg in an automobile accident and is in Citizens General Hospital.

REDUCED WAGE SCALE STAYS FOR COUNTY

County Commissioners intend to continue for 1934 the general salary scale established when a 15 per cent cut was made in employes' wages last year.

And they will test their right to inaugurate salary board action by arbitrarily reducing by $5 the salary of a guard in the Treasurer's office.

These were the developments as salary board sessions opened yesterday. The departments of the Treasurer, Register of Wills, Coroner and Recorder of Deeds were passed on. Court salaries were postponed until today, McGovern objecting to them as high. The matter will be discussed with the judges.

WOODSIDE BALKS

The session got off to a bad start with consideration of the Treasurer's department. Controller Robert G. Woodside refused to sit as secretary, contending salary board action was not legal unless called for by the elective head of a department.

Treasurer Robert S. Cain had made a 15 per cent reduction last year voluntarily and not because the Commissioners so ruled, Woodside said in defending his action.

The Commissioners made their chief clerk, Murray Snyder, temporary secretary, and set the salaries as of December 1, 1933. They cut $5 from the $144.50 monthly salary of a guard to allow the Treasurer a clear case to test the legal status of their salary action.

JUDGES FAVOR OLD PAY

In other departments considered, they continued the 15 per cent cut. Judge Richard A. Kennedy, however, representing County Court, said a majority of the judges had voted for a return of 1932 salary schedules.

Saying it would be an imposition on the public to allow the judiciary an increase over the general reduction effective through the county, Commissioner C. C. McGovern asked that the judges appear today for a discussion.

HELD FOR BAD BANK NOTES

Philip Baroway, 38, formerly of Pittsburgh, suspected of passing counterfeit $20 and $10 Federal Reserve Bank notes here shortly before the Christmas holidays, is under arrest in New York, according to word received today by Chief W. A. Landvoigt, of the United States Secret Service.

When taken into custody he was said to have had a large number of spurious bills in his possession. The arrest resulted from a description of the suspect and of his automobile sent by Chief Landvoight to New York and other cities.

Ten days ago two other men suspected of passing the same kind of spurious notes here before the Christmas holidays were arrested in Wooster, O. They gave their names as Donald Skinner, of Bucyrus, O., and Peter DeAngelo, of Brooklyn, N. Y. According to secret service operatives the two men have been partially identified by victims here through photographs.

It is expected that approximately 1,000 eggs will be laid every day. All will be sent free to the city hospitals.

POLICE SHAKEUP IN BRADDOCK

After the first meeting of Braddock Council, controlled by the Edward McDonough faction, but three of the men of the borough's police force held their jobs. McDonough, a former Braddock police lieutenant, is now a member of the borough's Council.

Braddock's government, long in the hands of the M. J. Verosky faction, was defeated by the McDonough organization in the November elections after a hard-fought political struggle.

At last night's meeting Lawrence Weber was elected president of Council. George B. McDonough was appointed borough secretary; John Crawford, assistant secretary; A. H. Woolridge, treasurer; G. M. Dillon, superintendent of public works; Lawrence Blasik, assistant superintendent of public works; Lee Kostman, borough solicitor, and Dr. Charles H. Clifford, borough physician.

Of the three men retained on the police force, R. J. Butler was appointed chief and John Bradley was promoted to desk sergeant. New officers appointed to the force were Joseph Stypulkowski, lieutenant; Thomas Meighan, detective; John Ridge, ordnance officer, and Francis Loughran and William Reichert, desk sergeants. Sixteen new patrolmen were also appointed.

FAIRBANKS, JR., BOUND ABROAD

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., plans to leave by airplane tonight for New York en route back to England after a few weeks visit here to play the lead in a movie production. He plans to board the steamer Ile De France at New York Saturday.

Young Fairbanks, admitted he is "exceedingly anxious to get back to" Gertrude Lawrence, British stage actress, but he had no comment to make on recent reports that they plan to marry after Joan Crawford, movie actress, obtains her final divorce decree from him here in May.

Miss Lawrence recently denied that she and the actor were altarbound.

BOROUGH OUSTS GOLLMAR

Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar was ousted as West View's borough solicitor and several of the borough's officials are out of jobs today as the aftermath of the West View Council reorganization meeting last night at which three new councilmen were inducted.

Gus A. Hendler, re-elected as councilman, was sworn in with the three new councilmen—Joseph L. Gahring, Ray V. Warren and J. R. Rankin.

Several minutes after the induction, Police Chief William Kaesmeier was demoted to patrolman; Health Officer Philip Schladenhaufen was given his position. C. A. McClain, borough secretary for 20 years, was ousted, and Wilson Blair was appointed in his stead. Charles Miller was appointed to fill the job formerly held by Harry J. Rahn, borough treasurer. T. J. Smith was made a policeman and William Martsolf was named street commissioner.

CWA EXPANDS OFFICE SPACE IN CITY

Shifting employment headquarters to 338 Third avenue today, the Civil Works Administration will add another office to its rapidly expanding organization. Registration of men seeking CWA jobs will begin at the new location tomorrow. Women applicants are still being received at the bureau at 108 Smithfield street.

Besides accepting applications, the new quarters will also be used as an inquiry and complaint center. It is expected the added space will relieve the crowded condition of other offices into which disappointed job seekers have streamed to voice their protests.

Care in the choosing of workers is impossible, according to Ralph W. Gibbs, employment director, except in the filling of important jobs. When an experienced and capable man is needed, he said, personal interviews are given the applicants.

The only means of checking those applying for laboring assignments is the information on the registration card. Detailed analysis of each case would require several thousand investigators. If a man gets a CWA job and is later found to be in no need of work, he will be removed, Gibbs said.

Those returned to the ranks of the unemployed by the completion of their project still have an opportunity of being reassigned to other work. They have as much chance, according to Gibbs, as the other 140,000 who have filed applications.

Assignments mailed from the bureau from Saturday night to last night numbered 1,692. Most of the workers notified are to report tomorrow. The largest single requisition was for 237 timekeepers.

CHOIR ROMANCE WINS DIVORCE FOR WIFE

Testifying that a church singer admitted being in love with Hugh G. Pearson, the latter's wife, Edna H. Pearson, 574 Oakwood street, Wilkinsburg, was granted a divorce yesterday by Judge Ralph H. Smith. Mrs. Pearson averred:

"My husband became enamoured of a singer in the choir of which he was a director and organist, and she confessed to me her love for my husband. My husband told me he wanted to rid himself of me and my little girl, and the time would come when I would see it was the sensible thing."

Mrs. Pearson told the court that for more than two years Pearson has been going out with girls. She had forgiven him three times, she said. She charged indignities.

TELLS OF ROW, WINS DIVORCE

Her father objected to the names his son-in-law called his wife's mother, remonstrated and received a black eye, Laura E. Reynolds, 1630 Rutherford avenue, Beechview, testified in her divorce suit against Clark Williams Reynolds.

Judge Ralph H. Smith granted Mrs. Reynolds a divorce on grounds of cruel and barbarous treatment, on account of the conduct of the husband toward his wife. The latter charged he stayed out late at night and made life miserable for her. Her mother, Mrs. Augusta Carver, was a witness.

Divorces also were granted to Bertha M. Haskier from Joe Haskier, Cecilia A. Shaffer from Charles F. Shaffer, Matilda H. Fisher from Roy H. Fisher, Jane Pashirer from Leo O. Pashirer, Florence M. Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, mix well. Add vanilla. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Bake in two greased 9-inch layer pans in moderate oven (350 degrees F.), 35 minutes. Spread Mocha Cream Frosting between layers and over cake.

MOCHA CREAM FROSTING

Three tablespoons butter.
Two teaspoons cocoa.
Three cups confectioner's sugar.
Three tablespoons strong coffee.

Cream butter thoroughly. Sift sugar and cocoa together. Add to butter gradually with coffee, until frosting is of right consistency to spread. Makes enough frosting to cover tops and sides of two 9-inch layers.

CLEANER-DYER CUT DENIED

No wage reduction among cleaners and dyers will be made in the local industry, it was definitely stated today by W. J. Mooney, chairman of the Cleaners' and Dyers' Association of Western Pennsylvania.

No reduction had been contemplated and no such notice given to the workers' union, he said, denying a meeting had been requested for last night. The meeting was announced by the union officers.

Mooney said that during the evening several of the union's officers telephoned asking to see him. He arranged to meet them, he said, and while the subject was discussed there was no formal meeting.

MOVE TO OUST SLIPPERY ROCK HEAD FAILS

BUTLER, Pa., Jan. 9.—A move by members of the board of trustees of Slippery Rock State Teachers' College to oust Dr. J. Linwood Eisenberg as president of the college, came to light here today.

It was learned the instruction committee composed of members of the board, notified Dr. Eisenberg, December 29, that his services would be discontinued, but yesterday the board as a whole voted 8 to 1 to continue him in office until June 1.

Dr. Eisenberg's contract has been renewed from year to year since 1917. Yesterday's action by the trustees leaves the way open for the board to terminate his connection at any time.

There was no intimation among the trustees as to the reason his removal is sought. Friends of the popular teachers' college head said the move had its basis in "jealousy and politics."

Despite the denial last week by Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller, of Pittsburgh, head of the instruction committee and chairman of the board of trustees, that Dr. Eisenberg had been notified he was to be dismissed, it was learned that she signed the instruction committee's letter of December 29.

O. K. Bingham, of Bridgeville, secretary of the board of trustees, said no formal charges nor complaints were made or discussed at yesterday's meeting.

CWA LAUNCHING SAFETY DRIVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The recent fatal accident to two CWA workers at the Cathedral of Learning in Pittsburgh has precipitated action by the Civil Works Administration in organizing a safety education campaign on CWA projects throughout the country.

Sidney J. Williams, who has been lent by the National Safety Council to organize safety first teams in the Federal Civil Works Administration, on completing a survey of the field, announced today that the number and character of accidents reported indicate that precautionary measures must be undertaken at once. He estimates that not more than 15 per cent of CWA workers have received any previous safety training.

He said:

"We must begin at the very beginning to educate our 4,000,000 employes in safety practices. The types of accidents reported corroborate our expectation that a large number of CWA workers are in poor condition physically or are soft and inexperienced in the kind of work they have been given."

Plans also were revealed in Harrisburg that the state is planning construction of airports in Claysville on the Pittsburgh-Columbus air line and on an emergency field at Clinton, Allegheny County.

RACETRACK FAN SUED BY WIFE

A personality that seemingly went over big at Tia Juana's race track didn't do so well in a home atmosphere, according to testimony today in the divorce action of Letty MacConnell Lyddon, of the King Edward annex, against Frank White Lyddon.

Jack MacConnell, brother of Mrs. Lyddon, told of being with his brother-in-law at Tia Juana. He said:

"Everybody seemed to know him, called him by his first name, and asked him to have a drink."

Mrs. Lyddon testified her husband drank excessively and that they quarreled over his associates. He wanted her to go out with his friends, but she refused, and one time he drew a gun and threatened to shoot her, she said.

Lyddon's address was given as Devonshire street, but the wife said he is in California. They were married in 1929 at Rochester, N. Y. The wife said Lyddon never contributed to her support and would not work after her mother obtained a job for him.

Civil Works Relief To End by May 1

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—(INS.)—Termination of all civil works throughout the country May 1 at the latest was set today by Harry L. Hopkins, federal administrator. If possible, he said, it should be ended by mid-April.

Even with the projected appropriation by Congress of $350,000,000, the amount needed to continue the program to that date, Hopkins said the Civil Works Administration will be "out of business by May 1, and perhaps sooner."

CWA MAN FINDS $10 ON JOB

Take it from M. M. Baker, of Sewickley, the Civil Works program is just fine.

Baker was out of work for quite some time until yesterday when he set out with a surveying crew on the CWA payroll. In all the time of unemployment, he hadn't had a single break. But yesterday—

Baker got ready to drive his first stake for the surveyors. There on the ground lay a $10 bill!

He thought that was enough of a break for one day, so when he finished the day's work, he told the boss:

"You don't need to pay me for today. I got it already."

And then he generously bought cigars and set'em up for the boys all around.

Eight years and 250,000 MILES without a grumble!

★

That's Mr. Searl's Record on AMOCO-GAS

★

WE have never been able to get excited over the temporary triumphs or achievements of ordinary premium or regular gasolines.

Having written special motor fuel history with AMOCO-GAS—the original—we have always felt that the real story of AMOCO-GAS could best be told by years of use and accrued mileage.

For AMOCO users are and always have been loyal users. Mr. Searl's experience is typical. Read what he has to say in his letter at the right:

"Eight years and 250,000 miles without a grumble"—that's the way Mr. Searl sums it up.

And we are glad to be able to tell Mr. Searl that now as "AMERICAN" Marches Ahead he can get AMOCO-GAS from Maine to Florida, and inland.

GENTLEMEN;

THIS LETTER MAY COME AS A SURPRISE, (A PLEASANT ONE I HOPE) BUT THERE ARE TOO MANY KNOCKS AND NOT ENOUGH PRAISES IN THIS RUSH-ABOUT DAY OF OURS. I AM GOING TO SET DOWN IN WORDS. WHAT I HONESTLY THINK.

MANY FRIENDSHIPS ARE NOT LASTING. THEY MAY MEAN WELL BUT DO NOT WEAR WELL. YOU KNOW THE KIND.

EIGHT YEARS AGO I ARRIVED IN WASHINGTON FROM THE WEST COAST AND WAS PROMPTLY INTRODUCED TO AMOCO-GAS. SINCE THEN I HAVE ENJOYED ITS FRIENDSHIP THROUGH SUMMER AND WINTER. WE HAVE TRAVELED TOGETHER OVER A QUARTER OF A MILLION MILES, IN A HALF DOZEN MAKES OF CARS, WITHOUT A GRUMBLE!

WITH OVER THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION MILES OF DRIVING, FROM MEXICO TO CANADA, WITH JULY DAYS IN DEATH VALLEY AND JANUARY DAYS IN THE CANADIAN MOUNTAINS, IN EIGHTEEN DIFFERENT CARS WITH ALMOST AS MANY NAME PLATES, YOU WOULD THINK I WOULD BE PARTICULAR! I AM! MY PURCHASES OF THOUSANDS OF GALLONS OF AMOCO-GAS PROVE IT.

I APPRECIATE THAT INTRODUCTION TO AMOCO-GAS AND ONLY REGRET IT IS NOT OBTAINABLE ALL OVER THE CONTINENT.

WITH SINCERE WISHES FOR YOUR CONTINUED SUCCESS.

Man Disapproves of Letting Girls Pay Own Way

Do "dutch treat" dates spoil boy friends?

And if Johnny can't afford to pay Jennie's way to a show, should they both stay home, or else go window shopping?

"Miss Twenty," brought this up. For a long time Jack and she had been that way about each other, and they were looking eagerly forward to the day when they could set up housekeeping in a little flat somewhere.

Then Jack lost his job. But she said that she was working; they could still take in a show now and then. She'd stand her part. He objected at first, but she had her way.

Now, although he's working again, she's still standing it—even to carfare. So she's beginning to wonder what she's let herself in for. Is he "just drifting," or is he stingy? And what shall she do?

"Tell him where to get off!" snorts Bill. "If you don't you're just a sap. You were a sap to pay your own way in the first place. And he was a palooka to let you!"

"I wouldn't worry a speck about 'hurting his feelings,'" Bill goes on. "The next time you go out, just don't hand him 'your part' of the money. And if he has the nerve to say anything, just smile and say sweetly, 'but you're working now.' That is, if you want to keep him after he has showed himself up the way he has. And if he makes any fuss, just hand him his hat and tell him goodby.

WOULD BE EMBARRASSED

"A guy who would do a stunt like that isn't worth bothering with. I wouldn't insult the Scotch by calling him a Scotchman. And if you marry him, he will probably bring the neighborhood wash home for you to do. If he can't enjoy your company without making you pay your own way, I'd say the sooner you get rid of him the better.

"Personally, I would feel pretty embarrassed if I took money from my girl friend to pay for her eats or her theater ticket. And I think that if a fellow can't pay for a meal or a show without his girl's help, it's up to him to stay at home.

"This bozo is just a cheap skate. So long as he was working and had an excuse to make her pay her way, he followed the usual custom because he couldn't do anything else; but now he thinks he's got a chance to get away with something, and he's making the best of it.

"Miss Twenty had better look out, or in a few years she'll find herself paying the rent and the grocer, and probably buying his suits, 'because he's short a few dollars.'

WOULDN'T GO PLACES

"I don't say that every fellow who goes 'Dutch Treat' when he's out of work is a heel. But the first thing a real man would have thought of, when he got work again, would have been to say, 'Well, dear, here's where we go out on me! And am I Proud!'

"But personally, I'd consider it beneath my dignity to let any girl pay her own way. There would be no 'going places' if I couldn't pay the tariff. That's flat!" BILL.

How about it, youngsters?

Do you agree with Bill?

But if you do—consider the girl. Suppose she wants to go? Must she give up all the fun of a dinner downtown or a movie, just because the Big Boy can't pay?

And is he a bum if he lets her buy her own ticket, when he can't?

What do you think, Joe? Pete? Alice? Clara?

Tender Devotion of Our Good Mothers Is Fay King's Theme

WE CAN'T REMEMBER WHAT A CONSTANT CARE WE WERE AS BABIES
MY GREATEST HAPPINESS IN CHILDHOOD WAS TO WATCH MY GIFTED YOUNG MOTHER DRAW!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When we scamper along in the rush hours, or sit in a great crowd, we can hardly realize that everyone about us was once a helpless infant.

We cannot remember the care we were as crying, teething infants. If we could, we would all appreciate, even more than most of us do, the devotion of our good mothers.

Personally I can remember what a sickly child I was. Not strong enough to play much with more robust children, and, as I had no sisters or brothers, my lovely mother devoted her time to me. She spent hours drawing pictures for me. She supplied me with pencils and tablets to fill with my own little scratchings. We laugh now to think I was really beginning a career!

Boys Change Avis' Mind About Seeing Noel Alone

For a startled second after Avis Arlen's astonishing request to see Noel alone there was not a sound in the dining room. I had thought I knew of what effrontery the girl was capable, but I realized that I had underestimated not only her determination, but her callousness as to the opinions of other people concerning her actions.

Noel's face was filled with embarrassment. I knew that his inclination was for a decisive if not brutal refusal of the request, but his breeding and instincts forbade rudeness to any woman. Yet I said to myself that if Avis were not blind as the proverbial bat, she could not help seeing the aversion to her which his face was mirroring, as well as the appeal for aid which his eyes were sending Mary.

But Mary, according to the code of the modern girl, could make but one answer, and she made it promptly. Once, goaded beyond endurance by the efforts Avis was making to lure Noel from his allegiance, she had lost control of her temper and frightened Avis almost into hysterics. I had been a witness later to her humiliated contrition for the outburst, and knew that henceforth she would stick to the "line" she was now using.

"Why, of course, darling," she said sweetly, smiling at Avis. "Talk to him as long as you like. I haven't begun to censor his time yet, you know."

VAIN ENJOYMENT

"But I have." I begun when my words fortunately were drowned by a wild and apparently sincere protest from Bob, who rushed around the table and caught Avis' arm.

"Not on your golden wedding day!" he declared vehemently. "This guy has gone and got him a wife, almost. He'll be an old married man after tomorrow. And that eliminates him from competition. No sweet tete-a-tetes for him. It's against the rules of the union.

"Come away with me, fair maiden, and tell me your troubles. If it's anything Noel ought to know, I'll relay it to him and bring you his answer back. But if you think Ron and I are going to let some old, doddering, almost Benedict take up your time when we're fighting over options on it, then you have another guess coming. Eh, Ron?"

"Surest thing, you know," Ronald agreed, lounging up and ranging himself upon the girl's other side. "We have a sort of gentlemen's agreement with each other to fight hourly duels over your smiles, the loser to stay away for the hour. But it's for bachelors only. We might allow Bill and Hank a look-in, but Noel, so nearly a spouse? Never!"

Avis looked from one to the other, dimpling and smiling in apparent vain enjoyment of their foolery. But there was a very different look in her eyes as she let their gazes rest in quick succession upon Marion's face, upon Carolyn's, upon Mary's, coming to rest at last upon mine. I think it was given to her in that moment to realize something of the cabal against her.

FORGETS REQUEST

But she gave no hint of it in her voice or smile. Apparently she was absorbed in the flattering attentions with which Ronald and Bob were plying her, and had forgotten all about her request for an interview alone with Noel. Indeed, it would have been almost impossible for her to have spoken of it again, so completely did the two boys monopolize her.

One on either side of her, their hands resting possessively but firmly upon her arms, they talked so rapidly, demanded her attention so insistently, that she had no opportunity to get away from them even for an instant, until I broke in upon the colloquy with a reminder that they must not delay longer the rehearsal of the wedding processional.

I watched Avis closely during the rehearsal, in which Harry Underwood acted as the minister and Lillian as mistress of ceremonies, while I myself was at the piano.

I had not yet made up my mind as to the motive behind her impudent attempts to see Noel by himself. Was she actuated only by petty vanity and the revengeful desire to make Mary miserable, or had she really set what she called her heart upon the boy?

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Be animated even if you are wearing a simple black woolen frock. Brighten it up with a huge bow of lame and a matching lame belt and cuffs. These sets can be obtained at almost every smart shop.

It is not easy to find a hat to wear with tailored things that is becomingly smart yet very comfortable. But these requirements are found in a coxcomb hat of lipstick red duvetyne that has a trimming of speckled yellow and black feathers, placed just like a coxcomb.

Glittering moments come when we make an entrance in a smart frock with a shining note. A lovely dinner frock of dull black crepe with a deep back decolletage and long tight sleeves has inset bracelets on the sleeves made entirely of tiny bits of mirror glass.

Over the head go many of the jackets used to make dinner dresses out of evening frocks. A lovely frock in sapphire blue velvet with a crepe weave has a Russian style jumper that slips over the head and makes the dress ideal for dinner wear. The jumper has pockets to give it that casual air.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

A Century of Progress in World of Medicine

No doubt many of you visited the Chicago fair. It is probable that many have had the opportunity of visiting other great fairs. But I venture to say the Chicago Century of Progress was the first exposition to show the tremendous advances that have been made in medicine and surgery during one century. Visitors were amazed at the graphic displays exhibiting man's conquest of disease.

Dr. Copeland

Few realize how fortunate they are to live in this wonderful age of scientific research. Our forefathers fought to overcome numerous hardships. Many of their hazards were far beyond control. They struggled to combat germs and disease with inadequate facilities. It is remarkable, when one considers how limited their knowledge was, that disease did not take an even greater toll of lives.

It is hard to realize that 100 years ago surgery was in its infancy, and that few operations were successfully performed. A hundred years ago an operation for hernia was unheard of, and an operation for removal of an abdominal tumor was unknown. Few diseases were understood and the victims of serious ailments were doomed to death.

The discovery and development of anesthesia made it possible for all operations to be performed painlessly and at a minimum risk. Wound infections were common then but now rarely occur. Germs unheard of a century ago are now thoroughly understood and successfully combated.

I believe that the greatest advancement in this Century of Progress is in the field of preventive medicine. In this, certainly, we enjoy a "new deal," a new medicine. The doctor of yesterday attempted to cure disease; the doctor of today urges the prevention of disease. I am sure that when another century shall have passed gigantic strides will have been made and startling methods discovered for the prevention rather than the cure of disease.

Whether you visited the fair, or stayed home, my advice to all is to take advantage of what modern science offers. If you have not recently consulted with your doctor, do so now. Do not wait for pain or ache to send you hastily to his office. Have an inventory taken of your health right now. To do so will be to guard yourself against disease in serious and incurable form.

Bear in mind that health can be maintained only by careful regulation of the diet and strict attention to the rules of hygiene. An abundance of fresh air and sunlight, sufficient hours of sleep and relaxation will help, but it is also important to correct all physical deformities and constitutional defects.

Answers to Health Queries

2—What will correct constipation?

2—First correct your diet and drink plenty of water between meals. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for further particulars and repeat your question.

Household Hints

When home dyeing, rub the hands with vaseline beforehand; then the stains will wash off easily.

A square piece of wood with a caster at each corner is useful as a stand for a pail when scrubbing a floor. It can be moved about easily and saves having to get up and down each time the pail has to be moved.

When washing silk stockings add two tablespoons of vinegar to the rinsing water. This clears and fixes the color and also closes up the pores of silk, thus preserving and lengthening the life of your stockings. This also applies to artificial silk stockings. Silk stockings which have been washed should, when nearly dry, be rubbed with a flannel till all moisture is extracted, when they will not require mangling or ironing.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

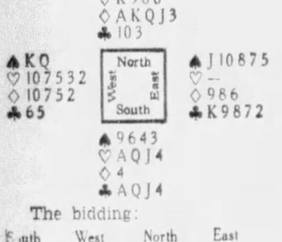
An Unusual Grand Slam

When a player undertakes a Grand Slam contract with only four trumps in his own hand and an equal number in Dummy, and finds five trumps bunched in one hand against him, he may well be pardoned if he gives up the fight and concedes that the contract is impossible of fulfillment. However, in Vienna, the one-time gay capital of the ancient Austrian Empire, they have become so accustomed to vicissitudes in recent years that even a holding of the plurality of the trumps in the hand of an opposing player does not prevent their Bridge players from seeking to fulfill any contract they undertake, even though it be a Grand Slam.

For the hand below I am indebted to Col. Carl Porias, who states that the South hand was played by Dr. N. Kanner in a rubber game in one of the Vienna Bridge clubs.

South, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♡	Pass	3 ◇ (1)	Pass
4 ♣ (2)	Pass	4 ♡ (3)	Pass
5 ♡ (4)	Pass	5 ♠ (5)	Pass
7 ♡ (6)	Pass	Pass	Pass

2—Encouraged by partner's Forcing Takeout, South, with a near minimum, decides to show his second biddable suit.

3—Perhaps North should have bid more here. There is grave danger that a hand of Slam calibre will be played simply for a game.

4—In view of the lack of fit with partner's suit, this is a very strong bid with the South holding.

5—Merely showing the Ace of spades, but at this point there does not appear to be any better bid available.

6—Of course, South does not know that the spade bid is not genuine. Hence he is inclined to figure his partner's hand as five diamonds, four hearts and four spades. The Grand Slam bid is a fair gamble.

West's Opening lead was the King of spades, which was won in the Dummy with Ace. The six of hearts was then led, and when East failed to follow suit, it was, of course, apparent to the Declarer that if he were able to fulfill his contract it would border on the miraculous. However, he went to work to the best of his ability. His next play was the four of diamonds from his own hand, and then followed three more rounds of diamonds, upon which he discarded his losing spades. Obviously, in order to give him a chance to make his contract, the club King must lie in the East hand. His next play was to lead the club Ten, and when East failed to cover, he permitted it to hold. The club 3 was then led, and the Knave in the closed hand finessed. South now laid down the Ace of clubs, which West ruffed with the heart 3, and Dummy won with the eight of hearts and returned the three of diamonds, which was ruffed with the Queen of hearts in the Declarer's hand. Another club was now led, upon which West discarded the spade Queen, and Dummy ruffed with the nine of hearts. Dummy's last spade was now lead and ruffed with the Ace of hearts, and the thirteenth and game fulfilling trick was won with the King in Dummy. A Grand Slam contract against long trumps was thus fulfilled.

Today's Question

North-South vulnerable. The bidding:

North	South
Pass	1 ◇

♠ J875 ♡ K4 ◇ K92 ♣ K642

What do you bid?

Answer: Two diamonds. Although a Raise of partner's suit, particularly when it is a minor, is usually not given with only three trumps, an exception must be made in this hand. Obviously, there is no One-over-One Takeout available and the hand is too strong to merely respond with one notrump. The North hand has better than adequate trump support, a doubleton heart and over one and one-half honor-tricks. The diamonds is undoubtedly the best response.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Tips on Tips

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—How much should one tip the waiter?

2—What amount should be given to the "check girl"?

3—Is it permissible to eat fried chicken or fried frogs legs with the fingers?

4—When relishes, such as pickled beets, cucumbers, cottage cheese and pears are served with shrimp cocktails, should one use the cocktail fork to eat them with?

5—Should one eat the vegetable salad the same time as the main course? If so, where should the salad fork rest while using the dinner fork? K.

1—There are no definite rules about tipping in this country. In Europe they have this difficult problem more regulated, for there the 10-per-cent-of-the-check plan is fairly generally adhered to. Here is depends on the type of restaurant in which we are dining, on the degree of special service we receive, and especially since this question of tipping is such a personal thing on our "native generosity."

2—This, too, depends on the type of restaurant. Usually this tip is 10 cents, and from that to a quarter.

3—No. Both fried chicken and fried frogs legs should be eaten with the knife and fork.

4—Do you mean that these are served as a hors d'oeuvres plate? In any event, it would be more convenient to place a small fork for the items other than the shrimp cocktail, and the oyster fork for the shrimp cocktail.

5—The salad may be served either with the main course or as a separate course. But in either case we place a separate fork for it. And the fork rests on the salad plate while we are using the dinner fork.

Thanks for Telephone Call

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct, or necessary, even, to thank a person for calling you on the telephone? Socially, I mean. I have. I have a friend who always does this, and I don't know whether to think that it is affected, or polite. If it is polite, the thing to do, I'd like to adopt it. But if it is only an affectation, of course I don't want to. Please tell me. A FRIEND.

Please adopt this gracious and polite form. Far from being an affectation, it is a charming thing to do, most polite. Don't ever be afraid of saying "Thank you" . . . I wonder if you won't admit that you are a bit "close" about expressing your appreciation of gestures made by other people? If a friend telephones, that is a friendly gesture, and friendly gestures, even though casual and every-dayish, should be thanked for.

FEATHERED STAR PATTERN 561

Gay Scrap Quilt

Feathered Star is one of those lovely scrap quilts that is as much a joy to make as it is to possess. It is most effective done in a great variety of scraps, although some people carry it out in a few materials that are repeated throughout. The patches are a good size to handle and are easily joined.

Pattern 561 comes to you with complete, simple instructions cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for placing the patches and suggests contrasting materials.

The Beauty Box

If your ears aren't mates, one being larger than the other, don't bother your head about it; it happens in the very best circles. As long as they aren't too large, or flappy, and don't emerge, winglike, life travels on with tranquility. When make-up is used, a bit of rouge should be passed over the lobes. DUQUESNE AND TECH QUINTETS FACE TESTS TONIGHT

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Rice Ends Fine Career.
Famous Disputed Catch.
Columbia Play Not New.
Foes Forced to Guess.
Making Hockey Sticks.
Rules Peeve Floor Vet.

The unconditional release of Outfielder Sam Rice by the Washington club rated just a few lines in an obscure corner of the sports pages, yet the ball player whose fadeout it signaled has had few superiors. Rice may have lacked a flare for showmanship, may not have splashed the color that attracts attention, but his long career was a rare example of ability and consistency. There was nothing that Sam couldn't do like a master. He could hit, he could field, he could throw, he could think, and he could run bases with the best. That's why he was converted from a pitcher into an outfielder soon after he came up from Petersburg in the fall of 1915.. In 19 seasons he fell below the .300 mark in batting only four times, and in three of those four instances he hit .299, .297 and .295 In 2,307 games he scored 1,465 runs, stole 346 bases and made 2,889 hits for a grand batting average of .323 Last season was the only one in which he failed to steal a base. In 1920 he stole 63.

Sam Rice

COLUMBIA'S TOUCHDOWN PLAY OLD ONE

Since the triumphant return of the Columbia football team, some of the New York writers have become hysterical again in painting word pictures of the Rose Bowl victory. They are repeating the statement that the play which beat Stanford was an entirely new one. It was nothing of the sort. On the contrary, Lou Little has been using it for eight years.

It's just a spinner variation, and Arthur Sampson, who used to coach at Columbia, recalls that Little insists on his backs devoting some time every day to practice at hiding the ball. Standing behind the center, Montgomery receives the ball, and as he makes a complete spin he either fakes or hands the ball to Barabas, who is in line with Cliff behind the two tackles in the unbalanced formation. As Barabas crosses over toward the weak side, he grabs either the ball or empty space, and by turning the right hip and dipping the right shoulder he screens his part of the play from the defensive end.

OPPONENTS MUST DEPEND ON GUESSWORK

Montgomery completes his spin, whether he has retained the ball or not, and either hits into the line or makes a second spin. If he makes the second spin, he goes through the same process of faking or handing the pumpkin to Brominski, who also comes racing around from the wing-back position to the weak side. All this time the ball is kept hidden and the defensive end and tackle on the weak side must guess more or less as to the best spot into which to charge.

Al Barabas

If the end goes wide to protect the flank against a Barabas sweep, and Brominski happens to take the ball from Montgomery on the latter's second spin, a big hole opens between end and tackle, as Dzamba and Nevel get a great shot at the tackle from the side. If the end elects to smash in sharply to protect the inside territory, he has a good chance of stopping the play if Brominski is carrying the ball, but if he guesses wrongly and Barabas has the leather concealed on his hip, the end is completely out of the play and the road is clear for Barabas.

AMERICAN WOOD USED IN HOCKEY STICKS

Hockey is a Canadian game by birth, and it's in the Dominion that hockey sticks are made, but the manufacturers have to come to the United States to get the wood. The sticks are of elm, and Wisconsin is the only place they can get the kind they want. They used to try ash, but while it was light and firm, it wouldn't stand up under slamming pucks. Elm gives a little.

Somewhat of an art is the making of a hockey stick, an interesting subject at present with the revival of the game here by the Pittsburgh Amateur League. For right-hand shooting, they bevel out the left side of the blade a little, so that the puck can be picked up and controlled. It's the reverse for left-hand shooting, and for a center shot the blade is left as it stands. The ice lie, that is the manner in which the edge of the blade rests on the ice, has 10 varieties, numbered according to the angle.

The maximum width of blade allowed is three inches. Everndson has among his hockey relics a battered, almost black stick, with a chip off the end and a crack down the middle. It belonged to the late Hod Stuart, one of the all-time greats, who used to thrill local fans in the early days of Duquesne Garden. The blade is five inches in width, and Everndson recalls that when old Hod took the puck down the ice nobody could find it, let alone take it away from him.

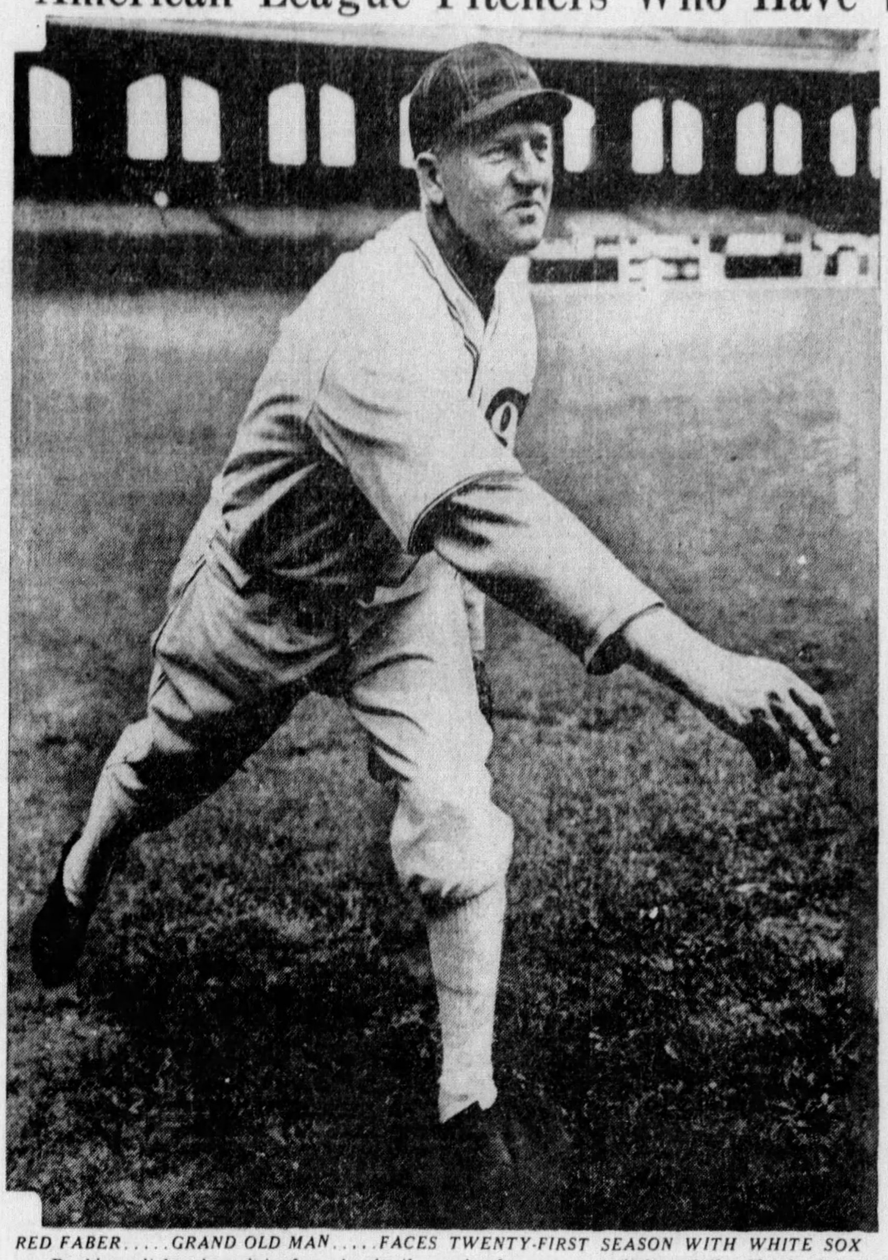
LAPCHICK OBJECTS TO TWO FLOOR RULES

Joe Lapchick, one of the famous veterans of the Rosenblum Celtics, is sore at the makers of the basketball rules, Joe objects to two of the regulations in particular. He insists that one faulty piece of legislation is the new rule that requires the referee to handle the ball on out-of-bounds plays in the front court. In Lapchick's opinion, it robs the smart, intelligent team of opportunities that mean much in a game. If a player, or his whole team, is of the slow-thinking type, Joe argues, it is unjust to make that fault operate against the better team, which is alert, and he holds that that is the result of the rule requiring the referee to handle the ball on such plays; that the smart team loses opportunities thereby and the slow-thinkers lose nothing.

Joe Lapchick

Lapchick points out that many clever plays can be started from out of bounds, and that smart teams like the Celtics in the pro ranks, or the Dukes or Pitt in the collegiate division, can add much in the way of brilliance and thrills to a game. Joe declares that the anti stalling rule is another that should not have been made part of the code, because, in his eyes, it penalizes the team that has made the game.

American League Pitchers Who Have Something to Which to Look Forward



RED FABER.....GRAND OLD MAN.....FACES TWENTY-FIRST SEASON WITH WHITE SOX

Ranking pitcher in point of service in the major leagues, and the only hurler left in the big show who is permitted to use the spitball, Faber is looking forward to a prosperous twenty-first season with the Chicago White Sox if his trick knee holds out. His pitching arm is okay. As for Ferrell, erstwhile ace pitcher of the Cleveland Indians, his bad season last year has caused him to sign for a mere $5,000 for the coming season, plus a sliding bonus scale. Every game he wins beyond the first 10 and up to 15 will net him a $500 present. From 15 to 20 victories he'll get a $600 bonus, and anything above that will add $700 per game to his bank account, so that he may wind up with approximately $15,000 for the season. Imagine having $700 riding on every game you pitched. The young hurler certainly will have an incentive to stay in condition and give his best every day he works. Two new stars will make their debuts before local fans at Motor Square Garden tonight when the Yellow Jackets meet the Milwaukee Brewers in a North American Professional Lacrosse Association game. Bucko McDonald, of Brampton, Ontario, who has been playing hockey for the Buffalo team of the International League, will appear at forward, and Ty Silk, of Montreal, will perform at defense.

The illness of Odie Core, in St. Francis Hospital recovering from an appendicitis operation, and the burden which the other stalwarts are carrying in playing five games in seven days, prompted Manager Larry Welch and Coach Suds Sutherland to go after new talent.

McDonald made his first appearance in Yellow Jacket livery in Buffalo Sunday night, and scored six of the locals' 10 goals. Silk, although a defense man, will be the speediest man on the Jacket squad. Both are experienced campaigners who should ease the locals' task of remaining at the head of the league procession.

Tonight's game will mark the Brewers' and Jackets' third meeting of the season. Pittsburgh won both previous battles, by scores of 8 to 5 and 10 to 6, respectively. The Milwaukee players have been working out here for several days, and were spectators as the locals defeated Buffalo here last Saturday night.

Harry Campbell, Brewer forward, has the distinction of being the only Jewish athlete in professional lacrosse. Kelly DeGray, flashy center, is the visitors' outstanding performer. The probable lineup:

LEFTY GOMEZ, HERE, BOOSTS TOM PADDEN

Tommy Padden, Pirates' reserve catcher, should go a long way toward solving the Buccaneers' backstopping problems, in the opinion of Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, star pitcher of the New York Yankees, who is spending the week in Pittsburgh with his bride, June O'Dea, who is appearing in a stage production.

"What are you going to do about Tommy Padden in Pittsburgh? I pitched to him quite a lot when he was a rookie with the Yanks, and I felt confident he would develop into a first-string catcher for some team. He has a lot of fight and pepper and he can throw that ball."

Gomez, standing 6 feet 1½ inches in height, is frail in appearance. He weighs only 155 pounds, but he has a lot of power in his shoulders. He strives hard to put on extra poundage, but finds this difficult to do. He has won 61 games in three seasons for the Yankees. He said:

"Maybe you will think I am romancing when I say I weighed 144 pounds when I pitched against the Cubs in the 1932 world series, but that is the truth."

Gomez, a Californian of Spanish extraction, learned the rudiments of the game under Walter Schmidt, former Pirate star catcher. Walter, doing catching duty for the San Francisco Seals in 1929, had the kid left-hander under his care. Lefty says Schmidt tried to get him headed toward a Pirate berth, but apparently the Yankees reached the scene first.—CHARLES J. DOYLE.

Bucknell Urges Snavely to Stay

LEWISBURG, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Despite reports that the University of North Carolina is considering Carl Snavely for football coach, Bucknell University officials expect him to remain here.

Dr. B. W. Griffith, graduate manager, said Bucknell has offered Snavely a three-year contract and hopes he will sign it. Homer P. Rainey, president, has urged Snavely to sign.

North Carolina's athletic council adjourned a long meeting last night without naming a successor to Coach Charles C. (Chunk) Collins, whose contract was not renewed last month.

Card Complete For Mat Show

The card has been completed for the wrestling show to be held in the Arena, on the North Side, Friday night, with the signing of Johnny Baran to meet Johnny Kline in the match between local talent which will inaugurate the program.

Stanley Pinto meets Gino Garibaldi in the main bout to a finish, and Hans Kampfer and Ray Steel are in the semi-final, while Lou Macaluso meets Stanley Sokolis and Frank Bronowiecz takes on Bruno Gorassini in the other numbers.

How's About It, Lefty?

JUNE O'DEA GOMEZ VERNON (LEFTY) GOMEZ

BUCS GET 12 SUNDAY FRAYS

Twelve Sunday games for Forbes Field are assured in the latest developments of the National League schedule. The Pirates will open the season in St. Louis on April 17, the official opening day. The Cardinals will be the opponents of the Pirates in the home opener to be staged in the Oakland Orchard on or about April 25.

Optimistic letters from Pitcher Red Lucas and Outfielder Woodie Jensen were received at the Pirate office yesterdaly. Lucas and Jensen expect to be able to turn in some good chores for the Buccos this year.

A visitor at the Pittsburgh office was Elmer Yoter, native son, who is manager of the Wilkes-Barre club of the NYP League. Yoter is striving to make some sort of a hookup with the Pirate management in regard to excess players.

MAX, KINGFISH BATTLE OFF

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The black eyes of Leaping Lena Levy, sister-manager of her big brother, King Levinsky, snapped fire today as she bemoaned the loss of a fight with Max Schmeling, slated for the Chicago Stadium, February 16.

Joe Jacobs, manager of the German, had demanded 37½ per cent, with the expectation that Levinsky would accept 22½ per cent, but Jacobs didn't figure Leaping Lena in his expectation. She yelled and screamed that the Kingfish, her big brother, the conqueror of Jack Sharkey, was entitled to just as much money as Schmeling. Unless she gets it, she said, there will be no fight.

Most of the college basketball fans of the town find themselves very much in the quandary that confronts court gormands such as the irrepressible John Jasper Freund, Jr., tonight. There are two swell basketball tussles listed for consumption here and its a question, no less, which one to take in.

Take Freind Freund for instance. Take him or leave him as far as that goes, but he certainly is up against it. He's a great pal of James Usilton, the Bald Eagle of the Wissahickon head coach of the Temple University Owls, who meet Carnegie Tech's Skibos in a Eastern Intercollegiate Conference game on the Tartan floor, and he's as close a pal of Chick Davies, boss of the Dukes, who meet their first major test as they battle Westminster's crack aggregation in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion. Johnny's like to wind up staying at home. O yeah!

DUKES MEET TITANS

As attractive as the Tech-Temple contest looks to be and doubtlessly will be, the majority of the fans tonight will attend the Duquesne and Westminster tussle. For years, Duquesne-Westminster ball games have ranked with the piece de resistance of the annual program in this district. A year ago, for example, the rival quintets battle in the Stadium and the Titans won, putting the only blot on the Dukes' otherwise perfect record.

The Titans were a trifle slow getting up steam this campaign and dropped their first two games, but since then they've picked up speed at an amazing rate and right now are moving along at a great clip. The tipoff on their class came last week when they were good enough to hang a 50-15 licking on Grove City on the Grovers' own floor.

The United Presbyterians are led by Capt. Bill Douglass, Iselin's gift to the hardwood, and Bennett, brilliant center. They have an experienced aggregation, with Leyshock, Hunneke and Wilhelm and Sweeney on hand to bolster Douglass and Bennett.

REGULARS READY

Coach Davies will have his full regular strength available for the fracas, but likely will start Feldman and Murphy at the forwards, Meyers at center and Moore and Reiter at the guards. Paul Birch and Jim MacDougal have recovered from the ills that kept them out of the early games on the Duquesne card, and can be inserted into the action any time, along with Irv Brenner, stay-center.

A victory for Tech over Temple will throw the Tartans into a tie

SOUTH MEETS PEABODY IN SCHOOL BATTLE

ORIOLES SEEK REVENGE FOR GRID DEFEAT

By JULIUS LEVIN

The South High School Orioles, defending champions in the City League, begin their fight to retain their laurels this afternoon when they clash with Peabody High School's passers at the South Side Market House in one of the three contests scheduled in Section I.

The Orioles, almost intact from last season, Bill Jesko and Eibs being the only absentees from the team that went as far as the semi-finals in the battle for the state championship, have an added incentive to lead them on against Peabody.

Peabody, winner of the City League football championship, was the only school to defeat South High in the local circuit, this setback ruining South's chances for the title. South hopes to get revenge for that setback this afternoon.

The contest is the second league affair for Peabody, the East Enders having been defeated in the opener with Westinghouse last Friday, 36 to 21.

IMPRESSIVE RECORD

South has an impressive record for its pre-season games, winning four and losing one. The only defeat came at the hands of New Castle by a one-point margin, the Orioles losing by a 27-26 score at New Castle. South defeated Mt. Lebanon, 29-16; Carrick, 29-15; Deaf Mutes, of Edgewood, 42-16, and Aliquippa, 29-21.

Connelley Trade School, coached by Johnny Dickson, strives for its second successive Section I conquest by invading Fifth Avenue High to meet the Briggs' quintet. Connelley defeated Schenley in the opener, 27-18, while Fifth bowed to Allderdice in a thriller, 25-22, after leading most of the way.

Taylor Allderdice seeks victory No 2 by playing at Schenley. Allderdice has scored five straight triumphs, four of them being in pre-season contests. Besides the victory over Fifth Avenue last Friday, Allderdice has scored triumps over Kiski, 30-29; Homestead, 27-23; Perry, 37-24, and Pitt Freshies, 23-20. Coach John Irwin's quintet has shown enough class in games played to date to warrant ranking it among the leading teams in the district.

PERRY FIVE IDLE

The Section II schools also offer a program of three games, Perry being idle. South Hills plays at Oliver, it being the first league game of the season for Cutteback's boys; Allegheny Vocational invades Langley, and Allegheny plays at Carrick. Oliver and Langley will be seeking their second straight victories.

In the City Junior League, three games will be offered in each section. In Division 1, Gladstone plays at Liberty, Arsenal at Baxter and Schenley at Herron Hill, while in Section II, Knoxville appears at Latimer and Allegheny at Carrick.

A light schedule is listed for the members of the W. P. I. A. L., most of the divisions waiting until Friday to dispose of their league encounters. In the junior division of the same loop, however, a full program is on the books.

The Catholic High League, having inaugurated its season last night, has only one game on the program today, St. Luke playing at St. Francis.

GRADE SCHOOLS PLAY

The Pittsburgh Grade Schools have a heavy program of games. West Liberty plays at Brookline, Stevens at Obey, Conroy at McNaugher, Logan at Frick, Morningside at Dilworth and Linden at Park Place.

Most of the W. P. I. A. L. members play non-league opponents tonight, Beallsville is at Bentleyville, Arnold School at Shady Side, East Huntingdon at Hurst, Alumni at Vandergrift, Carmichaels at East Bethlehem, Connellsville at Perry Township, Beaver Falls at Ambridge, Glassport at Clairton, Greensburg at Scottdale, Zelienople at Bessemer and Elizabeth at West Newton.

The Catholic High School League ushered in its season yesterday with St. Joseph's, of Natrona, and St. Veronica's, of Ambridge, getting off to winning starts. St. Joseph's defeated St. Mary's, 18 to 15, while St. Veronica's disposed of St. Thomas, 13-12.

Bill Duffy May Avoid Jail Penalty

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Accordling to underworld advices, Bill Duffy, night club man and part-manager of Primo Carnera, will not become a co-guest with Al Capone and other kindred spirits at Atlanta, although Duffy today pleaded guilty to a charge of failing to make an income tax return for 1930. The plea was entered before Federal Judge John C. Knox, who deferred sentence until February 26.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE PRESIDENT MAKER—Matthew Lyon (1750-1822), founder of Fair Haven, Vt., described as a "rough, red-headed, fire-eating Irishman," was born in County Wicklow, Ireland, and came to America in exchange for two young bulls. Working as a laborer he married the daughter of his boss, the Governor of the state of Vermont. While in jail for libel, he was elected to the United States Congress in 1798. He had the extraordinary distinction of having been elected Congressman from three different states, Vermont, Kentucky and Arkansas. His was the decisive single vote which elected Jefferson President of the United States over Aaron Burr, in the election of 1801. Jefferson and Burr had received 73 electoral votes each. No candidate having polled a majority, the election was referred to the House of Representatives, where after seven days of balloting, Col. Lyon, on the thirty-sixth ballot, cast his vote and that of Vermont in favor of Jefferson, making the latter President of the United States by a majority of one state in a total of 16. THE CREEK INDIAN'S CIVIL WAR RECORD—Chief Isparhecher, full-blooded Creek Indian, enlisted in, fought with and was honorably discharged from both the Union and Confederate armies during the Civil War. Records disclose that Isparhecher served as Fourth Sergeant in Company K in the 1st Regiment of Creek Mounted Volunteers in the Confederate States Army for a year after August 17, 1861, and the same records reveal that he volunteered and was mustered into the 1st Regiment of Indian Home Guards, Kansas Infantry, of the Union Army at Fort Gibson, May 12, 1863. The unique record of Isparhecher was chronicled by the Oklahoma Historical Society.

LOS ANGELES OPEN WON BY MAC SMITH

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Macdonald Smith today held the Los Angeles Open golf championship for the fourth time in the nine years' life of the event.

The silent Scot from Carnoustie, who will be 44 years old in two months, finished with sensational rounds of 69 and 68 yesterday to round out a 72-hole count of 280, even par for the distance over the difficult championship course of the Los Angeles Country Club.

Smith carried his years lightly as he hit green after green with rifle shot approaches and knocked in putts from all distances. He has been a competitor in golf in the United States for nearly a quarter of a century, but there was no youngster on his heels yesterday who could come within many strokes of his score.

WINNER GETS $1,450

The winner received $1,450. The pros were playing for $5,000 guaranteed, but the receipts as well, and a big and enthusiastic gallery on the last day brought this to several hundred dollars beyond the guarantee.

Second place will be settled today, George Von Elm, former amateur champion and now a "business man golfer," and Willie Hunter, Los Angeles professional, who as an amateur won the British amateur title, were engulfed in darkness after playing 16 holes of the fourth round yesterday. If Von Elm can play the last two holes in par fours, his 72-hole score will be 287 and he will slip a stroke under Bill Mehlhorn to take second place. Hunter has two fours to register 288 and go into a tie for third place.

With the returns incomplete, Willie Goggin, of San Francisco, and John Revolta, of Milwaukee, were tied for third with 289s, but there was a good chance that Von Elm and Hunter will interfere with this ranking today.

TOUGH ON DUTRA

Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, who led the brilliant field for three rounds, was in a three-way tie for fifth for the time being with scores of 290. Dutra started his fourth round with 211, leading by a stroke. He ran into one of the most distressing breaks in any golf competition on the seventh hole when he used up nine strokes in a par three hole.

Sam Parks, Jr., pro at the South Hills Country Club, Pittsburgh, had rounds of 75 and 77 yesterday to finish with an aggregate score of 300, identical with the score made by Harry Cooper, of Chicago.

STONEHOUSE VICTOR

It was won by Ralph Stonehouse, 29-year-old pro, who defeated Willie Dow, 48-year-old North Dakota veteran, in the 18-hole playoff for the annual Miami open championship over the municipal course.

Temple Floor Player Knows Real Tragedy

If you want to feel a bit ashamed of any squawking or fretting you've been doing over what you think are tough breaks or the complexities of life, grab off a load of the handicaps that have confronted young Richard Mike Lulejian.

PARENTS MASSACRED

Mike was born in Armenia. When he was 3 years old, his parents were murdered before his eyes in a massacre of an Armenian village by marauding Turks. Baby Mike, with a few survivors, were arrested and the elders thrown into jail. Little Mike was left on the outside to starve, but finally relatives were permitted to take him to jail with them in order that he might be fed and cared for. He spent the next nine months in jail.

He entered this country when he was about 6 years of age and went with relatives to Philadelphia. He was brought up as an American and by the time he was ready to enter grade school, could handle the English language a lot better than plenty of kids who have had all the advantages.

HAS TOUGH ROW

He finished high school with a fine record and entered Temple. His folks are in the wholesale produce business, and Mike has to get up at 4:30 every morning, go down to the wharf and haul vegetables to the family's place of business. Then he goes to class (and he has three 8 o'clock classes a week, too), practices basketball and goes home and back to work.

Did someone in the back of the house call for a cheer? Well, let's have it . . . and toss in a couple of tigers!—JESS CARVER.

PERRY WERDEN SUCCUMBS

MINNEAPOLIS, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Perry Werden, 63, who established an unofficial record of 45 home runs in 1895 while playing with the Minneapolis club of the old Western League, died today of heart disease.

Werden in 1890 and 1891 played with the old Baltimore Orioles when that team was comprised of such stars as John McGraw, Hughey Jennings and Steve Brodie.

Three years later Werden performed with the Louisville club, then in the National League, numbering among his teammates Hans Wagner.

He played with the Minneapolis club, of the Western League, from 1895 until 1900 inclusive. He was born in St. Louis.

Werden at times was associated as player, coach or manager with New Orleans and Memphis in the old Southern League; the St. Louis Browns, the Washington National League Club; the Indianapolis American Association Club and the Vicksburg Cotton States League club.

FAGAN RETURNS TO HEIDELBERG AS FORWARD

By TOM BIRKS

Soccer fans watching the Heidelberg-Castle Shannon Riehl soccer cup tie Sunday afternoon at Greenlee Field, received quite a jolt when the official starting lineup was given out and they found the name of Joe Fagan, one of the district's real veterans, at outside left for Heidelberg.

Classed as one of the greatest American-born fullbacks ever to kick a ball in this district, Fagan, a product of Morgan, a little mining town up Miller's Run, first came into the limelight in this district as a halfback with Morgan in 1915. He and his brother, Tony, were members of the club that won many championships in the heydey of such clubs as Cecil, Sturgeon, Curry, Castle Shannon, Roscoe and Dunlevy. And as time went along Joe did not advance into the forward line, but became a fullback, and probably was the most consistent defender this district ever has known.

He played with the famous Arden team that was defeated in St. Louis by the Scullin Steel team, 2-1, in the simi-final of the national challenge cup, this being the farthest any team from this district went in the tourney. That was in 1922, and his vigorous playing in that game had the St. Louis forwards scattered all over the field.

Then a little later, Fagan became a member of the famous Heidelberg team that won the national amateur titles in 1927 and 1929. He did not play in the 1929 finale at Newark, being suspended by the local governing body just before the game.

Now he and Manager McCabe, of Heidelberg, have upset all precedent by lining Joe up as a forward. It always has been considered the thing to do for forwards, as they become veterans, to go into the halfback line, and then a little later become fullbacks, but this is the first time in the writer's memory that a star fullback retired from the game to come back in among the forwards.

Well, there was plenty of the old Fagan spirit on tap, but towards the end of the game, in that heavy mud, there was a lingering suspicion that the flesh was a little weak.

Ed Aspel, who handled the game at Greenlee Field Sunday, was found dead after the contest on the highway near his home in Heidelberg. An examination revealed that he died from natural causes.

DUKES AND TECH FACE TESTS

for the Conference lead with Pitt. The Owls are the favorites, and at least 18 times since last Saturday's defeat at the hands of Pitt, the Temple heroes have gone on record predicting that they'll take the Plaid.

Carnegie, with a pair of sophomores, Gibson and Macalka, coming through in brilliant fashion at the forward posts, took West Virginia in the opening game of the schedule Sat'day nicht at Morgantown and can see no reason why the Owls should be too tough tonight.

The Temple lineup, as indicated by the Bald Eagle, will be the same as faced off against Pitt, with Red Rosan and Lou Fox (who denies he's the "wotta man" of the club) at the forwards, Jimmy Brown at center and Ernie Messikomer and Frieberg at the guards.

In a preliminary to the Dukes-Westminster combat, the Duquesne freshmen will play East Pittsburgh High School. The Tartan Plebes will meet a team to be named today in a clash prior to the Owls-Plaid tussle.

JACKETS, GENEVA CLASH

There are two other games on the district card tonight. Bethany and Wash-Jeff pry open their respective seasons with a meeting at Washington in which picking a winner is as tough as hitting the numbers, and Geneva meets Waynesburg in a Tri-State Conference clash at Beaver Falls.

The rumor that Marty Brill, former Notre Dame halfback star, the halfback who made the football public blocking-conscious, was to come to Notre Dame as backfield, or head football coach, succeeding Elmer Leyden, has been spiked by the report from Philadelphia of Marty's signing a new one-year contract at La3alle.

Joe Bach, believed to be first in line among some 100 candidates for the job, is due back from Florida Friday morning and an announcement from the Red and Blue authorities regarding Joe's status may be expected by the end of the week.

Young Herzog Free After Robbery Charge

DURHAM, N. C., Jan. 9.—(AP.)—The case against Charles Arthur Herzog, 22, former Duke University athlete, charged with holding up a local filling station manager and taking $28, was dismissed for lack of evidence in Durham County Recorder's Court yesterday.

GOLFERS FAVOR NEW PLAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(A.P.)—With but one dissenting voice, and that merely a personal preference for the old system, prominent amateurs of the nation, headed by George T. Dunlap, Jr., 1933 titleholder, and Francis Ouimet, Walker Cup captain, heartily have endorsed the new all-match-play method of determining the amateur golf champion.

Despite the physical stress and strain added by elimination of 36 holes of qualifying play in the tournament proper and substitution of 18-hole matches from the start among 180 sectional qualifiers, the veterans—Ouimet, Chick Evans, Jess Sweetser and Jesse Guilford—are all in favor.

Only Charley Yates, of Atlanta, one of golf's most promising youngsters, thought he liked the old way of doing things better, but he hastened to add that one system of play seemed as fair to him as another.

Ouimet, who won the open as a boy back in 1913 and has bobbed up occasionally since as the amateur champion, as well as captaining the Walker Cup team in 1932 and this year, is strong in his approval.

PREPS TO GET BANQUET

The St. Rosalia Preps will be honored at a testimonial banquet to be given by the business men of Greenfield in Lyceum Hall, on January 25.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Comes to bat Harry Haas, of the American Legion junior baseball teams, with a corking idea for the CWA people, which is that now is a fine time for the building of some good baseball diamonds and mushball fields for the kids, and the CWA can put a lot of men to work doing it . . . He suggests that the city allow the Schenley Oval infield to be converted into a series of fields and that other available property be improved for the same purpose . . . Sounds swell, and, if something is done about it, Pittsburgh may yet become one of the best cities in the country for baseball playing spaces, instead of being one of the worst, which it has been for some time.

Jackie Wilson, local Negro featherweight, fighting out of Chicago, is ranked No. 3 by the N. B. A. . . . Louie Severo and Jimmy Vaughan box in Cleveland Friday night, and Frankie Klick and Billy Wallace are booked for the same city January 22, with Klick boxing Johnny Farr in Canton, O., next Monday.

George Sauer's Uncle Pete will wrestle at the Arena on the North Side, Friday night, meeting Hans Kampfer, of Germany, in the semi-final . . . George, you know, is the Nebraska fullback . . . Uncle Pete Sauer goes by the name of Ray Steele and is as well known on the mat as George is on the gridiron, which is quite a little bit . . . Lew Raymond is predicting a sell out well in advance of his Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith boxing show in Motor Square Garden, February 2 . . . He says he already has 2,000 reservations, with the match announced only a few days ago . . . It's the first "natural" here since the Yarosz-Vince Dundee show at Forbes Field, and the Garden seems hardly big enough to hold it.

Renovations will be made in Motor Square Garden beginning about the middle of next month to improve it as an auditorium for sporting events . . . All of the posts which now obstruct the view of some of the spectators and greatly cut down the seating capacity will be removed and will be replaced by girders . . . Don't tell a soul where you got the information, but Johnny Harris is being accused of plotting to stage a six-day bicycle race in Duquesne Garden . . . Tom Bodkin, former local boxing referee and manager, is visiting his old home town this week as the manager of the scandals show at the Pitt.—HARRY KECK.

LOCAL WOMEN STARS LOSE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—(AP.)—Mrs. William F. Howe, of Boston, former women's national squash racquets champion and No. 1 seeded favorite, yesterday easily won her first round match in the 1934 championship play as several other stars advanced by default.

Mrs. Howe defeated Betty Behn, of New York, 15-1, 15-7, 15-3. Indication that Mrs. Howe would face a difficult test today was seen, however, in the easy victory of her next opponent, Mrs. Herbert Lancaster, of Montclair, N. J., over Elizabeth O'Neill, of Albany, N. Y., 15-3, 15-6, 15-7.

Among other first-round results: Barbara Beresford, Short Hills, N. J., defeated Mrs. Ben Pope, Pittsburgh, 15-12, 18-17, 15-11; Cecelia Riegel, Philadelphia, defeated Mrs. William Bickel, Pittsburgh, 15-5, 15-12, 15-8.

TOBACCOS LEAD STOCKS FOR ADVANCE

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Stocks puffed up a bit today under a revival in the tobaccos and, while the trading volume was still at a minimum, sentiment apparently improved sufficeintly to stiffen leading issues 1 to 2 or more points.

Following an announcement of an increase in cigaret rates, Liggett & Myers B jumped 6 points, American Tobacco B 4 and Reynolds B around 2. These lost part of their gains later. Other equities came out of their doldrums and followed the tobaccos at a more leisurely pace. Grains and cotton were fairly steady, but not buoyant. The dollar sagged and recovered in foreign exchange dealings. Bonds showed some improvement, although United States government securities were still a little uneasy.

Aside from the cigaret group, shares of American Telephone got up 3 and Case and Western Union advanced about 2 each. Others, up sizable fractions to more than a point, included Westinghouse, United States Steel, American Can, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, Consolidated Gas, du Pont, General Electric, General Motors, Chrysler, Johns-Manville, United States Smelting, United States Industrial Alcohol, Santa Fe and New York Central.

The boost in cigaret prices by leading companies from $5.50 to $6.10 a thousand was somewhat of a surprise to the various Wall street prophets, although quarters close to the industry had been expecting an advance some time this spring.

Brokerage houses reported that quite a sizable short interest had been built up in some of the tobacco stocks on the theory that most of the companies had suffered sharply reduced earnings, due partly to increased expenses under the recovery codes, and that the trade was still exposed to threats of the 10-cent cigarets which danced into the competitive arena last spring.

Notwithstanding the upward flurry of leading equities, in the wake of tobaccos, commission houses expressed some disappointment at the pronounced decline in volume. With the reduced aggregates of recent sessions it was said that most of the larger firms were hard-pressed to make expenses.

Administrative proponents in the financial district were highly encouraged by the Supreme Court decision sustaining the Minnesota law establishing a moratorium on the foreclosure of mortgages. In some banking circles the decision was interpreted as indicating that the court would uphold the wide emergency powers conferred upon the President by Congress.

Word that increased quotas for United States products had been obtained from both France and Great Britain was also cheering to the followers of foreign trade indices. Hope was expressed that similar quota agreements would be made with other nations that are now holding somewhat aloof in their commercial relations with America.

POST-HOLIDAY SALES BRING RESULTS

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The business news of the past week was, on the whole, favorable. Current reports indicate that retail stores have met good response to post-holiday "sales," and indexes of industrial activity show gains when allowance is made for the usual seasonal variation.

STEEL SLUMPS

Steel production slumped, it is true, but that was expected after the late December spurt in buying which came in anticipation of higher January prices. The automobile producers, too, have in some cases been slow in getting started on new models, owing to labor difficulties and the necessity of sweeping changes in design.

The decline in shipments of cotton to the mills reflects a timely effort to curtail the output of cloth and yarn, where production had threatened to become excessive last fall, as seen in the narrowing margin between raw cotton and cotton goods prices.

But electric power production did better than usual for the season, and so did railway carloadings as a whole. These are the two broadest indexes which are available weekly, so we may safely conclude that the turn of the year was made on a rising trend in business activity.

FARMERS' TROUBLES

The carloadings showed rather mixed movements. For example, shipments of ore and coke were up and larger than a year ago, while miscellaneous freight and merchandise in less than carlots were down, and the latter was below last year. Rail shipments of grain and livestock were both below last year, indicating some of the farmers' troubles.

Commodity prices were irregular, and on the whole about unchanged last week. Thus the year 1933 ended with wholesale prices about 25 per cent higher than at the beginning, but requiring a further rise of about 40 per cent if that 1926 level is to be attained.

Incidentally, we note that of late the price adjustment has become somewhat less favorable to the farmer. According to government computations, farm products declined from December 6 to December 13, while goods bought by farmers remained unchanged.

This leaves farm prices only 68 per cent as high as they were just before the war, while the things farmers buy are 18 per cent higher than then. Thus government statisticians figure that the purchasing power of farm products is only 68 per cent of what they consider desirable.

GOLD UNCHANGED

Incidentally, the government's price for buying gold remained unchanged all week. This tends to confirm the idea that the administration is disposed to soft pedal the policy of marking down the dollar by direct methods, and to rely more largely upon the policy of borrowing and spending at home.

This is the significance of the outstanding event of the week, namely the President's budget message.

We learned that an increase in the federal public debt to upwards of thirty billion dollars is contemplated. On top of this, it is proposed to have the government guarantee two billion dollars of home loan bonds, which virtually adds that much more. There are outstanding nearly twenty billion dollars of state and local debt.

This brings the prospective total public debt up to fifty-four billion dollars, or something like $430 per man, woman and child, or $2,000 per family.

CAUTION SUGGESTED

Considering our resources, this is not impossible. It is probably exceeded by several foreign countries. But it is getting big enough to suggest caution.

We do not want to get in such shape that all business gains will go to pay taxes. Nor do we want to raise prices in a way that will increase expenses faster as prices rise.

I note that a New York City postoffice structure, which would have cost $3,649,000 last February, now finds the lowest bid to be $4,294,000.

Liverpool Wheat Market.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 9—The market was due ¼ to ⅜c lower, opened unchanged, and at 1:20 p. m. was ⅛ to ¼c off. The market was ¼c lower at 2:15 p. m., based on sterling at $5.09⅛.

The close was unchanged to ⅛ pence lower, based on sterling at 5.08⅝.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

"What did Anderson say?"

"Well, I didn't show him the pictures, but he said there was nothing to the other angle of the man in the lane. Told me not to start anything, but to talk it over with Sergt. Williams, if I wanted."

"And did you?"

"Certainly. The sergeant wasn't interested, either. But I hadn't seen these pictures then and I hadn't noticed the knot myself."

"Let me take these pictures and talk it over with Mr. Reynolds, our managing editor," I told him. "You wait here and I'll be back in a minute."

"Bob," I exclaimed, "I don't know what to do. Of course, I suppose that we'll have to carry some kind of a story about these demands of Carroll's. He'll give it to the Herald if we don't. But it doesn't seem quite square. There's no real indication of foul play. Inspector Anderson is under such heavy fire just now anyhow that I hate to start anything else. Captain Andy's a friend of mine—I don't want to add to his troubles."

I repeated Carroll's tale of the mysterious man in the Paige lane and then showed him the picture of the rope.

"I tell you what," he said when I had finished. "Go up and have a talk with Anderson and with the Towson doctor and the Towson police and Coroner. Get full statements from each one of them. Then if we print Carroll's charges, we can run these interviews at that same time. That's square enough. If we play fair all around, that lets us out."

Officer Pleased

I returned to Carroll. "We're going to carry your story," I told him, "but we want to be certain of your facts. I'm going to talk to Anderson and some of these other people and see if we can't straighten this thing out without any publicity for either you or the police. You'll be satisfied if we succeed in getting the case reopened and an autopsy performed, won't you?"

He nodded.

"Well, good-bye now, and don't talk to anybody about this. I'll give you a buzz late this afternoon and let you know what has developed. I'll keep these for the time being," pointing to the pictures, "and I'll see if I can get any kind of a line on that knot. Now mind—don't do anything more until you hear from me."

I gave him one keen searching look, and watched his boyish face light up with satisfaction. It was a nice face—open, intelligent, clean. There was the making of a splendid officer there.

Five minutes later I was over at Police Headquarters and asking the Inspector's secretary if I might see his boss alone for a few minutes.

And now I want to digress at this point and tell you something of Chief-Inspector Everett S. Anderson and more particularly of my own relations with him at this time.

Thirty years earlier, Anderson had started work as an ordinary patrolman. His rise had been neither rapid nor meteoric, but steady and certain. Promotion had followed promotion and it seemed certain that he was headed eventually for the office of Commissioner of Police.

A Recent Appointment

From policeman he had been promoted to the Detective Bureau, then transferred to the Bertillon where he achieved wide recognition as a finger-print expert. Ten years before the date of this story, he had been made Captain of Detectives, and his unflagging industry and the clear judgment which he had brought to his department had been instrumental in reducing the crime percentage of Baltimore to one of the lowest in the country. He had surrounded himself with a high-grade type of intelligent honest men, and had waged a bitter and never-ending war on the underworld.

The death of Chief Inspector Arthur C. Webster had left a clear field upward for Anderson and only two weeks before the tragic death of Sonia Paige he had been appointed to the position thus vacated. Only two weeks, scarcely long enough to become settled in his new quarters.

In appearance, Anderson was well above average height, with a powerful pair of shoulders that would have provided excellent football material. I imagine that he was in the early fifties. His hair was very, very yellow and his eyes very, very blue. His manner was gentle and many times whimsical. He looked like some fatherly gentleman, good-natured and kindly, but none too bright.

This manner, I might say in passing, was his stock in trade. No matter how many arrests he secured, no matter how many daring crooks he brought to the bar of Justice, the underworld persisted in believeing that the Inspector was an easy mark and could be easily hoodwinked.

The words "Anderson has been assigned to the case" ought to have struck terror into the heart of a guilty man. On the contrary, it did nothing of the kind, and many of Anderson's most startling convictions were actually due to the negligence of the crook whom he was pursuing.

Accepted Advice

My first acquaintance with him had been about five years previous. I knew Captain Andy—as his men adoringly called him—in a casual way, and I can still recall that at the time I wondered how he had succeeded in advancing as far as he had.

My first intimate knowledge of the man occurred when I was conducting a special investigation of a murder case for my newspaper, and while Anderson was in charge of the police end of it.

I'm not going to tell you what that case was even although it happened many years ago, I said at the time that I would never repeat the details, and I never shall.

Anyway, it was a case that involved some of the most prominent and at least one of the foremost statesmen of our country. Anderson, who had spent many weeks on it, was ready to make his first arrest—and it was the arrest of an official so high that it would have staggered the entire United States. The man seemed guilty all right.

But Anderson had added two and two and made 40.

Convinced that he was making a serious mistake, I called to see him, and somewhat to my surprise he listened to me with the greatest attention and respect.

"I'm inclined to think that you are right, sir," he said when I had finished. "I shall not order his arrest. I think you saved me from making a fatal error."

Now, as a matter of fact, the conclusion at which I had arrived was no more correct than had been that of Anderson. I had added two and two and made 20.

Won Friendship

But between us, and by comparing notes, we managed to add that two and two to make four, and the result was the most sensational arrest that ever took place in the state of Maryland. And I had undoubtedly saved Anderson from making the worst error of his whole career, and not only falling headlong to destruction himself, but bringing ridicule and opprobium upon his department.

I never told a word of the real facts underlying that arrest, and the inspector and his men received full credit and glory.

Anderson never forgot it. He expressed his great gratitude to me at the time, and he never ceased to show it whenever an opportunity offered itself. My action had convinced him of my squareness and of my loyalty to him. In return, he gave me his friendship and the open door of his home.

And how I love those kids of his! Not having any family of my own, I adopted his, and many and long were the hours I had spent playing with his youngsters and talking shop with Capt. Andy himself.

This was not as difficult as it might at first appear, considering the fact that Anderson was a public official and I a reporter. I spent a great deal of my time traveling over the country upon various sensational crimes. When I was in Baltimore, Anderson always assumed that my talks with him were entirely confidential (as indeed they were) and that I would make use of only such data for my paper as he uttered for publication. When we were alone he talked with great freedom and seemed to enjoy mulling over his cases with me.

Crime Wave

In such a way had this friendship grown and become cemented. And it was largely this feeling which made me reluctant to carry Carroll's story. I wanted to urge Anderson to make a more formal investigation of the Paige case, if by so doing we could muzzle the young officer.

For this demand of Carroll's came at a particularly unfortunate time for the police department. I have already said that under Capt. Andy's guidance, Baltimore's crime percentage had been reduced until this city ranked among the lowest in the country.

This was strictly true. However, only a few months later, Baltimore had started in upon a veritable crime wave, one which threatened to send its average soaring. Seven major crimes had been committed during this short period — AND THE POLICE HAD FAILED TO SOLVE A SINGLE ONE OF THEM!

It seemed as if every professional crook in the country had decided to descend upon us. Bank holdup had followed holdup; scarcely a day passed that the emergency squad, with its sirens screaming, failed to dash to the scene of some dastardly crime.

Synopsis

When Officer Dickey Carroll saw a stranger emerging from the Paige estate, in Baltimore's exclusive residential section, at 2 o'clock in the morning, he failed to make an arrest. Carroll did not know then that stark tragedy had invaded the home which Randolph (Ranny) Paige shared with his popular young wife, Sonia. Returning from business in Washington, Ranny found his wife hanging by her silk dress cord from the chandelier in her boudoir. The coroner returns a verdict of suicide. Carroll, disputing the verdict, reports to Chief Inspector Anderson and Sergt. Williams, about the man he saw leaving the Paige property. They attach little importance to this so Carroll, in anger, gives his story to a newspaper. A reporter named Kay is assigned to the case. Carroll shows him photos of the death scene and calls his attention to the cord's intricate knot.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT

Theodore Roosevelt in his second administration (1905-1909) continued his fight against discriminating railroad rates and against trusts, although permitting U. S. Steel to buy the Tennessee Iron and Coal Company to avert further distress in the panic year 1907. He won pure food law legislation; he fostered preservation, development and reclamation of national resources.

He brought about the second Hague Peace Conference (1904), negotiated the Russo-Japanese treaty (1905), the Franco-German settlement over Morocco, extended the Monroe doctrine by assuming financial and political control over some of the Latin-American republics. His activities won him the Nobel prize. (U. S. History)

UNSATURATED HYDROCARBON SERIES—COAL TREE

Ethylene-, acetylene-, benzine- series (above), from which a thousand useful compounds are derived, have members of unsaturated hydrocarbons, possessing fewer H atoms than their C can bind. Unused valence bonds are shown to form double bonds in graphic formulae. The methane series (CnH2n+2) is saturated. All these series are homologous having the same difference between neighbor members. Destructive distillation of coal yields many valuable hydrocarbons and their compounds (above right). Rubber is also hydrocarbon (C5H8)x. (Chemistry)

DIAGRAM OF HOUSE WIRING

Two wires (115 volts) from the main line are attached to insulators outside on the walls and led in a conduit pipe to the electric meter, generally in the basement. Each wire is protected by a fuse leading to—or after leaving the meter. From the meter the wires are branched, leading to outlets, switches, sockets in the house, all connected parallel to supply same voltage. The number of branches and the thickness of wire is determined by the number of amperes used when every outlet is utilized and by the kind of insulation, according to the regulations of the National Board of Fire Underwriters. "INTIMATIONS OF IMMORTALITY"

With the child gazing through the stained glass window, seemingly glimpsing visions of paradise, the artist masterfully expresses the idea of William Wordsworth's (1770-1850) beautiful poem. Visions and dreams of the child make his world more beautiful than that of an adult. The poet feels that, as sometimes we are children again in memory, so children's dreams may be faint visions of a previous existence, pointing to immortality of soul.

Seeing God in nature, the poet closes:

"Thanks to the human heart by which we live,
"Thanks to its tenderness, its joys and fears,
"To me the meanest flower that blows can give
"Thoughts that do often lie too deep for tears."

OPENING OF TRANS-SIBERIAN RAILROAD

Russianizing of Asia advanced greatly with the construction of the Trans-Siberian Railroad (1891-1902) running from St. Petersburg, 5,481 miles across Manchuria to Vladivostok on the Pacific Coast, costing nearly 200 million dollars. It branched southward to ice-free Port Arthur (taken by the Japanese in 1905). This railroad opened immense territories to colonization.

Russia annexed Turkestan, expanding into Central Asia, not welcomed by Great Britain. Their interests were fixed in the Anglo-Russian convention (1907) declaring Persia, Aghanistan, Tibet buffer states, dividing them into Russian, British and neutral interest zones; Siam (southwest of Indo China) filled the same purpose between France and Great Britain. Can't Work It Out On Paper

Is true temperance moderation? Or is it total abstinence?

That's a question which will be kicked around the threshing-room floor for some time.

Either way, the drys start from scratch again. Carrie Nation's hatchet puts its dull nose to the grindstone. Sixteen road companies are rehearsing "Ten Nights in a Barroom."

There will be a new low level for "The Face on the Taproom Lineoleum." The brewer's big hosses have been motorized, but will be denounced in song and story.

It will all be for the education of the younger generations who were supposed to have been padlocked and itemized 14 years ago. The Eighteenth Amendment was a cradle song.

Like a kitten playing with a ball of twine it could scatter the thread, but it couldn't wind it up again. There would have been just as much enthusiasm and furore over its repeal if it had been directed against the wooden nutmeg of Connecticut.

The grass is always greener and more picnicky around a "keep off" sign. We don't know whether the prohibitory amendment was a diploma or a challenge. We do know that the younger generation of 1920 is now old, gray, battered and exhausted. It drank the proscribed nostrums in school, college and speaks.

Repeal takes the spanking problem away from the government and places it in the mitts of the parents. Where it belongs. You can raise a spoiled child, but you can't blame it on the weather bureau or the Maine game laws. We look for a new crop of sober little men and women provided that their parents know a balanced diet from a stormy night at sea.

Like the frog that would see Tokio we are back where we started without having been any place. We just changed the view by standing on our hind legs and croaking. When we look over history's fever chart for 1920-33 we find that 14 years rattled by like train windows. Fourteen years are a lot of warning rattles on any snake's tail.

And whether temperance is moderation or complete abstinence will be decided by the drinkers themselves. The practical chemist doesn't confine his efforts to figures on paper. He completes his tests by mixing the ingredients in the retorts.

Sometimes the figures are correct. Sometimes there is an explosion.

Sternness Is Needed to Cope With the Duplicity of Defaulter France

THAT WAS a notable speech on Defaulter France which Congressman Fred A. Britten delivered in the House of Representatives. The reports of it which appeared in the daily press hardly did it justice, but the Congressional Record brings its full and impressive text.

Groping for some explanation of the inert and well-nigh paralytic course of our State Department in dealing with the French defaults, Mr. Britten indulged in various speculations as to the cause.

"Of course," said he, "I realize that State Department officials would jeopardize their social positions in Washington if they were to advise harsh terms for European defaulting nations. It would mean fewer invitations to the embassies, fewer dancing parties where champagne flows like water. It would mean that their wives would not be listed among the special friends of the embassy hostesses."

* * *

BUT HE DID NOT dwell upon the operation of such influences. Continuing, said he:

"There was a time when we had a Department of State that was not spineless and had the courage to guide us in our diplomatic relations in a manner to reflect credit upon the sterling Americanism of the Chief Executive. An Americanism that commanded respect in every capital on earth. An Americanism that meant what it said, and was not piloted by embassy dinners and champagne parties and the cheap decorations which have been heaped upon thousands of Americans by France."

The speaker was referring to Andrew Jackson who bequeathed to his successors a perfect working model of the type of diplomacy which is required to cope with French duplicity and debt evasion.

* * *

WE REFERRED a few days ago to Jackson's stern notification to the France of his day that unless its promises were performed and its obligations honored, the United States would not hesitate to seize French property, whether in this country or in the high seas, for the satisfaction of its claims.

The France of today may be said to differ somewhat from the France of a hundred years ago. It is equally insensitive to its obligations and unobservant of its engagements. But its attitude toward America has changed, and for the worse. It is even more contemptuous of our diplomacy and our national spirit than in Jackson's time.

* * *

WHILE CONTEMPORARY France exhibits the same "disregard of treaties" and the same "willingness to violate solemn compacts" which George Washington and President John Adams charged against her in the early days of our history, she goes even further in disrespect of this country. She thinks we are fallen so low as not to resent her attitude; that she can ride roughshod over our "catering diplomacy," as Mr. Britten puts it, and SWINDLE, DEFRAUD, BETRAY, LAUGH AT US, AND "TREAT US AS PUPPETS," to quote Mr. Britten again, AND THAT WE WILL SUBMIT TO IT AND LIKE IT!

The absurd swap proposed by our State Department of a quantity of apples and pears which France agreed to accept in consideration of a great enlargement of her permitted quota of wine for the American market, was treated with merited scorn in the Congressman's speech. He freely predicted that France would refuse to accept even our apples on some subterfuge such as she is so well accustomed to employ in "getting out from under" her promises and agreements.

* * *

"HER WORD IS SIMPLY NO GOOD," said Mr. Britten, and he instanced the purchase by France of $2,000,000,000 worth of food stuffs, motors, blankets and clothing from the American Expeditionary Force at the close of the war for which she agreed to pay $400,000,000, but later refused to pay although she collected more than the entire amount through the sale of one-half of the goods we delivered to her.

Expressing his hope that an embargo bill would be introduced against French wines and brandies so that not a drop can come into this country, Mr. Britten continued that France, who CAN PAY, has bound her debtor nations to herself in solid opposition to the United States.

"I am quite satisfied," said he in conclusion, "that no one knows this better than the President himself."

* * *

LET US FERVENTLY HOPE SO!

And let us also hope that when the message on the European debts, which the President has promised, is delivered to Congress, it will be expressed with the courage and vigor which the country associates with Mr. Roosevelt's utterances.

And that it will not suffer by comparison with the ringing message of Andrew Jackson, also a Democratic President, delivered just a hundred years ago, under the same provocation that today we are experiencing at the hands of France—the historic defaulter among the nations.

County Schools Menaced

Every wide-awake citizen has been aware that in many parts of the country schools have been closed because of the inability of the taxpayers to foot the bill for running them.

But it comes as a shock to learn from Dr. C. E. Dickey, county superintendent of schools, that unless relief is forthcoming the public schools in from 12 to 15 districts in Allegheny County will have to close. If this happens, thousands of children will be deprived of the opportunity for education guaranteed them by the State Constitution and 250 teachers will be added to the list of unemployed.

We have oxcart government to blame for this situation. The antique system under which our schools operate has imposed an intolerable burden on the citizens.

There are more than a hundred independent school districts in the county, each with its board of directors, tax collector, solicitor, auditor and secretary.

Let these districts be consolidated under a central authority, and let the unnecessary tax collectors, solicitors, etc. be dismissed, and hundreds of thousands of dollars could be saved, to pay the teachers' salaries and keep the schools going.

Slum Clearance Aided

The Democratic Councilmen Are to Be Commended for Including Housing in Their Program.

It is gratifying to find in the program of the Democratic members of City Council a resolution to work for the eradication of Pittsburgh's slums and the building of low-rent houses for people of small incomes.

Councilman John J. Kane sponsored housing bills while a member of the Legislature, and knows the difficulties that must be overcome. His bills failed of passage in the Legislature, but his experience in handling them should serve him in good stead as he undertakes, in co-operation with his colleagues in Council, to find some other way of obtaining for Pittsburgh the much needed improvement in housing conditions.

The slums breed vice and disease. They are bad not only for the people who dwell in them but for all of us.

And we have another urgent reason for replacing them with new houses in the stagnant condition of the building industry, one of the largest employers of labor and one of the largest consumers of the products of Pittsburgh's manufacturing plants.

Since Repeal

Drunkenness Falls Off

Surprising even to those who worked for repeal of the prohibition amendment is the fact that drunkenness has fallen off since liquor became legal.

Perhaps that is partly due to the fact that liquor is improving.

It is not perfect yet.

But the old "chain lightning" brand of bootleg booze is diminishing in quantity, and the new beverages are improving, however slowly.

There is a strain of the small boy in most of us, no matter how old we are.

When we are forbidden to do something, we usually find an irresistible temptation to do it.

It was based on poor psychology, as the drys now know.

But whatever the causes may be, the facts are that in Pittsburgh, New York, Chicago and other large cities there is more temperance since repeal than before.

It all goes to show that the American people are easy to lead, but hard to drive.

King George III learned that in 1776.

'Believe It or Not!'

By Nelson Harding

Obstructed by the old toll gate
Long obsolete, and out of date,
The road of progress still is closed
To traffic in a Modern State.

This outworn scheme of Yesterday,
Now useless, wasteful, blocks the way
To a New Deal; and holds us up
And makes us pay and pay and pay.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Frazier Hunt is most persistent of the galloping journalists. He will not "stay put." Born in Alexis, Ill., where the cracker-barrel appellation "Spike" was bestowed, his career has been a real life travelogue. Like his side-kick, Floyd Gibbons, he is keyed to alarms and excitements.

Just when he appears settled to a radio contract, a novel or such in serene domesticity, he suddenly chucks it all to take a boat to some Moslem country. Perhaps to rush into a mosque to proclaim his Christian faith! He has lived in world capitals from Singapore to Stockholm.

He knows the Prince of Wales well enough to call him David, has slept in Formosa camphor trees, interviewed a then unknown Hitler in a Munich attic and bivouacked with bandits near the Khyber Pass. Just now he has taken root in a shaded street in Bronxville. Yet it's a safe bet he's studying world maps.

A giant six-footer, with the figure of a Northwest Mounted, he has the naivete of the open spaces. Yet no one sees so clearly through fictitious fellowships, pompous conferences and sundry false altruisms. Indeed, it may be these sheer sicklinesses that keep him on the go! * * *

Rube Goldberg has the courage to do what few artists have with long sustained success. He is completely changing his pace. More than any other cartoonist of his time he established the utterly grotesque in his drawings. The balancing feats of his absurd statues have made folk howl wherever newspapers are printed. But Rube, after more than 20 years, tired of drawing them. So he devised new figures for an entirely different type of cartoon. And they are honeys.

Former Mayor O'Brien attains his greatest popularity in defeat. From booing at news reels and prize fights, the crowds are stopping to cheer. At a recent banquet he received the most sustained applause. The reaction is easily explained. He took it on the chin without a whimper.

They were telling tales of explorers at The Players. This one made Vilhjalmur Stefansson laugh right out from the midriff. There was an explorer who always included in his expedition an unshapely, decidedly unlovely and strikingly homely woman. No matter where he went she was along knitting, sewing and doing little odd jobs. Once the explorer was asked why he persisted in taking along such an unattractive creature. "Whenever," he explained, "I feel as though I'd like to take her out to tea, I rush back to civilization."

Among delights of a wanderer are those odd vibrations to stray unimportance. Life is so brimming with portentous triviality. Today I spotted a pair of about-to-be-marrieds standing in wavering indecision before an installment house window. Their eyes were glued to a parlor set of furniture. The only reality to them is a furnished home. Romeo aches to escape from his rooming house and Juliet from her crowded flat. So in their dream of calculated bravery they expect to seal their fate with a Yale lock in one of those all-alike red-bricked cotes in suburbia. Happy, of course, but do they realize how enormously happy they are?

Albert Campioni, fashion-plate son of the owner of the famous Hotel Excelsior in Rome, is another of the European hotel keepers' sons learning the business "from the ground up" in America. He has gone through many gradations in large cities from Hollywood to New York, from assisting the chef to wearing the cutaway of an assistant manager. Italy believes it will be besieged by American visitors, more so than France ever was, in a few years, and is getting ready.

I never pass a theater where Mitchell and Durant, the kick and slug comics, are appearing that I do not wonder how much longer they will last. One wondered when they gave eight performances a week. But now with four shows a day and five on Sunday it would seem more than the human body could stand. There is always thought of two of the famous Dooley family whose lives were shortened by such antics.

Once Overs

By J. J. MUNDY

Your disposition may be naturally mean and it may require great effort on your part to prevent its manifesting itself at inopportune times.

But you would be well repaid if you tried to master it.

But they are masters of themselves.

And isn't there plenty of evidence that you yourself are not so well under control?

Every once in a while you permit meanness to come to the surface.

Altogether too often for your own good, you "blow up," as you say.

You might keep the public from knowing just how mean you can be if you would control yourself when you are with those whom you think unable to retaliate in kind—or with those who have too much self-respect to do so.

Self-mastery is necessary if the respect of friends and the love of relatives is desired.

Human Side of the News

Dr. T. A. Jagger, Volcanologist, Studies Mauna Loa—Paraguay's Great Victory

By Edwin C. Hill

THE sky over Hawaii glows red by night, and by day plumes of smoke and steam rise to the blue. And all the while Thomas Augustus Jagger is having the time of his life. For Dr. Jagger follows a quaint and curious profession. His job is to study the temperament of the most temperamental thing in the world, an active volcano. He works for Uncle Samuel in the capacity of volcanologist, and his present job is to find out what is ailing that old devil, Mauna Loa, one of the twin volcanoes of the Hawaiian Islands.

Whenever a mountain blows its head off in any part of the world, Thomas Augustus Jagger leaps train and boat, sometimes forgetting his baggage. In fact he is able quite frequently to issue warnings of just about when the explosion will take place. But Mauna Loa is his pet, and as volcanoes go, Mauna Loa has a pretty decent disposition, though is wicked enough when he shoots mile-high columns of fire into the air, and tips his white-hot lava pots so that great rivers of the terrible stuff go creeping like some relentless beast to the brink of the ocean.

Bad as he is, Mauno Loa is very deliberate and systematic about it, not like one of those crazy Japanese volcanoes which let go without the slightest warning, overwhelming thousands of lives in a moment. When his disposition begins to get the better of him, Mauna Loa begins to sput and sputter. Smoke rises higher and higher, and grows denser and denser. Then the earth rends apart and the lava comes boiling up, to go creeping down to sea. But always very deliberately, so that people have plenty of warning and ample time to get their property as well as themselves out of harm's way.

Nobody on the island of Hawaii really seems afraid of old Mauna Loa, which is 13,000 feet high, or as tall as Pikes Peak, nearly. There are villages close by. The government of the United States (for the volcanoes are part of the Hawaiian National Park, and therefore under Uncle Sam's care) maintains a tourist hotel almost on the rim of Kilauea. And right on the brink of Mauna Loa is Dr. Jagger's laboratory. Just now it is Mauna Loa which is acting up, but its twin, Kilauea, never actually sleeps.

In the midst of a level plateau is a vast crater, three miles across. From that enormous crater steam rises constantly, from a thousand crevices. And in one spot there is a pit of living fire, like a furnace in full blast, an unforgettable sign of the frightful forces eternally struggling for escape.

Paraguay's Amazing Victory

ONE of the amazing news events of the times is little Paraguay's sweeping victory over Bolivia down in the mysterious jungleland of El Gran Chaco. Outnumbered and outgunned, but with their backs to the wall, the stout-hearted Paraguayans, battling in swamps, capture nine whole regiments of Bolivians and deal a frightful blow to the bigger, richer country.

There must be something as indestructible in nations, however tiny, as there is in the human spirit, however humble. For some 65 years ago, fighting her giant neighbors of Brazil and Argentina, as well as Uruguay, one little people against three, Paraguay fought on and on until a million and four hundred thousand people were reduced to a bare two hundred thousand. In the whole land only twenty-eight thousand men were left alive.

And now, revived by time and a strangely vital national spirit, Paraguay triumphs, at least for the time. But Bolivia calls more men to the colors and appropriates more millions to be poured into the caldron of war. Nowhere does man seem to learn by experience that war settles nothing. One generation passes away and another generation comes in, and all wisdom, however bitterly acquired, must be learned all over again.

El Gran Chaco, for which the two South American republics are struggling, is a tropical jungle as big as New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania combined, a great, unexplored region almost in the center of South America.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

Do You Remember These Lines From Kipling's "IF?"

Do you remember these lines from Kipling's "IF"?

"IF YOU CAN KEEP YOUR HEAD WHEN ALL ABOUT YOU ARE LOSING THEIRS, AND BLAMING IT ON YOU——"

If you have ever tried to do something which you knew to be right, but which was also difficult and unpopular . . . you will appreciate these lines . . . you'll know how much courage it takes to live them.

It is not the danger and hardship of the act itself that keeps most of us from embarking on new and noble adventures . . . IT'S THE FEAR OF BEING MISUNDERSTOOD . . . LAUGHED AT . . . CRITICIZED . . . SNUBBED.

Human beings are gregarious animals. We like to live with the herd, think with the herd, be in right with the herd.

We can stand starvation and disease easier than we can stand unpopularity or ostracism. And ostracism is not merely a sentimental handicap . . . it is a very real danger. Unpopularity can wreck our business and our reputation.

The old saying, "Sticks and stones may break my bones, but words will never hurt me," IS NOT TRUE. Words CAN hurt us terribly. They can do irreparable harm.

And nothing will arouse the vicious criticism of the herd as surely as DOING SOMETHING DIFFERENT. The thing you are about to do may be a brave and honorable act . . . it may be the only thing you CAN DO to keep your self-respect . . . but these arguments do not count with the herd.

IF IT'S DIFFERENT, IT'S DAMNED.

It's damned because the herd is afraid of things that are different. Things that are different are apt to be dangerous to the herd. They make things difficult for lazy people and cowardly people. They upset the existing order. It has taken a long time to establish that existing order . . . to get things sitting pretty. Naturally, the herd resents any interference with its comfort. You can commit no greater crime than to set up new and disturbing standards of conduct . . . to be different.

Christ was crucified, and Socrates given the hemlock, not because they advocated new radical philosophies. The public knew nothing of their philosophies and cared less. But they did know that they were Different . . . and different people got their collective goat. So they did away with Christ and Socrates . . . and thereby hoped to make the world safe for Smugocracy.

All of which you will realize very keenly if you are trying to do something different in your own life . . . something that seems necessary and righteous to you, but nevertheless, violates the traditional law.

And you must face that fact very frankly when you're laying out your course. YOU CAN'T EXPECT TO HAVE YOUR CAKE AND EAT IT, TOO. If you can't stand criticism, if you can't exist without the approval of your contemporaries, then DON'T START ANYTHING. For you're surely going to suffer plenty of punishment if you do.

But, on the other hand, if you have the stamina to stand the gaff of being a maverick, IT'S WORTH IT.

You may be lonely, but you will be FREE.
